The books for the transfer of the stock of this Company will close on Tuesday, the 10th of August, 1869, at 2 P. M., for the purpose of enabling the persons holding stock at that time to convert the same into the guaranteed stock to be issued in exchange therefor.
The stock to be issued in exchange will be entitled to dividends at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable quarterly on the Tuesday following the first Monday of January, April, July and October, in each year, out of the rental reserved under the lease to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and such dividends will be payable free of the income tax of the United States government, and of all taxes which may be collected in any manner through or by means of the corporation owning the road, or the corporation leasing the same—the payment of all such taxes being assumed by the lessees.
One hundred and seventy-one shares will be issued in exchange for each one hundred shares of the present stock. Persons entitled to receive the fractional part of a share will receive scrip not entitled to dividends until aggregated.

PACIFIC RAILWAY GOLD LOAN. Messrs. DABNEY, MORGAN & CO., 53 Exchange place, and M. K. JESUP & CO., 12 Pine street, New York, offer for sale the Bonds of the Kansas Pacific Railway. These bonds pay seven per cent. in gold; have thirty years to run; are free from government taxation; are secured by a land grant of three million acres of the finest lands in Kansas and Colorado. In addition to this special grant the company also owns three millions of acres in Kansas, which are being rapidly sold to develop the country and improve the road. They are a first mortgage upon the extension of the road from Sheridan, Kansas, to Denver, Colorado. The road in operation now earns more than enough net income to pay the interest on the new loan. There is no better security in the market—this being in some respects better than government securities. Principal and interest payable in gold. Price 96, and accrued interest, in currency. Pamphlets, maps and circulars furnished on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DISEASE ALIVE.
POSSESSING LIFE AND VITALITY.
An idea for savans to meditate on. Many are the anxious inquiries in reference to our new system of healing. A few words in explanation in plain simple terms, so that all may understand:—
The human system in its normal or perfect condition is entirely free from disease, and consequently disease is an intrusive and antagonistic principle, a principle possessing life and vitality, and at war with the life and vitality of the human system. And wherever there is disease there is a virus composed of myriads of living creatures, determined on the demolition or destruction of all organic matter, on which the life and vitality of the human body exist. And now for the explanation.
A medicine, which when taken internally will destroy or kill one of the above principles of life and vitality, will also kill and destroy the other, a fact we defy the world to deny or contradict.
Everybody knows that the tendency of the impurities of the blood is to the surface of the skin, and that it requires but little excitement in the system to make this manifest itself in eruptions; and everybody also knows that heating any portion of the surface of the skin will produce the same result. We therefore heat the surface of the skin by means of warm water, in which we place our remedy; the warm water attracts or draws the disease (the myriad living creatures) to the surface. Our remedy then kills the creatures, destroys and absorbs the disease.
Consultation free.
All diseases cured without dosing.

THE NEWS.

Europe.

Cable telegrams are dated the 29th of August.

Seven American sailors were hanged at the yard arm of the United States frigate Sabine in the port of Cherbourg, France, for mutiny and an attempt to blow up the vessel by firing the magazine. The conspiracy was widespread among the men and the fuse lighted.

Napoleon's health is improving. Eugénie was at Ajaccio; General Prim at Vichy. An extensive woollen factory at Rheims was destroyed by fire. The Germans in Berlin are in excited movement against the Catholic monastic orders. Spain remains agitated.

By mail we have interesting details of our cable telegrams to the 19th of August.

The Burlingame Treaty.

Mr. J. Ross Browne, ex-Minister to China, contradicts the report that the Burlingame treaty has been rejected by the imperial government of China. He says, on the contrary, that its ratification is only deferred until the return of Mr. Burlingame's Embassy.

Turkey.

The Sultan, it is understood, has laid down officially a line of duty to be observed in future by his powerful vassal, the Viceroy of Egypt. Among other things direct communication with foreign nations is forbidden.

The Society Islands.

Prince Alfred, the Duke of Edinburg, received a hearty reception at Tahiti, but his discourtesy towards the officers of the American vessel Kearsarge and towards the French authorities were so outrageous as to excite the ire of Englishmen themselves.

Miscellaneous.

President Grant is to be the guest of Senator Conkling, at Utica, next week.

There are said to be no indications in Washington of a Cabinet meeting this week, and apparently no business to render one necessary. General Rawlins is the only Cabinet member in town and he is unwell, although he was able to ride out yesterday.

General Clarke, of Texas, is in Washington, and says the complexions of the political parties in that State are pretty much as they were in Virginia and Tennessee. A. J. Hamilton is the candidate of the conservative republicans for Congress and will receive the greater portion of the democratic vote, the exception being those extreme old Southerers who believe in the perpetuity of the Southern confederacy and who may present a separate candidate. Davis is the candidate of the bitter end radical republicans, and will probably command the mass of the negro vote.

Senators Yates, Kellogg, Hendricks and Thurman are canvassing California.

A German named Waltz, in East St. Louis, while crazy with liquor, on Saturday, chopped his wife's head to pieces and then threw himself under a railroad train and had his head cut off. He first tried to kill his stepson with a hatchet; but he escaped and ran for the police, who arrived, however, too late.

A New York correspondent of a Louisville paper says Mrs. Stowe's Byron scandal was written as a sensation piece on a wager, like Miles O'Reilly's story of "Hicks the Pirate."

The new State of Iowa has 100 miles of railroad more than the old State of Massachusetts.

A New Orleans paper estimates that there are not enough field hands at work in the cotton States to pick 3,000,000 bales of cotton, at which amount Northern papers place the incoming crop.

The City.

Rev. David Mitchell, at the Canal street Presbyterian church, yesterday preached on the text, "Let the dead bury their dead"—the discourse being evidently suggested by Mrs. Stowe's disclosures concerning Lord Byron. Rev. Mr. Shepherd preached at Graham avenue Methodist non-Episcopal church, in Williamsburg, against what he termed the errors and corruptions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, among which he mentions its paid choirs, college education and big salaries for its ministers, political or metaphysical preaching, and its fashion, pomposity and wealth.

The United States Assistant Treasurer in this city has been instructed to purchase bonds and sell gold next month just as he did in August.

A meeting of the officers of boat clubs in this city and vicinity is proposed for next Thursday, to consider measures for giving the Harvard crew a rousing reception home.

Prominent Arrivals in the City.

Governor Dennison, of Ohio, and Colonel Samuel Tate, of Memphis, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Governor A. G. Magrath, of South Carolina; General Wickham, of Richmond, Va., and H. T. Huggins, of England, are at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

C. M. Thompson, of the United States Navy, and Stewart Hodgeson, of London, are at the Hoffman House.

General T. W. Hall, of Texas; Colonel A. M. Wood, of New York; Major J. W. Allison, of Philadelphia; Colonel T. J. Wright, of Boston, and E. H. Weirman, of the United States Army, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Judge E. Durell, of New Orleans, and Caleb Cushing, of Washington, are at the Astor House.

J. Marical, of Washington, and Lewis Cass, of Paris, are at the Clarendon Hotel.

Colonel T. L. Eagan, of Cincinnati, and Professor J. M. Hamilton, of Delaware, are at the St. Charles Hotel.

Lieutenant Commander G. E. McConnell, of the United States Navy, is at the St. Denis Hotel.

Among the passengers who arrived here yesterday on board the steamship Idaho, from Liverpool, was the well-known cantatrice, Madame Anna Bishop.

Prominent Departures.

Captain Bouniakofsky and Captain Kalinsky, for Hartford; Colonel H. S. McComb, for Newport; Colonel J. Mason, for Philadelphia, and Professor Williams, for Canada.

The Telegraph as a Regulator of Financial Operations and Exchange.

The old system of exchange between different countries and sections of a country is undergoing a change, and is destined to be revolutionized through the influence of the magnetic telegraph. In past times, when specie was comparatively scarce to what it is now, and when the means of communication were slow and limited, the difference in the value of money in different countries was often great, and this produced considerable profit to bankers and exchange brokers at the financial centres of the world. Merchants and others were willing to suffer a great shave, to use a Wall street expression, in making drafts or settling their balances, for the sake of convenience and to avoid the risks and slow process of transmitting money. In the dawn of commercial development the rate of exchange was sometimes very high, and that between countries not far distant from each other, as, for example, between England and Holland; but as space and time became destroyed more and more through the discovery of steam power and the telegraph, it was more equalized. Of course the balance of trade even now against or in favor of a country or section regulates to some extent the rate of exchange, it being higher against a debtor country in some proportion to its debts or obligations, and in favor of the creditor country that holds the capital. The profits on exchange to a great financial centre are very large, and it is these that have contributed greatly to the enormous wealth and moneyed power of London. But even with the balance of trade against a country exchange must be reduced and more equalized through the rapidity, facility and cheapness of communication. Indeed, this will tend to equalize trade and keep the balance down more within the immediate wants and means of a people.

Instead of sending money from one country, or part of a country, to another, or of buying bills of exchange, the cost and time of doing this will be saved by simply making a deposit with some agent or banking institution and telegraphing the fact. This is done now to some extent, and the time is coming when the telegraph will be almost the exclusive medium for such transactions. This will have a great effect upon currency and the use and value of specie. Much less of both will be needed. Almost the only demand for money, whether in the form of paper or the precious metals, will be for small change, which passes from hand to hand in little ordinary transactions. All large operations in trade will be balanced or adjusted through the telegraph. A similar result will be brought about between different countries and sections of the same country, as we now see in the operations of the Clearing House in New York city. It is known that the vast financial transactions with the banks here, amounting to a hundred millions or more daily, are all adjusted or balanced each day by the comparatively insignificant sum of one or two millions of currency or specie through the Clearing House. In a certain sense this balance is all the current money needed. Extend this system to the whole country—and it will be so extended in time, through the agency of the telegraph—and we see that a much less amount of currency will be wanted throughout the republic. We are on the eve of this mighty revolution in financial or monetary operations. In fact, it has commenced already.

This is one of the subjects resulting from the wonderful developments of science and progress of the age which demands the attention of statesmen. Such an important change in the trade, financial affairs and social condition of the country must be met by suitable legislation. The agent that is to produce this revolution—the magnetic telegraph—must be under the control of government. It must not remain in the hands of a monopoly of individuals or companies. The interests involved are too general and too great. The day is not distant when the telegraph will be used more than the Post Office, and, indeed, it would be more used now if the rate of charges were brought down to the lowest paying point and within the means of the general public. Every argument that can be made in favor of the Post Office being under government control applies more cogently to the telegraph. Congress should prepare at once to establish a postal telegraph system for the whole country and hold the absolute control over it. Not to farm the business out to companies, as some have suggested; for that would only be a modification of the present monopoly and evil, but to manage it as a department, just as the postal system is managed. To this end Mr. Washburne's bill for an experimental telegraph line between Washington and New York should be passed without delay, and, besides that, the new invention for an automatic self-telegraphing system, which, it is said, will multiply the facilities of communication eight or ten times, should be tested by government, and, if found successful, should be taken and used for the public good. Let us follow at once the example set by Belgium, England and some other countries, and place the telegraph in the hands of government. Sooner or later we must come to that, and the sooner the better for the commerce and welfare of the people.

THE BURLINGAME TREATY.—We are informed by telegram from San Francisco that Mr. J. Ross Browne, our ex-Minister to China, contradicts the report of the rejection of the Burlingame treaty by the Pekin government. On the contrary, it is said that he has stated that the imperial ratification of that instrument is merely delayed until the members of the Chinese Embassy return from their foreign tour.

The Fall Elections.

The first of the series of fall elections takes place in California on Wednesday next, September 1. Two judges of the Supreme Court, members of the Legislature and county officers are to be chosen. Considerable excitement in regard to candidates has prevailed in the large cities as well as in the rural districts, and parties have been pretty well split up. Combinations have been formed in a number of districts in order to secure the election of independent tickets, thus, if possible, overthrowing the old party organizations and putting a quietus on their leaders. The last election for judges of the Supreme Court in California occurred in 1867, when Royal T. Sprague, democrat, was elected over John Curry, republican, by a majority of 2,269. In 1868 Grant carried the State by 514. In the present Legislature the republicans have a majority of six in the Senate, and the democrats a majority of twenty in the House—democratic majority on joint ballot, fourteen. The democratic candidates for judges of the Supreme Court are J. B. Crockett and William T. Wallace, and for Mayor of San Francisco Frank McCoppin.

The Vermont election takes place on the 7th of September for Governor and State officers. As the State is overwhelmingly republican of course there is no danger in predicting the triumphant election of that ticket, headed as it is by one of the house of Washburne.

The State election in Maine occurs on the 13th September and will afford some indication as to the popularity of General Grant and his administration, whether they have lost or gained popularity. Grant's majority in 1868 was 28,080, and Chamberlain's, the present republican candidate for Governor, 20,403. A United States Senator is to be chosen in place of William Pitt Fessenden, who seems to have lost some caste with the radicals on account of his course in the Senate relative to the impeachment trial—he having voted against that measure. The malcontents are not, it is apprehended, sufficiently strong to prevent his return to the Senate if he desires to go. There is also some muddle in the republican ranks in Maine in regard to the temperance question, and a third party is talked of. Some of the republican papers affect to despise the movement, while the democrats are hopeful of creating a split in the republican ranks that will result to their benefit. But the indications are that whether a third party attempts to make a show at the polls or not (they have already a candidate for Governor in the person of a worthy gentleman named Hichborn) Chamberlain will be re-elected by a decisive majority. The democratic candidate for Governor is General Franklin Smith, quite a strong and popular candidate. Some interest is attached to the election in Maine, as her vote, with her State motto—"Dirigo" I lead—are used in all important electioneering occasions as tending to show which way the popular sentiment is drifting.

The above comprise all the State elections that occur during the month of September. In October the great field days of the fall campaign occur in Pennsylvania and Ohio, with State elections in Iowa and Colorado; and in November the elections in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois—with their so long forlorn sisters, Mississippi and Texas—close the fall season for the year 1869.

Mutiny on an American Frigate.

The Atlantic cable brings us sad, very sad intelligence in the shape of news of the existence of a widespread mutinous conspiracy on board the United States frigate Sabine, an attempt by the mutineers to blow up the vessel, the discovery of the plot, and its punishment by the execution of seven of the sailors by hanging at the yard arm. These melancholy events occurred in the port of Cherbourg, France. A portion of the crew attempted to destroy the ship by firing the gunpowder in the magazine. The fuse was lighted and in communication with this place of storage when the officers were made acquainted with the facts. The loyalty, courage and obedience to discipline of the men of the American navy have been ever appreciated and acknowledged both at home and abroad. In the early days of our naval history, and during the period of the first consolidation of that powerful arm of our governmental force, a very prominent execution, after charges of a mutinous conspiracy and intended piracy, took place on one of the vessels at sea. Happily the record is honorable thence till now. England experienced the effects of the mutiny of the Nore, and its punishment in after years; and it will bring a feeling of real regret to the public mind that this case should have taken place on board the Sabine in the presence of quite a number of young midshipmen and at the very door of a Bonaparte.

ITALIAN OPERA AT THE SEASIDE.—The success of "Don Pasquale" at Continental Hall, Long Branch, the other evening, has induced the proprietor to give the "Barber of Seville" next Wednesday. Miss McCulloch and Signori Brignoli, Susini, Petrella and Fossati are in the bill. A good idea for dispelling the monotony of Long Branch. The revival of the Italian opera, even for a night or two, will give the fashionables pining there for the gayeties of the city something to talk about for a week to come, and then will commence the general break-up in the country for the return to town.

AN ALBANY OPINION.—The Albany Journal (radical) thinks that in the contest between Tweed and Belmont for the head of the national democratic committee Belmont has no chance; that Tweed gave Hoffman his immense fictitious majority; that Tweed fixed it between Tammany and Mozart; that Tweed managed the tax levies in the Legislature; that he manages all our Corporation spoils; that all the boys swear by him, and that unless Tweed says he may Hoffman cannot run even a second term for Governor, and that finally as between the "German Duke" and the Grand Sachem there is no comparison to be made. We apprehend, however, that in the solution of this question our Albany contemporary will find that he has overlooked one or two of the "big Indians" of Tammany who have something to do in managing the wires and running the machine, and that Bismarck Sweeny will appear as the Martin Van Buren of the new regency.

The Inter-University Boat Race—More Facts.

It would appear from our authentic news published in the HERALD yesterday that the Oxford crew did not win by so much odds after all. We were led to suppose by our first despatches that the winning post was reached by the English University athletes from three to four boat lengths ahead of the Harvards. This was undoubtedly the currently reported fact, and in such a shape it reached this country. But it turns out now that the umpire of the race, who was stationed at the winning point, near Mortlake, and who no doubt measured the arrival of the boats with keen and conscientious vision, has declared that the Harvards were only half a length "clear water" behind the Oxford boat when they came to the finish. It is admitted on all sides that the Harvards lost only by the defect in their steering. This defect might have been expected and it was no doubt anticipated, in a measure, by the Harvards themselves when they so gallantly accepted the terms of the Oxford crew to row with a coxswain at all, an addition to the crew of a racing boat entirely unknown in races on their own waters. However, in a commendable spirit of pluck and chivalry they tried it, although it was a dangerous experiment, as they have discovered before this time, and, indeed, as they acknowledge.

The Oxford crew admitted, at the dinner which succeeded the race, that they never had a harder contest than this in all the races which they had run and won. It is conceded from every quarter which is entitled to the credit of good authority that there has never been a race so hardly contested, so fairly run and so gallantly conducted on both sides. The conclusion we have to come to is that inexperience in steering lost the race for the Harvards by just half a boat's length—according to the statement of the judge—which probably one good stroke or "spurt" would have covered, and thus have changed the fortunes of the day. If this be so there is no evidence that the American style of rowing is not quite as good as the English, even on the Thames, particularly if it be true, as the Harvard men say, that the steering made a possible difference of from half a length to a whole boat's length in the race. It is pretty clear, viewing it from all points, that the winners had pretty hard work to obtain their laurels, and that the vanquished have no reason to be disheartened because they lost them. There is another chance ahead. The gentlemen of Oxford will certainly not refuse to meet the Harvards on their own waters at some future time. Indeed, we hope that the challenge will come freely and chivalrously from the English side, as the challenge for the late race came from the Harvard boys, coupled, too, with all the disadvantages which were known to accompany its acceptance.

A GENUINE WOMAN'S RIGHTS WOMAN.—The lady delegates to the Woman's Rights Convention, now in session at Newport, paid a visit on Saturday to Ida Lewis, the heroine of the lighthouse, the brave girl to whom personal peril is as nothing when a fellow being's life is in danger. Probably they expected to enlist her in the service of their mission. If they did they must have been disappointed to find her exercising woman's right to perform a portion of woman's duties. These ladies—who were no doubt inflated with the speeches they intended to make at the next session in behalf of woman's right to the franchise and all that stuff—found this gallant woman, the saviour of many lives, engaged at—what kind of occupation can we suppose? "Assisting her mother at the washtub!" We hope that the lady delegates will profit by the lesson accidentally taught them by this noble girl, who has done more in the service of humanity within the past five years of her young life than all the sputting at conventions can accomplish in a century.

PRINCE ARTHUR—A HINT TO PRESIDENT GRANT.—It has been given out that Prince Arthur in his present visit to America is to keep clear of the United States—that he is not to "come over the border." Why he should be thus instructed we cannot divine. Perhaps, however, he may be standing on ceremony, awaiting an official invitation. At all events, we think that President Grant would be doing the handsome thing in detailing a special messenger to the Prince to invite him to spend a day or two at the White House, including the offer of a war steamer for his transportation. As a simple act of international courtesy, especially after the late boat race, we think this invitation would be eminently proper, and we hope that General Grant will so regard it.

ANOTHER DISCOVERY IN ALASKA.—Professor Davidson, of the United States Coast Survey, has, it appears, discovered a mountain range of iron ore in Alaska and convenient to the seacoast. The range is two thousand feet high and of unknown extent. Thus little by little the resources of that prodigious region are becoming known. With what is thus already known of Alaska, what with its numerous rivers and inlets swarming with walruses, seals, codfish and salmon, and what with its boundless forests of northern pines, and its coal mines and mountains of iron ore, it will surely, and before long, too, turn out a splendid speculation after all.

MOVEMENTS OF GENERAL GRANT.—The President had a triumphal journey from the White Mountains across the country to Saratoga Springs on Saturday last, the enthusiasm of the people—men, women and children—breaking out in various manifestations at every station and crossroad along the route. The General leaves Saratoga for Washington this morning, where he will hold a Cabinet council on Tuesday, and on Thursday will leave again to rejoin Mrs. Grant and the members of his family who remain at the springs.

APPARENTLY FORGOTTEN IN ENGLAND—Senator Sumner's speech on the Alabama claims. The English lion "roars as gently as a sucking dove," and with him all is peace and affection for his American cousins. At this rate we may expect that her Majesty's principal Secretary for Foreign Affairs will before long request Mr. Motley to hand in his little bill, in order that it may be settled without further debate or delay. The good time is coming. Even so mote it be.

The New Dominion.

Rumor is in the air about the New Dominion. The London Times makes mysterious allusions and throws out hints which it is difficult for the uninitiated to understand. Speeches of strange import are made in different parts of the New Dominion, and by men who cannot be wholly ignorant.

What does rumor say? It says that the Confederation scheme has not been so successful as its friends believed it would be. It has so far failed to make the British North American Provinces a unit. Dissension and jealousy were never so rife as they are now in the two Canadas and in the other sections of the Confederation. The party now in power in Great Britain has all along been opposed to the maintenance of colonies for the mere sake of territorial show. Since his conversion to liberal politics Mr. Gladstone has been ahead of all his colleagues in this particular branch of foreign policy. It was he who went out some years ago to act as plenipotentiary in the handing over of the Ionian Islands to Greece. It is the conviction of the present government in Great Britain that the New Dominion leans too much on the mother country and too little upon itself, and that the Confederation will never be a success until it is compelled to trust to its own resources. It will not be wonderful if in a very short time we learn that it is the desire of the home government that the New Dominion, which has been bolstered long enough, should accept complete independence on easy conditions. The New Dominion is under heavy obligations to the home government, but we do not believe that the home government will lay down conditions with which it will not be easy to comply. We have good reason to believe that we are on the eve of a great change, so far as our northern neighbors are concerned. It remains to be seen how our neighbors will act.

We do not believe that the British government will insist that the New Dominion shall declare itself in favor of a monarchy, although we cannot forget that it was originally intended to call the Confederation the "Kingdom of Canada." Nor do we find it easy to strip the present visit of Prince Arthur of a certain political character. We know well that Great Britain would like above all things to learn that the Confederation was willing to accept Prince Arthur as king. It would not at all surprise us if the men who rule the Confederation should declare themselves in favor of this policy. We have but a word to say on the subject, and we say it all the more willingly that we would spare our neighbors all unnecessary trouble—a kingdom on our northern border is impossible. It will fail as failed the last attempt to establish a monarchy in Mexico. The fate of Maximilian is worthy the attention of Prince Arthur and his friends in England. Two events which have occurred of late years have contributed to make monarchy impossible on this Continent. One of these was the failure of the Southern rebellion; the other was the execution of Maximilian of Hapsburg. Our northern neighbors may do as they please; but they cannot have a king with comfort.

THE SENATE AS AN ASYLUM FOR EX-PRESIDENTS.—A New Orleans exchange, deprecating the obscurity into which our ex-Presidents fall as soon as they are out of office, suggests an amendment to the constitution by which they would be entitled during after life to seats in the United States Senate as Senators at large. It might happen, if such an idea should be carried out, that some persons would be entitled to seats in the Senate whom the people would not like to have there. One or at most two terms in the Executive chair should satisfy the ambition of all reasonable men. Besides, the Senate as at present constituted is sufficiently oligarchical and corrupt, and to make it a life asylum for those who have filled the Presidential office—good, bad and indifferent—would only tend to perpetuate a power in the legislative branch of the government of which the people are already becoming suspicious and jealous.

COMING TO A CRISIS.—The Sultan of Turkey has officially defined a line of tributary duty which must, it is said, be observed in the future by the Viceroy of Egypt towards the Porte government. It is a comprehensive schedule, but in the tone of an imperial firman, and will be forwarded to Alexandria. Should the Viceroy be advised or resolve to reject it we may look for news of very serious complications in the East. The Sultan says the idea of independent rule by the Viceroy must be "crushed out."

THE HEALTH OF NAPOLEON.—The rumors recently circulated in Paris concerning the health of Napoleon are officially denied, and the authorities are hunting up the perpetrators of the alarming canards. If the Emperor is seen to limp or heard in a cough all France is agitated and all her political factions are on the qui vive. All things considered, it is, however, to be hoped that in the matter of his health he will continue to disappoint and baffle his enemies for a long time to come. His health and vigilance are still necessary, not only for law and order in France, but for the peace of Europe.

THE POT AND THE KETTLE.—A Western exchange remarks that Pendleton, in his letter of acceptance, charges his opponent, Governor Hayes, with being silent on the subject of the fifteenth amendment in his speech opening the campaign. But Hayes retorts on Pendleton that he, too, failed to define his position on it in his letter of acceptance. In subsequent speeches Hayes advocates its ratification by the Ohio Legislature; but thus far Pendleton has dodged the question. There seems to be a growing disposition on the part of the democracy to "pigeon-hole" this whole question about the fifteenth amendment.

GLORIOUS CALIFORNIA.—Flour extra has declined in San Francisco to $6 and superfine to $4 87½. Legal tenders, 75½. Edmund Burke says that education is the cheap defence of nations; but cheap bread is better still.

DON'T BOTHER YOURSELF.—The Rochester Chronicle (republican) wants to know what is going to become of Governor Hoffman. Don't worry yourself. That is a matter which the democracy will probably decide for themselves. At the present time Governor Hoffman is acting like a sensible man and taking things as coolly as the hot and the hop season will permit.

New Secret Political Organization in Massachusetts.

The Salem Observer, in an article on the political situation in Massachusetts, asserts that there is "a secret, powerful, fresh and insidious element" at work in the politics of that State which claims to be based upon the strength of fifty thousand votes, and which will operate in the field without much regard to party politics or to prohibition. It refers to the Crispin lodges and similar workingmen's organizations. The Observer adds "that labor questions are becoming of vast importance in this country, and the organizations of laboring men are becoming constantly more numerous and influential. Ordinarily, in Massachusetts, side movements like that of the Crispins would not amount to much, but under existing complications they may exercise considerable influence." It is evident that the republicans in Massachusetts are in a heap of trouble; and now that the cordwainers are deserting them and organizing leagues upon their own hook, it will require no little finesse to enable them to retain their ascendancy in a State even as strongly republican as Massachusetts. The labor movement is no doubt growing in strength all over the country; but what those who are sincere in it have to fear is being sold out body and soul by some unscrupulous leaders on the eve of an important election.

LIVE ISSUES VERSUS DEAD BEATS.—The republicans in Massachusetts are endeavoring to get over their temperance difficulty by declining to recognize it as a "live issue." They probably intend to regard it as a "dead beat"—a style of political loaferism always more or less connected when the rum question enters politics.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

When will that magnificent job of many years' standing, the Battery enlargement, be completed?

If the good people of Gotham don't "peach" at this season then there is no telling anything in this world. Just think of it—180,000 baskets of the delicious fruit dumped in our metropolitan market in one day!

What a glorious thing it is to live in New York just now! Here we can imbibe to hilarity our Croton, while in Philadelphia they have "to go it" on benzine and a "little more lager."

Who pockets the rents for the apple, peanut and soda water stands that cumber what remains to the public of the City Hall Park sidewalks?

Is it absolutely essential to the public safety that an upright boiler and a small sized oyster saloon should occupy the open ground at the foot of Roosevelt street, a space that is greatly desired at this season for country and other vehicles?

We are in favor of the extension of Leonard street to the Bowery, opposite Division street; of Franklin to Pell street, widened and improved; and of White street to Bayard street. These improvements would treble the value of property on the thoroughfares named and the cost would be trifling.

When completed—and it soon will be—that will be a magnificent business place the New York Life Insurance Company have caused to be erected on the corner of Broadway and Leonard street. It has three times the room of the new Court House, and it will not cost one half the money.

It is a great pity that in extending Thomas street through the grounds of the New York Hospital a movement was not made to widen Pearl street from Chatham street and Thomas street to the river, and then have organized and renumbered the avenue under a new name.

We advise timorous people who own property below Canal street to look out. There are geologists who would insinuate that the southern end of Manhattan rests on basaltic arches, against which the currents of a vast subterranean river dash, and that 500 or a 1,000 years hence the lower part of the island will cave in!

Of course when the new Post Office is completed Beekman street will be extended to Broadway; and of course, also, Ann street will be widened and opened to Fulton street.

A crabbed old gentleman without psalmody in his soul wants to know if the square boxes on street corners, out of which ear-splitting tunes are continuously ground by one-armed heroes are not organic nuisances? Shame on his patriotism.

WATERING PLACE NOTES.

The season at the more Northern and seaside resorts is rapidly drawing to a close.

The magnificent scenery of the Saguenay river is growing greatly into the popular affection. Each summer this region is more and more frequented.

Since the opening of the Pacific Railroad large parties of excursionists have taken trips on the plains, some even going to the new mineral springs in Montana, Colorado, Utah and California.

The magnificent surf shore of Monterey, Cal., will next season be visited by large numbers of health and pleasure seekers from the interior and Atlantic States. The bathing at Monterey, in the glorious waters of the Pacific, is magnificent.

The season has not been brilliant at either Near or Far Rockaway. There have been but few days of really enjoyable bathing weather vouchsafed to "Long Island's sea girt shore."

Long Branch is not what it was a few weeks since. Stetson gave a magnificent ball at his hotel, trusting to enliven things. It was a failure so far as the galvanizing process went.

The Southern places of resort, particularly those in Virginia, appear to have fared better this season than at any time since, or even before, the war.

Saratoga is yet enjoying itself. This watering place is generally the first to fill up and the last to be deserted.

The proprietors of cottages and the lessees of hotels at Newport are not over pleased with the sizes of their greenback pies made this season. They are examining their debit and credit accounts, and they do not think fortunes are so easily made as many are led to believe at Newport.

New London has had a few visitors at its bathing grounds, but business was not so lively as at one time it promised to be.

Niagara has a sensation in the person of a gymnast who tempts death daily by crossing a rope that spans the chasm below the railroad bridge. The rope is made taut, and the "professor" mounts an "untamed bicycle" and wheels himself across it. The professor finds the end for which he is hired to risk his life, viz., to supply the hotels with gaping guests.

Croton Lake, a beautiful sheet of water, fifteen miles in length and about one-fourth of a mile in breadth, is greatly affected by quiet people. Quite a number of families from the city reside in cottages that skirt its shores, and grow fat and healthy on its fish trout and other fish. It is very cool and healthy at Mount Kisco.

Sharon Springs are not utterly deserted. Sharon keeps pace with Saratoga in numbers, but not in fashions.

"John Brown's Tract," in Northwestern New York, has not been forgotten this season by the disciples, including both sexes, of gentle Izak Walton. It has been estimated that over ten thousand persons of all ages have visited this rugged country within the past four months.

Now that a ride of five days will take a resident of the Atlantic shore to the Rocky Mountains, we may expect to read next season of hundreds of others besides artists visiting them. There have been discovered very fine mineral waters in the "eternal hills" which form the great water shed of our continent.

The lakes of Maine have not been without their visitors this summer.

That lively young gentleman Commodore Vanderbilt and his bride were at Saratoga last week; she the envied of all the ladies in search of that gem of price—a husband. Mrs. Vanderbilt on the demise of her husband will be entitled to dower in one-third of his estate, or an annual interest of seven per cent on say $33,333,333 33 1-3. That's what's the matter. The happy Commodore is rated at $100,000,000. What woman wouldn't be envious?

The White Mountains have been sketched "to death" by bucolic and other artists this summer.

Shawnee Springs, a well known Kentucky watering place, containing 1,100 acres of land, was sold a few days since for $100,000 cash.

Arkansas is going to have a watering place of its own, where the aqueous fluid is as nasty to the taste as the patient can desire, near sundown. The new springs are as yet without a name.

A press ball is to be given at the White Sulphur Springs on Tuesday, 31st inst. Among the managers are General Beauregard, the Turkish Minister, General Wise, Senator Bright and others.

Mutiny on a United States Frigate—Seven Sailors Hanged.

PARIS, August 29, 1869.

A desperate conspiracy was discovered on board the United States frigate Sabine, now lying in the port of Cherbourg. Some of the crew, to revenge themselves on their officers, attempted to set fire to the powder magazine and blow up the ship. They had proceeded so far as to light a fuse communicating with the magazine, when the plot was frustrated by a cabin boy, who discovered the burning fuse. It was found that twenty-two sailors were implicated in the plot, and they were put in irons. Seven have since been condemned to death and hanged at the yardarm.

Relations With and Policy Towards Egypt—Imperial Letter to the Viceroy.

LONDON, August 29, 1869.

Advices to hand in this city from Constantinople state that although the late official report of the Viceroy of Egypt on the condition of affairs in the territory, and his relations to the Porte generally, has been found satisfactory to the Sultan, rumors in the Turkish capital represent his Majesty as being resolved either to crush out at once any attempt which may be made towards independence by the Viceroy or bring matters to a direct issue in a peaceful manner.

The Grand Vizier of the Sultan will despatch another letter to his Highness the Viceroy next Tuesday, demanding that both the land and sea forces of Egypt be kept within the limits described in the imperial firman of the year 1841; that a regular quarterly budget of finance be submitted to the Porte Cabinet: forbidding any future imposition or levying of taxes by the Viceroy or his holding direct communication with any foreign government.

Murder and Suicide at St. Louis—A German Chops His Wife's Head to Pieces and Then Throws Himself Under a Railroad Train.

ST. LOUIS, August 29, 1869.

A most horrible murder and suicide were committed in East St. Louis yesterday morning. A man named Casper Waltz attempted to kill his stepson, Nicholas Lutz, by striking him on the head with a hatchet, but the weapon glanced and Nicholas escaped and ran for a policeman. When they returned they found Mrs. Waltz lying on the floor with her head literally chopped to pieces. After committing this deed Waltz walked to the crossing of several railroad tracks near by, on one of which a coal train was approaching. When the locomotive and one car had passed him he flung himself across the rail between two cars and the remainder of the train passed over his neck, completely cutting off his head. Waltz was a hard drinker, and in the morning drank a pint of whiskey before breakfast and procured another, when his stepson remonstrated with him, which doubtless led to the assault, although it was not made until some hours later.

Prize Fights Near Cincinnati—The Weather—Rains Prevailing.

CINCINNATI, August 29, 1869.

A prize fight for $200 a side took place to-day near Mount Auburn, between David Sheehan and Mike Keating. On the twelfth round Keating struck Sheehan when down, and the referee declared for the latter.

Another prize fight took place during the forenoon in Mill Creek Bottom, between Ed. Dennison and James Burns. In the twentieth round Burns knocked Dennison out of time. Both are badly beaten.

Rains prevailed this morning for several hours, which will benefit the vegetable crop, and in some soils will aid corn in filling. The weather is warm, but not uncomfortable.

Mrs. Grant remained at home, not having recovered from the fatigues of her journey to the White Mountains. The rest of the day was passed quietly, the President dining at four o'clock. The President, in company with General Porter, will leave here to-morrow morning at ten minutes past eight o'clock for Washington, via New York. Mrs. Grant and the children will remain here until the President returns, about Thursday. He intends visiting Utica next week for a day or two, returning here to attend the county fair on the 8th, 9th and 10th. The President will probably attend the Vermont State Fair about the 12th of September, at the invitation of Governor Page, given yesterday. The Political Campaign in California—Proposed Excursions Eastward—Illness of Mrs. Colfax.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 29, 1869.

United States Senators Yates and Kellogg, republicans, and Hendricks and Thurman, democrats, and several members of the House are taking part in the campaign.

Choy-Chew and Sing-Man have returned and express gratification at the receptions in the Eastern States.

While Cornelius Buckley was sitting in his doorway in Worcester, Mass., last evening, he was dangerously wounded by a stone thrown by John Fleming, which struck him on the head, fracturing his skull.

Two negroes broke jail at Hampton, Va., on Saturday night. One, named John Bayley, was sentenced six years to the Penitentiary and the other, John Wilson, had three indictments against him for robbery.

The vote on the subject of lay delegation, taken in the East Genesee Conference, in Ontario county, N. Y., on Saturday, resulted in 123 ayes to 27 nays, being forty-two more than the constitutional number required. The next annual session of the Conference is to be held in Elmira.

The commencement at Brown University occurs on Wednesday next. An important meeting of the alumni, to hear the report of the committee appointed last year, will be held Tuesday afternoon. An oration and poem will be delivered before the Phi Beta Kappa on Tuesday morning.

A fire broke out in Boston yesterday morning in the building No. 57 Chatham street, occupied by the National Chemical Company and by the proprietors of the Boston Shipping List as a composing and press room; also by Bernard Carr, job printer; Charles G. Nazro, G. P. Proctor and others. The fire is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion of some chemicals. The stock of chemicals and the press and printing material of the Shipping List were both destroyed. The losses in the aggregate will be about $20,000, on which, in most instances, there are full insurances.

THE FENIAN CONGRESS.

Re-election of Mr. Savage—That $20,000 and the Pure but Rival Patriots.

After remaining in session from ten o'clock on Saturday night till nine o'clock yesterday morning the Fenian Convention brought its business to a close.

Mr. Savage was re-elected as President for the ensuing year, and the announcement was received with the usual throwing up of hats. Mr. Savage made the kind of speech customary on such occasions. Mr. McCorry was appointed chairman of a committee to audit the books of the Brotherhood, and he and Mr. Curry received a vote of thanks.

The latest developments show unmistakably a very suspicious connection between the $20,000 of Fenian bonds in litigation before Judge McCunn, and one important object of the recent Convention. Both parties of the Fenian Brotherhood are moving heaven and earth to clutch the $20,000. As has already been stated in yesterday's HERALD, Mr. O'Mahony made an exposé of Messrs. Scanlon's and Meehan's efforts to prevent $20,000 coming into the possession of the Savage party. A new phase has been added to this struggle for the spoil, for on Friday evening last a writ was served on Mr. O'Mahony requiring him to show cause why $8,000 of the $20,000 in litigation should not be paid to Mrs. O'Donovan Rossa in behalf of her husband, now in an English prison. She states that she is authorized by her husband to make this claim for the reason that, in 1865, he took charge of the Irish People newspaper in Dublin, in the interest of the Brotherhood in America, the expenses of the paper to be paid from the Fenian exchequer here. He alleges that he spent $2,500 in gold, of his own money, on the paper, and that $5,500 are due him on salary, making a total of $8,000, besides interest on the money. He was to have been paid, it is alleged, out of the $20,000, had that money ever reached its destination.

Still another phase in this scramble after the money contributed by a patriotic and trusting people has been added in the shape of a few individuals of the "three tailors of Tooley street" stamp, who claim to represent the Irish Revolutionary Brotherhood, and who, having failed to gain admission to the recent Convention, have appointed a "committee" to further the Scanlon-Meehan attempt after the $20,000. Military committees and president's annual reports sound very well; but the $20,000 is what all sides are after, and of course both parties have the purest intentions in the matter.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, August 29, 1869.

The Proposed Cabinet Meeting.

The time of Secretary Boutwell's return to Washington is unknown. There are no indications of a Cabinet meeting this week, nor are there intimations of any business that renders one necessary. Secretary Rawlins is the only head of a department now in Washington.

Politics in Texas.

With regard to the condition of politics in Texas General Clarke reports that the lines between the Hamilton and the Davis parties are being clearly drawn and that men are taking sides on distinctive party questions. The democrats rally to the support of Hamilton, while the republicans are consolidating around Davis. It is estimated that there are from 15,000 to 20,000 men in the democratic party of Texas who will refuse to vote for Hamilton on strictly personal grounds. They are of the extreme Southern school, and will either refuse to vote at all or else run a candidate of their own. General Clarke thinks Hamilton will get a portion of the negro vote in certain sections of the State, but Davis will get the mass of it. Hamilton, it is said, has alienated nearly all the Northern men resident in Texas from him by denouncing some of them as "carpet-baggers." They seem a little tender on this point, and have made common cause against Hamilton on that account. The canvass promises to be an exciting and a bitter one, owing to personal animosities between the different candidates, and in the present aspect of affairs it is difficult to tell who will be elected.

Treasury Operations in September.

The Acting Secretary of the Treasury has directed the Assistant Treasurer at New York to continue the purchase of bonds and the sale of gold during September to the same extent and in the same manner as in August.

Health of Secretary Rawlins.

There is an improvement in the physical condition of Secretary Rawlins. He rode out this afternoon.

The Mail Service in Texas.

General Clarke, of Texas, nominated for Congress in the Galveston district, arrived here yesterday for the purpose of urging upon the Post Office Department the importance of affording better mail facilities to that State. It appears that under the present arrangement the largest towns in Texas cannot obtain a mail more than twice a week, while many of the smaller towns are not served with a mail more than once in two weeks. In consequence of this business men, especially in the large towns, are greatly embarrassed, and people of all classes inconvenienced. It is urged that if better mail facilities were afforded by the government the Post Office service would not only become self-sustaining in Texas, but would soon produce a revenue to the government, while the spread of general intelligence would be promoted.

Pensions to be Paid.

Early in September large disbursements will be made on account of pensions.

THE SUICIDE AT SOUTH FERRY.—The body of the man who committed suicide by jumping into the river at South ferry on Saturday evening, as already printed, was subsequently recovered and taken to the New street police station. BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

SUDDEN DEATH IN THE STREET.—Henry Sutcliffe, aged fifty-two years, dropped dead while walking in Prince street last evening. The body was removed to his late residence, corner of Prince and Willoughby streets. Dr. A. W. Shepard gave it as his opinion that death was caused by heart disease.

SINKING OF A PROPELLER.—A steam propeller, the Jane Campbell, loaded with potash, sprung a leak yesterday morning when in the river off the foot of Gold street and sank within a few minutes thereafter. She was owned by Scholes & Schumaker.

FIRE IN SMITH STREET.—A fire broke out last evening in the store of Mrs. A. Perrin, in Smith street, near Pacific, and a loss in stock and fixtures ensued to the amount of $1,000. A wooden structure adjoining owned by Mr. Doorman, and occupied as a stable by George Braugman, was also damaged to the amount of $500; insured. The fire originated from the upsetting of an oil lamp. Engine Companies Nos. 2 and 8 had a "set-to" in Smith street while returning home from the fire. The fight was stopped by the Forty-third precinct police.

BROOKLYN PAID FIRE DEPARTMENT.

How It was Organized—What the Commissioners Have Been Doing and What Is in Prospective.

Nothing can be more conducive to the feeling of security which should pervade a community with regard to the means available for extinguishing conflagrations than a well organized and disciplined fire department. It is not, then, to be wondered that Brooklyn, after having for the past few years experienced the insufficiency of the old volunteer system and witnessed the success which attended the workings of the paid department in New York, should look forward with much satisfaction to the permanent establishment of the new fire régime in their midst.

During the session of the Legislature of 1867–8 most strenuous efforts were made by Mr. Joseph Reeve and other prominent republican politicians of Brooklyn to get a paid department bill through, but without success, when, as a sort of compromise between reorganization and the volunteer rule, a Board of Estimates and Disbursements was appointed by act of the Legislature, which took the power of supervision in all matters of expenditure for the department out of the hands of the Common Council, in which body the matter had heretofore been vested. The Board of Estimates and Disbursements was composed of the Mayor, Street Commissioner, Comptroller and the Chief Engineers of the Eastern and Western Districts. While they remained in power they managed to expend more than $100,000—a great increase in the expenditures over the years preceding—and this proved a strong argument for presentment by the advocates of a paid fire department in the Legislature of 1868–9.

THE PAID SYSTEM

was authorized by act of the last Legislature, the bill for which was introduced by ex-Assemblyman A. B. Hodges, with but slight opposition from any source. It provides for the selection of four citizens of Brooklyn to serve as Fire Commissioners, which was accomplished on the 22d of May, the appointing power being invested by law in Mayor Kalbfleisch, Comptroller Johnson, Street Commissioner Fuery, Alderman Bergen, President of the Common Council, and the City Treasurer.

THE COMMISSIONERS,

who are all more or less experienced in fire matters, are as follows:—Frederick Massey, who has been chosen President of the Board, is a young and energetic man. He was formerly foreman of Pacific Engine Company No. 14 of the Western District, and is Treasurer of the Widows and Orphans' Fund of the volunteer organization.

Hugh McLaughlin, who fills the office of treasurer, was an active member of the old department, and served his time with No. 6 Engine Company. He represented the Second ward in the Board of Aldermen, and was more recently appointed Assistant Fire Marshal for Brooklyn, but resigned that office soon after.

Anthony Campbell, ex-Sheriff of Kings county, has had much experience as a fireman, having filled the position of foreman of Hose Companies No. 2 and 6, Western District, at various times. Mr. Campbell, who has been Postmaster of Brooklyn, is at present a member of the Wallabout Commission.

William A. Brown was a member of Eastern District Hose Company, No. 4. He is regarded as a very intelligent man, and formerly filled the office of Clerk of Justice Voorhies' court, Williamsburg.

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED.

Under the volunteer organization there were fifty apparatuses, all told, in use between the two districts, to man which were enrolled about three thousand men. Several of the engines, hose carriages, &c., were mere excuses for fire apparatus, while there was a general decay noticeable throughout the houses in which they were kept. One of the first acts of the Commissioners was to reduce the number of companies one-half. A tour of inspection of the department property was made, which elicited a most shockingly loose and demoralized state of affairs. All the houses with the exception of three were found to be in a dilapidated condition. In one instance, in the Sixth ward, an engine house was found to be almost untenantable, notwithstanding the fact that in the October previous the Board of Aldermen appropriated the sum of $5,200 to put it in good repair. There was no account for the money thus expended. Some other houses were found to be occupied as whiskey manufactories, political club rooms, and even as assignation houses. These outrageous abuses were at once corrected and are not likely to again crop out to disgrace the community.

IN THE EASTERN DISTRICT

the houses of engines Nos. 5, 7 and 13 have been fitted with stables and the engines altered so that the change can be made from hand-pulling to horses at very short notice. The house of No. 4 Engine, corner of Ewen and Wyckoff streets, has been enlarged so as to take in a hook and ladder, which latter description of apparatus will be provided for that neighborhood. A truck company will also be established in the house of Hose Company No. 4, South Third street, near Fifth. Stables have been erected on the premises occupied by the Greenpoint Hook and Ladder Company. Each of the latter companies will be furnished with a hose tender and hose.

CAUSE OF THE DELAY IN ORGANIZING.

The non-fulfilment of the contracts for apparatus by the Allerton Iron Works, of Naugatuck, Conn., who contracted for altering engines Nos. 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 14, 19 and 22, of the Western District, to be run by horses, and for furnishing new tenders, accounts for the apparent tardiness of the Commissioners in this respect. Had the contract been carried out in time they would have been ready on the 15th of August. A repair shop has been opened in Hampden street, near Myrtle avenue. The house of Engine Company No. 5, in Canton street, opposite Fort Greene, has been furnished as a hospital for diseased horses, and the upper floor is a harness shop. The amount of funds placed by law at the disposition of the Board for the first year being but $175,000 (thereafter the annual allowance will be $250,000) is not sufficient to admit of all the improvements desired, and strict economy has been found absolutely necessary in all matters of expenditure. The headquarters of the Board are in the house of Engine Company No. 17, 285 Jay street, which is neatly fitted for that purpose. The made thus far are as follows:—Caspian A. Sparks, secretary; John Cunningham, chief engineer of the city, and John W. Smith, assistant chief. Both engineers are men of many years of active membership in the Fire Department, and have each filled the offices of chief of the Western and Eastern Districts. There are 400 applications now on file with the secretary for positions under the new régime, while the total force required this year is only 200. These appointments will be filled September 1.

THE UNIFORM

will be blue cloth (pure indigo dye) coats and pants, blue flannel shirts from foremen down, and white flannel shirts for all above that grade. The caps will be similar to the United States navy regulation fatigue. The buttons, of three sizes, German silver, will bear the initials "B. F. D." Each member will wear a badge, German silver also. The rates of wages will approximate with those of New York:—Foreman, $1,300; assistant foreman, $1,100; engineer, $1,200; firemen, $1,000.

and review of the department will take place as soon as practicable, when the public will be treated with an opportunity of witnessing the force and of judging as to the personnel of the men who for the future will be custodians of the motto, "We brave the elements to succor the distressed."

FIRE IN HUDSON AVENUE, BROOKLYN.

At about half-past two o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the smoke house of Mr. Henry Newman, in Hudson avenue, between Concord street and Park avenue, and before the flames could be extinguished $2,000 worth of old buildings and sheds, owned by Messrs. Finley & Driscoll, were demolished. The occupants of these premises also sustained losses on their stock.

Mr. Newman sustained a loss of $500; insured in the Germania Insurance Company of New York for $1,500.

James Cowley, who occupied No. 201 Hudson avenue as a blacksmith shop, sustained a loss of $200 on tools. Cowley had spoken for an insurance policy at the office of the Germania, but had not taken it out.

Edward McCarty, who kept a feed store in one of the buildings, lost $700 on his stock.

Mr. Quirk, a painter, lost $200 worth of paints and brushes. Insured for $300 in the Fulton Fire Insurance Company.

Thomas Rose had a stable destroyed. Loss $100; insured.

William Apy, who occupied 203 Hudson avenue as a dwelling, lost $200 on furniture.

The fire originated from some kindling wood taking fire where they were smoking fish in the rear of Henry Newman's grocery.

ACCIDENT ON THE YACHT FLEUR DE LIS.

While off Poughkeepsie, on Saturday night, an accident occurred by the upsetting of a kettle by which William D. Tisdell and John Sullivan, stewards of the yacht Fleur de Lis, were very badly scalded. On the arrival of the vessel at this port to-day they were sent to Bellevue Hospital.

LITERATURE

Reviews of New Books.

THE SEVEN CURSES OF LONDON. By James Greenwood. Boston: Fields, Osgood & Co.

If we have any fault at all to find with the style in which the author of this book has treated his subject, or rather subjects, it lies in his over delicacy of treatment, and too cautious avoidance of everything that could tend, even in the remotest degree, to arouse the susceptibilities of the over fastidious. The title is about the most sensational part of the volume. Certainly there is nothing in its contents which is either very horrid or very nasty, although, as might be expected, anything relating to thieves, beggars, fallen women and other "curses" of great cities could not be truthfully narrated without containing some repulsive features. Without pandering to a morbid taste for the horrible, Mr. Greenwood has succeeded in writing a most entertaining book. There is nothing he tells us which has not an existence in New York. The difference in the size of the population, and, to some extent, a different style of operation pursued by our sharpers, are the only things that prevent this work from applying to the American metropolis with all the accuracy with which it undoubtedly applies to the great European city. We have been quite entertained by the chapters relating to professional beggars, and to that which describes "advertising tipsters and betting commissioners." Whether fortunately or unfortunately is hard to say, but it is none the less true that our gamblers do not, as a rule, patronize the turf to the extent to which it is patronized in England. Our people prefer euchre, poker, faro and such like fascinating games upon which to lose their money, while our shop boys, apprentices and "counter jumpers" are more likely to fall victims to a weakness for seeking fortune in the magic numbers of a keno card than in blindly placing their money in the hands of a professional better at races. Still, in spite of American preferences, the end is the same. If American flats are less dull than their English confreres, American sharps are certainly keener than Continental or British rogues. If any national pride can be engendered from a knowledge of this fact we impart it with pleasure to the gushing "free and independent citizen."

Continuing this desultory review we would refer to the chapters on "neglected children," which are very graphic and correct. The chapters on "fallen women" are also quite instructive, though hardly so well treated as they could have been. The quotations from Mr. Acton's recent report of the great social evil are appropriate; but this entire part lacks in interest, after reading, as we have, a most carefully written review on the same subject, published in the Westminster Review. Altogether, though, the book is one that deserves an extensive circulation. Its contents are both entertaining and instructive, the style is full of life and animation, and the absence of everything tending to gratify a prurient taste is an evidence of the desire of the author to make his work acceptable to all classes. In point of mechanical execution it is quite neat and pleasant to look at. The type is large and clear and the binding tasteful and serviceable.

The September Magazines.

Lippincott's contains no striking feature for the coming month. Nearly one-third of the number is occupied by the continuation of Trollope's "Vicar of Bullhampton," a novel we can offer no opinion upon, not having read any part of it. "Grouse Shooting" is a pleasant, readable paper, and "Myra's Mirror" is a highly sensational story of the supernatural order. The author of "Land Monopoly" evidently thinks his subject new—in fact, he says it "is too novel." We beg to inform him it is as old as the Israelites. "A Week in an Aquarium" tells all about a visit to an asylum for inebriates. Under the title of "The National Debt" Francis A. Walker believes in liquidating the national debt at as early a date as possible. He believes that a successful attempt to fund it will inevitably lead to its repudiation by the coming generations of Americans. "That Man" is not bad, but it is suspiciously familiar. "Our Monthly Gossip" is pleasant and entertaining. As a whole, however, the magazine is not up to its usual standard of merit.

Packard's Monthly contains the concluding part of an article, by Edward A. Pollard, entitled "Imperialism in America," one of the most thoughtful and interesting of papers that we have read for some time. "Facts about Working Women" is full of sentiments and suggestions which are worthy of endorsement, except the—pardon us—twaddle about woman's suffrage. In spite of its sanguinary title "An Avenger of Blood" is very tame; and the poem "I am Going to Seek My Fortune" does not deserve the prominence given to it. Mr. Wakeman, who usually writes very sensibly and entertainingly, indulges in a lot of stuff about "Beauty and the Ballot." "Fashionable 'Fall Dress' for Women," by Howard Glyndon, is a most interesting paper. Its strictures, if apparently harsh, are none the less true, and it ought to be widely read. The other papers are pleasant enough reading. Unless intended as an advertisement the "verbatim report," &c., published under the head of "Practical Education," is in bad taste.

The Eclectic Magazine of Foreign Literature, as usual, contains the cream of the British periodicals, and is necessarily very entertaining. "The Language of Light," "Madame de Pompadour," "The Ever Widening World of Stars," "Social Superstitions," "Marie de Medicis," "A New Theory of the Universe," "The Human Intellect," "Young Husbands and Wives," "An Optical Delusion" and "The Leaning Tower of Pisa" are papers the perusal of which cannot fail either to instruct or to amuse. The frontispiece of this number is embellished by a fine portrait of the late Henry J. Raymond, a laudatory sketch of whom appears in the last pages of the magazine.

The fifth monthly part of Appletons' Journal is a magazine of unusually large size, containing as it does nearly or fully 150 printed pages of reading matter. The contents are very interesting. "The Man Who Laughs" is continued, and, in spite of its extravagances, is one of the noblest fruits of Victor Hugo's genius. The conception is a sublime one, and the manner in which the work is handled is none the less grand. The illustrations, with but one or two exceptions, such as that beneath which the question is put, "Will she vote?" are admirable. The literature is of the highest order.

Our Young Folks is full of charming stories and instructive articles for the little ones, who will never tire of reading them. The present number is quite equal to any of its predecessors, which is saying a great deal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

We have received the Little Corporal, a well-conducted magazine for the young, which we can speak favorably of, and the Church Monthly, a very sharp, spicy publication.

MUSICAL REVIEW.

The coming musical season promises well for the publishers. The appearance of the exquisite cantatrice de concert, Mlle. Carlotta Patti, who, to judge from her European career, will find no rival here worthy of her great talents, will undoubtedly give a strong impetus to music publishing, as her répertoire is very large, and, of course, her ballads and romanzas will be eagerly sought after. The demise of burlesque and opéra bouffe has brought a healthier and more artistic style of music into the field, and we are seldom afflicted with the trash which it has been our duty to denounce so often. English opera will also exercise, we hope, a beneficial influence on the musical tastes of the public, and do service in cleansing the Augean stables of some of our publishers of the rubbish which they have so long persisted in placing before their patrons. Altogether the prospects are bright and cheering to the mind of every true lover of the divine art.

Wm. Hall & Son publish the following:—

"The Leaves that Fall in Spring." Ballad. J. R. Thomas. A very pretty little ballad with a simple and expressive melody.

"Pleasant Memories." Ballad. J. R. Thomas. Another of this favorite song writer's sterling compositions.

"Bright Days are Coming, Love." Song. J. R. Thomas. An old, popular ballad of a style which we should like to meet with in the songs of the present day.

Ditson & Co. publish the following:—

"Out on the Rocks." Song. Mme. Sainton Dolly. A republication of one of the sweetest ballads sung by the gifted composer and cantatrice. The hand of the musician is seen in every measure of it.

"Rip Van Winkle Galop." W. T. Wellman, Jr. Simple and pleasing. We don't like the opening bars.

"Allum Leaf." Kirchner. A charming little piece of the berceuse order.

"Red Ribbon Polka Mazurka." G. B. Douglas. An ordinary dancing piece without any noticeable merit.

"About the Jubilee, Sir." Major A. Little. One of those compositions which, in the language of Jeffreys, "neither gods nor men permit." It is intended for a dreary joke on Gilmore's great festival.

"Les Huguenots." Fantasia. Thalberg. It would be needless to explain to musicians the beauties of this truly great work, one of the best of the renowned pianist. All the well known characteristics of the composer appear in it. The large, bold, vigorous treatment of the grand subjects of Meyerbeer and the exquisite beauty of the coloring recommend it to every artist. It is very handsomely published.

Lyon & Healy, Chicago, publish the following:—

"The Blue Bells of Scotland," with brilliant variations. A. P. Wyman. Nothing worthy of particular comment in these variations. Rather hackneyed.

"Silvery Streamlet" and "Tears of Solitude." G. Lange. The first is a very beautiful andante theme in six-eight time, very artistically handled also, and the second is a nocturne in twelve-eight time of considerable beauty and expressive treatment.

Koppitz, Prüfer & Co., Boston, publish the following:—

"Corraggio." Song. Angelo Mariani. A quaint minor theme, which has a certain charm of its own.

"The American Nightingale." Cantilene. G. Duprez. A little waif of melody quite in keeping with the subject.

"Depths of Mercy." Solo and quartet. J. Goodell. The words are the only good thing in this piece. The melody is of a sing-song character, and might answer a Sunday school.

RECEPTION HOME OF THE HARVARD CREW.

NASSAU BOAT CLUB, NEW YORK, August 28, 1869.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Our American crew was unsuccessful in the race of yesterday. One and all of us feel a sorrow at the result which words would fail to express. But while we are not able to join in an exultation over a victory with the noble fellows, in no degree has our obligation to manifest our admiration for the spirit and courage which prompted them to the herculean task been diminished. Our reception of the Harvard crew upon their return to this city should be of such a character as to show them that they are esteemed glorious even in defeat.

A hearty welcome from their brother oarsmen of New York seems even more to be demanded now than though they had returned victorious, and if we can in any way lessen the keen disappointment they must have experienced let us try and do so. To secure this end and insure a concert of action, the officers of other clubs are invited to meet at the Nassau Boat Club House, Thirty-fourth street and North river, on Thursday next, September 2, at two o'clock P. M., for consultation. LLOYD ASPINWALL,
President Nassau Boat Club.

AQUATICS.

International Boat Race in Japan.

Our special correspondent in Yokohama, Japan, writing on the 28th of July, reports the following interesting international aquatic contest:—

A boat race for $700 a side was rowed in this harbor on the 10th inst., between the cutters of the United States steamer Iroquois and her Britannic Majesty's frigate Ocean. The latter beat the former in a five mile race four minutes twenty-eight seconds. This result again gives the boast to the Britishers in these waters, which was won from them about a year ago in a contest between the Ocean and the Oneida.

AUTHORS AND INVENTORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

An article in the HERALD, of the 25th inst., entitled "Authors and Publishers in the United States," in which it is suggested that authors should form a co-operative system for the purpose of publishing their own productions, thus avoiding the disadvantages originating from the present system of book publishers, contains the most feasible and appropriate remedy for the almost unlimited abuses under which authors labor, not only in not receiving their appropriate share of the profits of published works, but would give to the public a large amount of valuable information that now lies in manuscripts, having been rejected by some one or more publishers from motives very far from being consistent or honorable. The same necessity for like reasons follows in regard to inventions. Most inventors are too poor to place their inventions in operative form, and their only alternative is to give the lion's share to the manufacturer, frequently under royalty, the pecuniary results of which, like the book publishers, is dependent wholly upon their honesty, as neither the author nor inventor can be possessed of the means of ascertaining to what extent their rights may be abused. It would be wise and profitable for these two classes of intellectual workers to consider the suggestions alluded to.

A QUEER STORY ABOUT MRS. STOWE AND THE BYRON SENSATION.—The New York correspondent of the Louisville Courrier-Journal is responsible for the following curious story:—You remember the sensation about Hicks, the pirate, which Halpine got up on a wager? It has been the envy of the Bohemians for ten or a dozen years. All of them have tried their hand at something of the sort, producing only abortions. No one has approached it until Mrs. Stowe, who has surpassed it. They tell a queer tale. They say that Mrs. Stowe did it on a wager, and a lot of literary swells are implicated. Their idea was a sensation, but they overshot the mark. They fancied Lord Byron's character so low that no one would defend it. The wager was a trifle—champagne and cigars. When Henry Ward Beecher heard of it he was very angry. A card of denial is expected from Mrs. Stowe, and, as the affair happened at the house of a Boston publisher, they may hush it up. Dana and Bonner fairly burst with spleen—Dana because he didn't invent the Byron scandal, and Bonner because he didn't get it for the Ledger. "Damnation!" cried Bonner when he first got an inkling of it; "why didn't she fetch it to me? Why, I'd have paid her a cool $5,000 for it."

THE SUICIDE OF EDWARD HOWLAND.—From H. B. Platt, who has just returned from an excursion to Lake Tahoe, we learn the following particulars of a terrible tragedy which took place there on Monday evening last:—Edward Howland, son of a celebrated ship owner of New Bedford, Mass., came here some months since as mate of a vessel, and after visiting around San Francisco for a time found his way to Lake Tahoe, where he had relatives who were engaged in boating on the lake. The young man had been somewhat irregular in his habits, and appears to have left his ship and became a boatman, attending on the pleasure parties on the lake. On Monday morning he had been out with a party, and, coming back, started to walk from the landing with his companions up to the Tahoe House. After going a few rods he said, "I don't think I will go any further now; good night." A moment after he placed a pistol to his head and fired. A portion of his head was blown off, and the ball, ranging downward, entered the neck, inflicting, of course, a fatal wound. A large company were seated on the piazza of the hotel at the time, and they were unwilling witnesses of the fearful tragedy. The deceased was but twenty-four years of age, and of gentlemanly address and prepossessing appearance. He did not appear to have been drinking to any excess before committing the fatal act, and nothing definite is known as to the cause of his determination thus to end his life.—San Francisco Alta California, August 20.

RELIGIOUS.

Divine Worship in the Metropolis and Suburbs Yesterday—Sermons on the Vilification of the Dead, the Abuses and Errors of the Methodist Church, Revivals, &c.—Church Dedications and Other Interesting Services.

CANAL STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Sermon by Rev. David Mitchell on the Vilification of the Dead.

Canal Street Presbyterian church was reopened yesterday for public worship. The services, morning and afternoon, were conducted by the pastor, Rev. David Mitchell. The morning's discourse was evidently suggested by Mrs. Stowe's attack on Lord Bryon. All reference to Mrs. Stowe or Lord Bryon was skilfully avoided, but the occasion was made one for the consideration of the general subject—unnecessary prying into the secrets of the dead. After the usual devotional exercises, Mr. Mitchell announced as his text Matthew viii., 22:—"Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead."

The Saviour by these words, he said, does not mean that his followers are not to perform the last offices towards their deceased friends. He speaks to his disciples according to their necessities. To one eagerly professing a desire to follow Him he points out the hardships of the Christian life. "The Son of Man has not where to lay his head." To another who would defer the duty of taking up the Cross till he has performed some other subordinate duty—such as burying his father—Jesus said, "Follow me and let the dead bury their dead." To this disciple he spoke thus because he was more occupied with thoughts regarding the dead than the duties and struggles of life. And to all who neglect their present duty with the excuse of having to bury their dead, he now as then distinctly says, "Let the dead bury their dead." These words may also be applied to those who occupy themselves with discovering the secrets of the dead rather than with the duties of life. There is in the heart of many a longing for what the common sense regards forbidden knowledge. If this craving were after a knowledge of the good parts and deeds of men, it would be well. But to draw aside the curtain which hangs between time and eternity, merely to discover what was bad in the life of a fellow creature, to have no motive in doing so but to gratify a vain ambition, to present a story which, though improbable, will be eagerly taken up by lovers of sensation and dealers in secrets and mysteries, is altogether outside of the Christian life and character, and comes under the rebuke of the Saviour when he said, "Follow me and let the dead bury their dead." The preacher remarked, in further consideration of the subject, that an unnecessary prying into the secrets of the grave is contrary to the tone and spirit of Christianity. The facts of a man's life, or of a nation's history, so far as they are publicly known, the Scriptures never attempt to conceal. It is one of the beauties of the Word of God that it never glosses over the characters of men; that it never suppresses or distorts the truth, and that its pictures of individual or national character are true to the life. But we cannot point to any one of whom Scripture reveals more than was known to his contemporaries or by his own confessions.

Further, God would have us deal with no less charity with the dead than with the living. "Charity thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth." "Charity shall cover the multitude of sins." Jesus said unto them who had brought unto him a woman taken in adultery, "He that is without sin among you let him first cast a stone at her." If the Word of God would have us thus deal with the living, would it, think you, give us unbridled license to stir up the ashes of the dead? But further, the grave is in Scripture poetically described as a resting place. "There the wicked cease from troubling and there the weary be at rest." Our Saviour severely rebukes those who would pry into the secrets of the grave. He asks regarding the eighteen overwhelmed by the fall of the Siloam's tower, "Think you that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you nay. Except ye repent," &c. He tells them they have nothing to do with the dead; they have to do with their own sins. Besides, Scripture clearly reveals a judgment day. The dead are transferred from the tribunal of man to the tribunal of God. Let us beware of making ourselves the judges of the dead past and taking the judgment of God into our own hands. Let us lay to heart these words, "Judge not, that ye be not judged." In the second place, it was remarked that unnecessary discoveries of the secrets of the dead are contrary to the instincts of human nature. Our instincts point to death as a haven of rest.

> We sail the sea of life; a calm one finds,
> And one a tempest; and, the voyage o'er,
> Death is the quiet haven of us all.

When we call up the image of a deceased child we never think of its acts of disobedience. We all feel an honest shame when any one thrusts upon our unwilling ears their doubts and assertions regarding those who have gone the way of all the earth. It is a common saying, let us forget the evil and remember with gratitude the good a man has done. The custom at our funeral services is worthy of attention. At such a time we think only on the good that characterized the deceased. In the death of the prodigal we fondly cherish the thought of his having come back to the father. We ponder his words, expressive of a returning love, and forget his wandering into the far country. Our common sense of justice has made it a stringent rule not to try any one in his absence for an alleged crime. The accused should be brought face to face with his accuser. We feel this should be observed more stringently with regard to the dead. The dead are silent as the grave which covers them. The attempts of the Spiritualists to communicate with the spirits of the departed have only proved a grand failure and imposture. It is universally the feeling that it is unjust to call the dead to a human tribunal. The consequences of such unnecessary discoveries were, in the third place, considered. Such as the injury they would do to the living, the creation of a sensational taste worse than that which is gratified by illustrated papers and dramatic representations of crime, and a dangerous craving after a knowledge of the secrets of the living. The reverend gentleman concluded with an eloquent peroration enjoining the duty of revering the memory of the illustrious dead, and showing that, except to do justice to the living, or for the interests of society, we should "let the dead bury their dead."

ST. PETER'S CHURCH.

Sermon on the Raising of the Widow's Son to Life.

On account of the organ being in process of repairs there was no music at the services in St. Peter's church yesterday, and low, instead of high, mass was celebrated. The Rev. Father Quinn preached from the seventh chapter of St. Luke, being an account of the restoration to life of the widow's son of Nain.

The reverend speaker began by saying that this raising of the widow's son to life was one of three instances recorded by the Evangelist in which God had manifested His divine power by restoring the dead to life—the other cases being that of Lazarus and that of the daughter of Jairus. A doctor of the Church, one of the interpreters of the Holy Scriptures, says that it is quite likely that God restored many others to life, for St. John, the Evangelist, says, "There were many other things which Jesus did, which if they were written every one, the world itself would not be able to contain the books that should be written." So much were the people impressed by this wonderful manifestation of Christ's power that they were first filled with fear, but soon this fear gave way to reverence and admiration, for they cried out, "A great prophet has risen up among us and God has visited his people." The motives which seem to have induced the Saviour to work this miracle were compassion for the widowed mother and the exercise of that divine charity which filled His heart. This miracle was not only intended to manifest such love, but it was likewise intended for our special instruction, for it has, besides the ordinary meaning, a mystical signification. It is so interpreted by ecclesiastical writers, and is declared to be a figure of the condition to which sin reduces the human soul. If Christ was reduced to compassion for mere human suffering, how much more for those which are to last for all eternity? His sufferings in the Garden of Gethsemane is an evidence of this great love for man. And again, His being bound to a pillar and scourged by a brutal soldier, and afterwards dying on the cross to atone for our sins. Would it not be well for us to turn our eyes upon our own consciences and see if our souls may not be dead in sin? It will be well for us to implore Christ that He interfere in our behalf and restore again to the life of grace those souls dead by a life of sin.

CHURCH OF THE PILGRIMS.

Sermon on Revivals by Rev. T. T. Kendrick.

Special services were held yesterday at the Church of the Pilgrims, West Forty-eighth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, and were all very largely attended. The sermon in the morning was preached by the pastor of the church, the Rev. T. T. Kendrick, on the subject of revivals. The sermon was a very eloquent one and had special reference to the various revival services and camp meetings which were being held at this season of the year. The preacher defended the class of services known as revivals from the objections which are commonly made against them, and spoke of them as a great power for good and as exerting a most healthy stimulus upon the Church of Christ at large.

In the afternoon at three o'clock a love feast was held, at which the brethern and sisters present evidently enjoyed a good time. A considerable number of those present stated their religious experience, some of them doing so very briefly and others going into detail at considerable length. In the evening the sermon was preached by the Rev. William Archer, M. D., who took his text from the sixteenth chapter of St. Luke and the nineteenth and following verses—the parable of the rich man and Lazarus. The preacher said the parables of Christ were among the most interesting and the most valuable of his teachings. They had been objected to by some critics as being mere fables, and, as such, devoid of high moral teaching, but the objection was a captious one. In many cases the parables of Christ were founded on fact, and he believed this to be one of them, and argued from the internal evidence contained in it that such was the case, and it was unreasonable to disbelieve it. The parables were all drawn from facts which had actually transpired—facts which were known to all, and hence the main value of their teaching. They had a living, everyday interest for his hearers. Another objection to this parable had been started by those who disbelieved in the doctrine of eternal punishment, which this parable so plainly taught. A great number of persons disliked to hear that there was even a possibility of their going to hell. They were all pleased to believe in heaven, of a state after death in which all would be peace and rest; but they objected to anything which implied a second place in the great unknown world where the wicked would be punished. The Bible all throughout plainly taught that there were both heaven and hell. If the proof that hell existed was insufficient, then the proof that there was a final state of blessedness was insufficient too. The one must either stand or fall with the other; they could not be separated. The parable taught that there was a separation of the soul and body after death, and that though the body would be mouldering in the grave the spirit would retain all its energies, would not lose its consciousness, but would be keenly alive to all sensations and feelings. It also proved that the transition of the spirit after leaving the body for some other sphere would be immediate, there would be no period unconsciousness, no state in which anything approaching to annihilation could be found. When the body died it was only like the prison gates being opened and the prisoner within released. The parable should not be supposed to blame the rich man because he was possessed of riches, but because he abused the trust which was placed in him. The preacher then spoke at length on the folly of trusting to riches; they were a great gift and a means of good not to be despised, but if abused they were like a millstone hung round a man's neck to drag him down to perdition. He concluded by an eloquent appeal to his hearers to rather live the life of Lazarus, and thus insure a blessed immortality hereafter.

PLYMOUTH BAPTIST CHURCH.

Sermon by the Rev. Dr. Westcott.

The chapel of the Plymouth Baptist church, a comfortable room on the ground floor of No. 610 Ninth avenue, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets, was well filled last evening. The Rev. Dr. Westcott conducted the services, and, after the usual opening exercises, announced as his text the fifty-sixth and fifty-seventh verses of the fifteenth chapter of the Second Epistles to the Corinthians—"The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." The reverend gentlemen in his opening remarks referred to the resurrection of the body, and contended that the identity of individuals will be preserved in the life after death. It was said that every seven years a man's body became virtually changed; but, notwithstanding this, the person's identity was preserved, and the man is the same though the particles constituting him may have been changed. Such would be the case after the resurrection, which must be of such a character as that each person should keep his identity after rising from the dead. The reverend gentleman in proceeding with the more immediate subject of his text called the attention of his hearers to the fact that if there were no sin in the world there could be no death. It was one of the principles of the Divine government that suffering should only exist as a consequence of sin. There was but one exception to this rule, and that was not an exception in full—namely, the Lord Jesus Christ. If there were no other argument than this inseparability of sin and suffering, that alone would be sufficient to establish the doctrine of everlasting suffering. The only sting of death, the preacher said, is sin. It is sin which makes death so terrible. It is not the suffering consequent upon disease; not the going to sleep of the body; but it is that which lies behind death—the remembrance of the past sins and shortcomings, and the assurance that the soul will have to stand alone in the presence of that God against whom the sins have been committed and whose law has been violated. These are the things that make the sting of death. The righteous law is that which gives the strength to the sting, for all God's law was right. There have always been men who have scoffed at death and tried to laugh away its terrors; but their efforts have been of no avail. The text provided a deliverance from the sting of death. An ample provision had been made in the gospel of God's dear Son, and this was the only remedy for man in the dying hour of misery. Dr. Westcott's discourse was a short one, but very impressive, and he concluded with an unusually telling appeal to his hearers to embrace the offers of the gospel and thus rob death of all sting to them.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

Services by the Rev. William Patton.

The congregation at Plymouth church last evening was not by any means large, owing probably to the closeness of the atmosphere. A sermon was preached by the Rev. William Patton, of Chicago, who took his text from Mark xii., 34—"When Jesus saw that he answered discreetly He said unto him—Thou art not far from the kingdom of God." The reverend gentleman first referred to the occasion which elicited the observation from the Saviour in his discussion with the Herodeans, Saducees and Pharisees, and then proceeded to dilate upon the classes of men who might be represented by the scribe to whom He had addressed the consoling words mentioned in the text. He showed that this might represent more particularly two classes; first, those who had sense at heart, but who had not yet come unto Christian life and consciousness; and, secondly, that it might represent unconverted persons, but favorably impressed and tending to a right decision, people who were tending to truth and purity, yet had had many practical and theoretical difficulties, growing sometimes from theology. A cloud of doubt and darkness overshadows their ideas. The preacher pointed out the case of the scribe mentioned in the gospel as one of great importance, and one that commanded the deepest scrutiny. Many were inclined to be favorably impressed, and only awaited the opportunity to come within the pale of religion. The conversation which took place between the scribe and the Saviour showed unmistakeably that the former was desirous of being informed as to the divine truth, and gave evidence of his appreciation of the great love which the Lord bore towards mankind. He might have been a man who rested upon the good works he had performed, yet he displayed the best symptoms towards improvement. This was a mood of mind that might have been exhibited without any real piety taking place. He had been convinced on the fundamental principles of religion. He evinced sincerity by his manner, and was anxious to become more thoroughly acquainted with religious truth. Surely he was not far from the kingdom of God. He seemed ready to converse upon all that was good. How many men were like that scribe? When we saw an unconverted friend listening attentively to the instructions of his minister, was it not proper that he should be encouraged to proceed. Good nature was easily enlisted on the side of piety. It might prove a slow process to bring him over to the paths of truth but perseverance would triumph in the end. If any man stood on the borders of the kingdom of God let him make no delay. There was such a thing as being nigh to victory. There was such a thing as being six seconds late in an international race—as was the case in the Harvard and Oxford boat race—and consequently a defeat. The reverend gentleman concluded by an earnest appeal to the congregation to persevere in good works and make no delay when proceeding in the paths of righteousness.

GRAHAM AVENUE METHODIST NON-EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The Errors and Corruptions of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Rev. D. Shepherd preached a sermon on the above subject in the Methodist Non-Episcopal church, Graham avenue, Williamsburg, yesterday. In opening his discourse he contrasted the simplicity, force, energy and poverty of that Church fifty years ago with its pompousness, weakness, listlessness and wealth of the present time. He lamented the good old days when the congregation did its own singing, when the ministers were not graduates of colleges but of the Church itself, and required no ordination but that of God. Then, he said, the Church was poor, despised and persecuted. Now it was the richest in America, and yet the poorest. Its real estate was worth $35,000,000, the interest of which was $2,500,000, enough, he thought, to support all the preachers in America. We then, he said, chose our trustees from the members, now from the world, especially if they are wealthy. These men are lords over God's heritage. They rule the people with a rod of iron, and even the ministers themselves are controlled by them and called by them without the bishop's approval. We formerly built churches for the poor, now palaces for the rich; and the bishop is at his wits' end to find men to fill these magnificent churches. To please the trustees he has to search all the conferences in the United States to find preachers to send them. And after all they are not satisfied. Fifty years ago the preachers had about $100 a year, now $3,000 a year and a fine, well furnished house to live in, besides many donations. Really the preachers and people have got above themselves. They neither act like Methodists, live like Methodists, or dress like such; they are as proud, pompous, haughty and fashionable as other people. Fifty years ago our preachers preached the gospel, repentance and remission of sins through the name of Jesus, justification and sanctification, holiness of heart and life, a free and a full salvation. Now the fashionable preachers preach nothing but either politics or metaphysics. The name of the Saviour and his doctrines are seldom or never named in the pulpit or out of it. The minister who never names the name of Jesus but in the pulpit, ought never to enter it, and the member who never mentions his name but in the church, is unworthy of it or to go to the sacrament. Fifty years ago the itinerant plan was in full operation, now the congregational the ministers want to be settled for life, without sermons enough to last them two years. Formerly the bishop stationed the preachers, now the trustees and presiding elders do it. If the trustee wants a favorite preacher he goes to the elder and tells him the person he wants, and he is sure to have him. He may be a relative or friend, so that if the preacher can only get the trustee on his side he is sure to succeed. The people have no voice whatever in the choice of their preacher, nor any interest whatever in the real estate of the Church. It all belongs to the conference. O, how has the pure gold become dim and the mighty fallen—"we have hung our harps on the willow. We can sing the songs of Zion no longer; because in a strange land." Hear what our blessed Saviour says, "Because thou art neither cold nor hot, but lukewarm, I will spew thee out of my month because thou sayest I am rich and increased in goods, and have need of nothing, and knowest not that thou art wretched and miserable, and poor and blind, and naked. Remember, therefore, from whence thou art fallen, and repent and do the first works over again or I will come unto thee quickly and remove the candlestick (church) out of its place." How shall we walk in the good old way? "We must repent and do our first works over again." Set out anew for heaven. Let that excellent man (I knew him before he was a priest), who is no novel reader nor novel writer, and who has never departed from the good old way—that is, Bishop Janes—first, insist on congregational singing, with the old Methodist tunes. Second, that all the preachers throw aside their notes, and let us have old-fashioned preaching. Third, let all our churches in future be built for the poor as well as for the rich. Fourth, insist on the preachers warning every man and teaching every man in all wisdom (doctrines), that they may present every man without excuse in the day of judgment. If not, their blood will be required at their hands. Fifth, let him insist that the discipline or rules of the Church shall be observed by all, rich and poor. Sixth, let the preachers visit every member of the church, whether rich or poor; seventh, let the preachers warn the people against dress, dancing, card playing, the theatre, opera and places of fashionable amusements—away with them all, they are diabolical. Eighth, let him insist that provision be made for the poor and needy in the winter, that none of our members may be sent to the almshouse. May we remember that "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Ninth, let the preachers insist on the people "bringing up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," never to read a novel or have a newspaper in their houses on Sunday, nor to write letters or read them on that holy day. Here, then, dear brethren, is the good old way pointed out to you and how you should walk in it. Do not say, therefore, like the rebellious Jews, "We will not walk in this way." Remember, they were destroyed by the Roman army for disobeying God's command; and if we refuse to do it he will punish us also—perhaps with the cholera or yellow fever, or some other epidemic disease. May the great Head of the Church bless you and cause his face to shine on you. Amen and amen.

DEDICATION OF A CATHOLIC CHURCH IN BROOKLYN.

There was a large congregation present yesterday morning at the dedication of the new Catholic church at the Roman Catholic College grounds, East Brooklyn. The Right Rev. Bishop Loughlin, of Brooklyn, was assisted in the dedicatory ceremonies by Father Freel, of the Sidney place church; Rev. Thomas Mooney, of St. Bridget's church, New York, and Revs. Eugene McSherry and P. Karney. The solemn high mass was sung by the Rev. Thomas Mooney, assisted by Revs. Eugene McSherry and Karney, of the Cathedral and St. Joseph's church.

The Rev. Father Freel read a portion of the sixteenth chapter of St. Matthew, after which he preached a short sermon, which was listened to by the congregation with marked attention.

The edifice is constructed of wood and is quite plain. It is 116 feet long by 60 feet wide. The ceiling is neatly frescoed, and over the altar is a fine painting of the baptism of our Lord by St. John. An admission fee of fifty cents was taken at the door of the church.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH AT COLLEGE POINT.

The steamer Neversink left Peck slip yesterday morning for College Point and New Rochelle, with a goodly company of excursionists on board, comprising a fair sprinkling of Teutons. On arriving at College Point the majority of the passengers landed to take part in the dedication of a new Catholic church which has been erected in that village and dedicated to St. Fidelis. The services were highly impressive and attractive, and were participated in by upwards of five hundred persons. The day passed off without any accident, and in due time all were safely landed back in New York.

DEDICATION OF A CATHOLIC CHURCH AT FREEMANTOWN, N. J.

At half-past ten o'clock yesterday forenoon the new and handsome church of "Our Lady of the Valley," recently erected at Freemantown, N. J., was dedicated with appropriate and imposing ceremony. Many clergymen from the neighboring parishes were present. A collection was made at the close, and a handsome sum realized, which goes to liquidate the debt on the building.

THE JEWISH TEMPLE OF EMANUEL.

In compliance with the statute providing for an annual sale of the pews in the new Jewish Temple in Fifth avenue till all shall be disposed of, a sale took place yesterday, pursuant to a resolution of the Board of Trustees. It was, however, a pro forma sale, made merely to comply with the requirements of the law, it not being the wish of the corporation to dispose of the pews in fee at present. Only six or seven pews were sold, and most of these were the cheaper ones. One, however, sold as high as $4,300, and the others were knocked down at a much lower figure, some of them being as low as $300. The attendance was small, and the sale was adjourned as soon as it was thought the demands of the law were complied with.

THE HUMBOLDT MEMORIAL.

Rehearsal of the Singing Societies for the Centenary Celebration—A Jubilee in Prospect.

Yesterday forenoon, at the Germania Assembly Rooms, the Northeastern Saengerbund, of New York and vicinity, an association of thirty-three, and the Allgemeine Saengerbund, an association of eleven German singing societies, of this city, held their rehearsals of choruses to be sung at the Humboldt Festival. The first, under the direction of Herr Carl Anschutz, practised Mohr's "Jauchzend Erhebt Sich die Schöpfung;" the second, under the direction of Herr C. Kruger, Kretzschmar's "Geisterschlacht." About four hundred singers were present, but more than twice that number absented themselves to participate in an excursion arranged by some other societies. They will hold several rehearsals during the week, and to judge from the performances of those who were present yesterday the vocal part of the fest concert will be executed with remarkable force, precision and finish.

The delegates of the Northeastern Saengerbund having assembled, the President, Mr. Th. Heidenfeldt, introduced to them Professor Doremus, president; Mr. Hill, secretary, and Mr. Carl Bergmann, musical director of the Philharmonic Society, remarking that these gentlemen had come to make a proposition in regard to a musical festival, to be held next year in this city, on a scale far surpassing that of the Boston festival.

Professor Doremus said that Germany a century ago had produced two geniuses, the one Humboldt, whose anniversary we now propose to celebrate, and Beethoven, to whose memory the like tribute would be paid next year. The Philharmonic Society having the largest orchestra and musical resources generally, they were determined to celebrate Beethoven's hundredth birthday on a gigantic scale. With the Park Commissioners' leave the festival would be celebrated at the Park, and he invited the Saengerbund to take part in that celebration. Unfortunately Beethoven had been born in the wrong month for their purpose (December 17), in which it would be difficult to have a suitable building erected. The Beethoven festival would therefore take place during May or June, 1870.

Mr. Heidenfeldt having assured them that the Bund would favorably consider the matter the deputation retired.

A proposition to hold a "commers" or social gathering on the evening of the Humboldt festival was then discussed.

Mr. Richard Katzenmeyer moved to hold no such festivity, but a torchlight procession, to start at nine o'clock in the evening from Bowery to Fourteenth street, in order to give those singers who were not able to take part in the day's procession, or in the banquet in the evening, and also to other associations and the public generally, an opportunity of actively participating in the celebration of the Humboldt anniversary.

This motion was unanimously adopted, and a committee of arrangements, consisting of Messrs. Flick, Steffens, Münster, Fiatus and Deiker, appointed. The secretary, Mr. A. Bauhahn, was requested to direct a circular to the press of this city, expressing thanks for what the press had till now done in the matter, and requesting it to call on the public for a numerous participation in the torchlight procession. It was further resolved to notify the Philharmonic Society that their invitation would be accepted by the Northeastern Saengerbund. The meeting then adjourned.

EUROPE.

By the steamship Idaho, from Liverpool, at this port last night, we received our European files dated to the 19th of August. We have also our special correspondence, supplying the following interesting details of the news received by our cable telegrams, in addition to the mail report published in the Herald yesterday morning:—

At judges' chambers in London, August 16, an application was made on behalf of Mr. Grenville Murray to stay execution of the order obtained by Mr. Hughes at the Croyden Assizes. The application was made with a view to a new trial, and was supported by affidavits from two Paris physicians to the effect that since the 29th ult. Mr. Murray has not been in a condition to travel without danger to his life. On the payment of a sum into court to abide the event of a new trial the application was granted.

Another attempted military murder is reported from England. A private of the Twelfth regiment, irritated by some supposed grievance in reference to his hopes of promotion, took his rifle and was in the act of discharging it at a sergeant who had incurred his anger when he was seized by some of the bystanders and the weapon taken from him. After this he succeeded in escaping from his captors, procured another rifle, loaded it and was about to discharge it at the sergeant when he was again arrested.

In Rome a number of young ecclesiastical students who have been working hard to make themselves masters of stenography, having been appointed official reporters to the Council, are considered sufficiently perfect in the system to be allowed the vacation customary during the sultry season.

The physician of the Prussian Admiralty has proposed the adoption by all civilized States of a flag of distress to be used on every occasion, both in peace and war. It is suggested that the flag should be of a dark yellow color, with a red cross upon it.

Mr. Disraeli was present at a dinner at Alton Towers. The leader of her Majesty's opposition made a short speech proposing the health of the host and hostess, the Earl and Countess of Shrewsbury and Talbot; but he carefully eschewed politics. "There was no such thing," he said, "as politics in August."

At Croydon, England, the proprietors of the Echoes were defendants in an action for libel brought by Mr. Allington, a magistrate. The libel arose out of a police report of a case in which Mr. Allington was fined five pounds for an assault on a man named Whitehouse at the Prince of Wales' theatre. The Echoes, commenting on this assault, used terms in reference to Mr. Allington which, it was admitted, exceeded fair comment. Damages were laid at £500 and the jury found for the plaintiff in full.

At a court held by Vice Chancellor James, at Guildford, the publisher of the Poole Post appeared to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt of court, in consequence of some comments made in that paper upon the pending Tichborne baronetcy case. An apology was entered and accepted, but the respondent was ordered to pay the costs, and the Vice Chancellor gave notice that in future the full powers of the Court would, under similar circumstances, be exercised.

A letter from Paris, dated on the 15th of August, has the following:—

Yesterday the yacht Puebla conveyed twenty-five of the pupils of the St. Denis house of the Legion d'Honneur to St. Cloud, where these young ladies were entertained by her Majesty, who, having ascertained, when distributing the prizes at that establishment last week, that for various reasons they were prevented from spending their vacation with their families, kindly undertook their amusement for one day.

The London Record, speaking of the diary of the late Palmerston as in preparation at the hands of Sir Henry Bulwer, observes:—

The diary is said to be full of interest and distinguished by all the late Premier's finest characteristics. It commences when he was sixteen years of age, and it ends at the close of 1830, when he assumed office as Foreign Secretary. But at present no continuation of the diary has been found among his lordship's papers, and it has none of the attributes of a Boswellian record. It is replete with interest, modest, unaffected and simple, without an atom of gall or ill nature, but short and condensed, as if the style had been formed after the model of the sententious brevity of Tacitus. It seems to have been originally designed in its present form chiefly to explain why he left the tories and took office under the whig Earl Grey—a change which, according to Lord Palmerston's chivalrous sense of honor, could only be justified by the fact that he was himself deserted by the party when he was unseated for the University of Cambridge for voting in favor of Roman Catholic emancipation, although there had been an established compact, according to which that question was to have been an open one. The diary will explain that his long term of service as Secretary of War was not from the want of many overtures to accept higher offices.

A committee has been founded at Berlin for the establishment of a transatlantic cable to place Germany in communication with the United States without using any one of the three lines actually existing.

On the 17th of August, in London, an act of Parliament was issued to prohibit for a limited period the importation, and to restrict and regulate the carriage of nitro-glycerine save as mentioned. No person, after the passing of this act, is to bring into any port or harbor of the United Kingdom, or ship or unship in, from, or near the coasts of any port of the United Kingdom any nitro-glycerine: by act, in contravention of this judicia, the party is to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to be imprisoned for one year, and all nitro-glycerine to be brought into any port to be forfeited.

Metropolitan Reminiscences and Street Scenes in Dublin—Party Divisions—Pauperism—"Young Ireland" in Its Birth Place—A Public House Acquaintance—The Irish Church Bill in an Orange Point of View—British Legislation and Papal Policy.

DUBLIN, August 13, 1869.

On the south side of the river Liffey there is a district known as "The Liberty," as distinct in character as St. Giles, in London, is from upper Portland street, or the Quartier Latin in Paris is from le Boulevart des Italiens; but it is not so wicked as the former nor as elegant as the latter. To-day it is the most miserable of the many wretched streets in the city, but seventy years ago the click of a thousand shuttles vibrated through its humblest street, and the humming of spindles and bobbins was heard almost in every household as "the loud laugh," which Goldsmith tells us "proclaims the vacant mind," was heard responding to the joke and repartee of the busy artisans. But the union with England has broken the looms; the bobbins have ceased to hum; want and misery have taken up their station in every street, and vice and intoxication of the most repulsive and horrible aspect unite in the midst of unparalleled filth, brutality and ignorance. "The Liberty" remains, but its trade is no more; the people are sunk in ignorance—hope has left their hearts, and they live, in the majority of cases, upon the pittance of chance amid sorrow and bitterness, lewdness and dirt.

We can enter "The Liberty" by St. Patrick's cathedral—built by the Catholics, but confiscated by Protestant government in the interest of God and the Reformation—or by Meath street. Entering the latter, from one of the business thoroughfares, Thomas street, we are in a long street known as "the Coomb." At right angles there is a filthy place—Skinner's alley—considered, since William III. drove James II. over the Boyne, as the headquarters of the Dublin Orangemen. It is a dirty looking place, full of garbage, inhabited by the worst characters and unfortunate Protestant tradesmen who eke out a living by drudgery. Skinner's alley was not always as it is to-day. Forty years ago the bone and sinew of Dublin's Orangemen lived in it or its vicinity, and supported the public houses that furnished the admirers of "the glorious, pious and immortal memory" with usquebaugh, "cakes and ale," and XX of undoubted origin. When the college boys—the students of Trinity college—paraded around the equestrian statue of William III. the roughs from Skinner's alley were on hand to protect them from the angry Catholics, who often beat both so unmercifully that many were maimed for life.

Yesterday I visited Skinner's alley, but I took care to put my revolver in my pocket, leave my watch and change in my lodgings, and carry a stout stick that is almost fit to be entitled to shillelah honors. Up Meath street and into "the Coomb" hundreds of ragged, dirty children gambolled in the middle of the street and upon the sidewalks. Many of them had their hair so inextricably matted that it was disgusting to look at. Others, with filthy noses, had crusts of bread in their hands, but through the smutty veil that enveloped them from forehead to chin the exquisite white skin and rosy cheeks so peculiar to the children of Erin peeped out like half-ripe peaches through heavy foliage. Slatternly women gossipped with each other; babes squealed and urchins laughed boisterously at merry pranks; but Skinner's alley was at hand, where two women were engaged in a lingual altercation, that was put an end to by the interference of the prim policeman, who firmly ordered them to go home or he'd bring them to the station house. The belligerents moved away; one went up Skinner's alley, and the other continued walking up "the Coomb." It was with no love of adventure that I ventured my boot leather into the muck of the famed alley, but the public house was not far up, and I soon entered it, determined to find out how Orangedom in its den viewed the Irish Church bill. The door of the public house evidently has been a long time in use, as the lower part was plentifully indented with kicks and raps from nailed brogans, heavy sticks and all kinds of missiles used to "rap up" the barkeeper. The counter is high, but the stock was not very select. The taproom, to which I went after a hasty survey, was dingy but cosey; cobwebs had full possession of each corner; fly dirt speckled the ceiling and windows better than any painter could; a faded piece of red stuff, with a dozen holes in the centre, shut out the outer world from seeing the Symposium feasts of reason and flow of soul that may have taken place within. A few old lithographs in mahogany frames and a large colored likeness of William III. crossing the Boyne adorned the saffron-like walls. There was only one person inside when I entered. A long deal table, painted like a cheap coffin, extended almost the entire length of the room; forms, painted the same, flanked it; the fireplace was covered with a fancy screen—'twas a dreary place. The waiter brought me a pint of ale, half bitter, half mild.

Desirous of opening a conversation with the other occupant, I politely asked him if he was reading the Express or Irish Times. He raised his eyes and promptly answered me the Express. I blandly informed him that I would look over it when he was done. He very courteously handed it to me, remarking at the same time that there wasn't much news in it. The kind manner in which he said this prompted me to ask him if he would do me the favor of "taking a pint," as I intended to look over the paper and have a little chat with him about the news. A pint of ale soon made its appearance, and we were in the midst of a pleasant conversation when he abruptly asked, "Are you not an American, sir?" Before I answered him I took a sip of my ale and told him I was, after a pause. As his conversation was interesting and his manner frank I subjoin it:—

CORRESPONDENT—I'm an American; have come over to see your beautiful country and find out the opinion of all classes (Protestants and Catholics) about the important measure—the Irish Church bill—lately enacted in London and assented to by the Queen the moment it was presented to her.

UNKNOWN GUEST—Well, what is your opinion of the bill?

CORRESPONDENT—I have no particular opinion about English or Irish affairs; but, as an American, I don't believe in State churches at home or abroad; but every person is not of my opinion, and those who prefer them may be right or wrong.

UNKNOWN GUEST—I was born and reared in the Established Church, and have been taught to consider it as the anchor of Irish liberty; that it was upheld at great expense, I believe, but it enabled England to keep her friends in Ireland always on the alert against Popish plots, French invasions or Fenian insurrections. We were in the minority, 'tis true, but our Church was as legally established as that of England. If the Church of Ireland was wrong, was the Church of England right? Both were planted by Henry and that glorious woman, whose name is engraven upon every true Protestant heart, Queen Elizabeth, to purify religion, to preserve liberty.

CORRESPONDENT—Then you think the late legislation was unjust?

UNKNOWN GUEST—Unjust! Infamous and cruel towards the Protestants of Ireland, and will never be forgotten. Who asked for its abolition? Not the common people—not the aristocracy.

CORRESPONDENT—The spirit of the age is against State churches; the most enlightened statesmen of England have spoken against it. Thousands have written about its wealth, &c., but do you think that its abolition will have any influence upon the political, social or financial condition of the country? I see a spirit of fraternity in all the papers. I'm sure the Catholics would only be too happy to fraternize with their Protestant countrymen in forgetting the past.

UNKNOWN GUEST—It is a hard pill for a true Protestant to swallow—to unite with "a child of Rome," but I am not prepared to deny that many Protestants are not Orangemen.

CORRESPONDENT—Oh, yes. I forgot to ask you about them. How do they view the matter?

UNKNOWN GUEST—As I do; I'm one, but it's not much to boast of now. Many Orangemen hate England as bitterly as any Ribbonman. I am neutral, but observant.

CORRESPONDENT—Don't you think the intelligent Catholics sincerely attached to the Crown and government of England? Surely the Catholic bishops and clergy have done great service in denouncing Fenianism. Loyalty more eloquent could not be expressed by any Englishman than by the Catholic Bishop of Kerry, who stated that "eternity was not long enough nor hell hot enough for the Fenians."

UNKNOWN GUEST—The denunciations of the Romish priesthood against Fenianism were what any person of ordinary sense would expect. It is very easy to humbug men 3,000 miles away about invading Ireland, but any man living within the jurisdiction of these islands knows how absurd such an undertaking would be, and the Catholic priests are too wary to be caught by such bad chaff. I don't believe any Catholic is attached to the crown of England; there are many Orangemen, too, not very much in love with it now.

CORRESPONDENT—Do you think the Orangemen will forego their party processions in the future and be less offensive towards their fellow Catholic countrymen—feel more like Irishmen?

UNKNOWN GUEST—I can't tell; but I'm sure we won't shout for England as lustily as in the past. We always have loved Ireland, and I hope always will.

As he finished he raised his hat and made a sign or salute towards the colored likeness of William III. and kindly bade me good day.

Two other persons entered, who conversed sotto voce for a few minutes. I finished my pint, picked my steps to "the Coomb," went up to St. Patrick's church and thence home to dine and cogitate over the dismal forebodings of Orangedom in Dublin, the want and wretchedness in "The Liberty" and the sums spent by England in Borneo and Japan for the diffusion of the Gospel.

ROME.

An Italian Tragedy—Murder in a Railway Carriage—Preparations for the Council.

ROME, August 10, 1869.

A recent tragic event on the line from Naples to Rome forms the chief topic of conversation and comment just now. The express train which left Naples for Florence at a quarter-past eleven on Thursday evening arrived at the frontier station of Isoletta early on Friday morning, with the corpse of a lady, drenched in blood, stretched on the floor of a first class carriage, with a revolver by her side. The Italian police and military authorities at Isoletta made the minutest investigations among the other passengers in the train but without eliciting any satisfactory explanation of the sanguinary mystery, so that after a considerable delay the train was allowed to proceed and arrived in Rome an hour behind time. All sorts of conjectures were broached on the subject, but the true version has now revealed the name of the victim, the Countess Armanda Cattaneo, of Novara, in Piedmont, who was separated from her husband, and had been residing for a few days at the village of San Paolo, in the neighborhood of Nola, near Naples. The cavalry regiment, Victor Emanuel, being quartered at Nola, the Countess was visited by some of the officers, with whom she was acquainted, but from motives which it is superfluous to go into, she decided to leave the neighborhood of Naples and return to Piedmont. This determination seems to have greatly irritated an officer of the regiment named Negro, so that the lady, to avoid molestation, was escorted to the railway station at Naples by two other officers, named Viale and Veglio, and a Roman emigrant, Count Augusto Pandolf. These gentlemen, to insure the safety of the Countess, entered a first class carriage with her and accompanied her on her journey as far as Caserta, where they got out, leaving her alone, with the windows drawn up. Signor Negro, however, who had arrived in Naples the preceding morning with his troop, and had had, it is said, a violent altercation with the Countess at the Hotel de Génève, was also a passenger in the train, having presented himself at the station in plain clothes and taken a third class ticket. It is supposed that when the three gentlemen who had undertaken to see the Countess safely on her journey got out at Caserta, Negro, during a long run without any stoppage, got out of his carriage and, proceeding along the foot boards to the carriage in which the unfortunate lady was sole passenger, broke the window glass with his revolver and shot the Countess through the aperture, the bullet penetrating her eye and causing instantaneous death. The assassin is supposed to have taken refuge on Pontifical soil.

The Italian government has granted permission to travellers proceeding on the lines of the Roman Railway Company through the dominions of his Holiness from Central to Southern Italy, and vice versa, exemption from the usual custom house visit to their luggage at Narni and Isoletta.

The Pope, by a rescript of Cardinal Berardi, Minister of Commerce, has granted to the Roman Engineer, Signor Filippo Costa, the privilege of forming a company for the restoration of the ancient port of Ostia, and the construction of a railway thence to Rome. This scheme, if realized, would certainly afford this city a more direct communication with the sea than the present port of Civita Vecchia, but the latter enjoys the indisputable advantage of being already in practical existence, and in communication by rail with the capital.

The clerical journal, Unita Cattolica, states that the Marquis de Banneville, passing through Florence on his way from Rome to Paris, advised the Italian Prime Minister, Count Menabrea, to use more temperate language towards the Holy See, and to be more reserved with respect to the Council. The French Ambassador is said to have added the following remarks:—"All the governments of Europe are much more embarrassed than the Pontifical government, and we witness the undeniable fact that with time the Pope surmounts all difficulties." The Unita Cattolica then states that the Marquis proceeded from Florence to Turin to fulfil a mission to Victor Emanuel entrusted to him by the Emperor. Unfortunately for the correctness of all these details the Marquis de Banneville never visited Florence at all, but on leaving Rome ten days ago proceeded directly to Paris, as I reported, via Civita Vecchia and Marseilles, leaving the Viscount de Croy Chargé d'Affaires in his absence.

Monsignor Nardi left Rome for France on Friday evening. A solemn funeral service will be performed on the 12th at the Church of St. Salvatore in Lauro, by the prelates of the Pontifical family, for the repose of the soul of the Pope's elder brother, Count Gabriel Mastai.

The work of the Council Hall in St. Peter's is proceeding rapidly. The cardinals' seats are already visible at the extremity of the apse; the two lateral chapels, which will serve as supplements to the great Council Hall, are enclosed and the great hall is being enclosed also, eleven altars contained in its area being thus temporarily withdrawn from the public celebration of divine offices. The new design, besides being more grand and simple than the preceding one will also afford a saving in the execution of 10,000 scudi. The young ecclesiastical students selected to become stenographers of the debates in the Council have made such progress in that art that they have been allowed to suspend their studies during the vacation customary in the present hot season.

His Holiness has decided that a universal exhibition shall be held in Rome during the Council, to be opened to the public on the 1st of February next, and to remain so for four months. In order that this exhibition may have a character suitable to the Church it is to consist entirely of works of Christian art. Another artistical project connected with the Council is to have placed in the vast atrium of the Vatican Basilica the portraits in mosaic of all preceding Popes who have held Ecumenical Councils.

Cardinal Borromeo, who lives in the Altieri palace, proposes to open his noble saloons to the assembled bishops of Christendom during the duration of the Council. How to lodge so many prelates is already a matter of serious consideration. The Pope has taken many apartments in palaces at his own expense, so as to be able to offer hospitality to the most distinguished bishops, and one of these residences, in the Borgo Nuovo, is already occupied by the Austrian Bishop Fessler, appointed Secretary of the Council, who has arrived in Rome and is hard at work.

MUSICAL AND THEATRICAL NOTES.

Metropolitan theatres are, to a certain extent, the barometers of fashion. When the theatres at this season of the year are slimly attended it is safe to conclude that Dame Fashion and her votaries are "out of town;" but when, as has lately been the case in this city, the attendance at the various histrionic and lyric temples increases in point of numbers, it invariably follows that the gay birds of fashion, despite the continued heat, have begun to wing their way homeward from the seaside, springs and mountains. During the past week the theatrical barometer has risen to the mark indicating "large average attendance," which, by the by, is a point of managerial delight but seldom reached thus early in the season. Large audiences and attractive plays have been the rule at most of our theatres during the past six nights, nor is there any reason for believing that the public patronage will diminish in the slightest degree with the present week. The revival of old plays in many instances has been found sufficiently attractive to warrant managers to indulge still further in this line, while the endeavor to produce new ones of merit has met with a reciprocal appreciation from the playgoers of our community. The programmes, as a general thing, at most of our leading theatres, for the present week remain unchanged, but such new inducements and novelties as are offered by our amusement caterers will be found highly spiced with sensation, and will doubtless prove attractive.

At Booth's theatre Mr. Joseph Jefferson this evening enters upon the fifth week of his renowned impersonation of Rip Van Winkle, and there is every probability that he will continue to appear before the public in the same character during the continuance of his present engagement. The house is crowded every night from parquet to gallery, and the plaudits evoked from the audience by Mr. Jefferson in his artistic portrayal of the sufferings and escapades of poor old "Rip" are such as are but seldom bestowed in this city upon even great actors.

Mr. John E. Owens at Wallack's has met with an immense success in his two famous specialties, Solon Shingle, and Joshua Butterby, in "The Victims." These pieces, which will be repeated all this week, have never been brought out in better style in this country, nor has Mr. Owens in these characters ever shown to more advantage. With the termination of next week Mr. Owens' present engagement at this establishment comes to an end so that all those who desire to see him in these two popular characters, should avail themselves of the present opportunity.

"Play," with its superb scenery and magnificent cast, has reached its last week at the Fifth Avenue theatre. The piece, though light in construction, has met with a fair success, which is mainly attributable to certain alterations and improvements made in its dialogue and situations by Manager Daly. On Monday evening next the comedy of "Dreams," the joint work of Messrs. Boucicault and Robertson, will be produced at this house for the first time in this city.

"The Sea of Ice" this evening enters upon the second week of its success at the Grand Opera House. The piece has been handsomely placed upon the stage, and with such a favorite actress as Miss Lucille Western in the leading part cannot fail to prove attractive to the public and remunerative to the management. The patriotic drama of "Patrie" is now in active preparation and will be the next sensation at this gorgeous establishment.

At Niblo's Garden the "last nights" of "Arrah-na-Pogue" are announced, notwithstanding the fact that the drama is still attracting large audiences. Its last representation will be given on next Saturday evening, and on the following Monday Boucicault's latest sensation, "Formosa, or the Railroad to Ruin," will be produced at this theatre for the first time in this country. On Friday evening next Dan Bryant takes a benefit, upon which occasion he appears as Shaun in "Arrah-na-Pogue," and Handy Andy in the drama of that name.

Wood's Museum reopens for the fall and winter dramatic season this evening. The opening will be marked by a strong concentration of attraction. The theatre has been entirely redecorated in white and gold, and the auditorium fitted up with comfortable chairs and the old fashioned cushion sofas removed. Two additional private boxes have also been added to the parquet circle, and new matting has been laid down in the various saloons. One marked feature is the convenient space between the rows of seats, which now permits of an easy ingress and egress without crowding or confusion. The initial performance of the new season will be given this afternoon with the Zavistowski Sisters—Emeline, Alice and Christine—in the burlesque of "Masaniello" and the comedietta of the "Water Nymphs." In the evening the Rand Sisters—Oliva and Rosa—two new debutantes for metropolitan favors, will appear in "The Pearl of Savoy," supported by a strong stock company. Chang, the Chinese giant; Admiral Fisk, Jr., the diminutive dwarf, from Narraganset; the "Flying Gymnast," and thousands of other curiosities will remain on exhibition, as heretofore, in the museum department of this establishment.

The last week of the mirth-provoking pantomime of "Hiccory Diccory Dock" at the Olympic is also announced. This will finish American pantomime in this city for the present; but it is more than probable that Mr. Fox, with his face rechalked, will again tickle the town with his inimitable drollery in a new pantomime about Christmas tide. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with a strong cast and elaborate scenery, will be revived at the Olympic on next Monday evening.

The Bowery theatre will dazzle its patrons with two brilliant "stars" during the next six nights. Miss Mary Mitchell—sister of "Fanchon" Maggie—and Mr. John Albaugh are announced to appear this evening in the sensational dramas of "Eustache" and the "Hungarian Chief."

At the cosey Comique we are to have an English version of the French drama entitled "A Life's Revenge, or Two Loves for One Heart," with a splendid cast, and the comedietta of "The Good for Nothing," with Miss Lizzie Wilmore as Nan. With such an attractive programme the Comique is certain to be crowded.

Tammany is nightly jammed with the admirers of the ballet, the lovers of the acrobatic and the patrons of the marvellous. The spectacular "Queen of Hearts," with all its beauties, is still upon the bills, as is also the Sylvester illusionists and "Harry Gurr, the Man Fish." This last named individual is one of the greatest sensations that Tammany has yet had, and to see him disporting in his glass tank alone is worth double the price of admission charged to see the entire "show."

The Waverley theatre having established its popularity, its managers are determined that no effort on their part shall be spared to insure the continuance of its popularity. The Delevanti Brothers and Charley Pettingill have been added to the attractions for the present week.

Tony Pastor's Opera House this week will be resplendent with "stars" of the "varieties" order. Delehanty and Hengler will appear nightly in their song and dance specialties, besides which Tony himself, assisted by a strong varieties combination, will endeavor to delight the audience.

The San Francisco Minstrels, with all the old favorites and many new candidates for Ethiopian honors, inaugurate the season at their redecorated hall this evening, with new songs, new jokes, new dances, new acts and new eccentricities. Birch, Wambold, Bernard and Backus will be on hand to welcome their friends.

The Central Park Garden, with its delicious music and refreshing breezes, continues to receive the lion's share of public patronage. An excellent programme is offered for this evening.

The Worrell Sisters will favor the pious Brooklynites on Wednesday and Thursday next with the burlesques of "The Field of the Cloth of Gold" and "Lalla Rookh." They will be supported by a strong company.

At Hooley's Opera House, Brooklyn, minstrelsy is the loadstone that is attracting large and delighted audiences. For the present week, besides the usual amount of songs and dances, we are promised the laughable sketches of "Off for Cuba," "The Tempest," and "The Seedy Musician."

VEXATIOUS LAWSUIT SETTLED.—The Adams county (Iowa) Gazette states that the expensive and vexatious lawsuit pending in the Supreme Court of the United States between the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad Company and Fremont county, involving the title to over 13,000 acres of swamp land, has been compromised. The county pays the company four dollars per acre for the land, or over $50,000. Much of the land had been sold by the county to settlers who had improved it.

The statue of Cleopatra, recumbent, expiring from the sting of the asp, a fine bronze, has been placed in the reserved garden of the Tuileries in Paris.

THE GALLOWS.

Execution of James Warner, at Little Rock, for the Murder of Mrs. Stange.

[From the Little Rock Republican, August 20.]

On the morning of the 1st of August, 1868, our city was horrified at the announcement that a white woman had been found murdered on the road leading to the brickyard, near Fourche bridge, and was then lying in a pool of blood. The murdered woman proved to be the wife of Major Stange. Upon examination the facts elicited warranted the officers in searching for and arresting one James Warner as the individual who committed the brutal murder. Before the Coroner's jury the following facts were elicited:—

That Warner had been employed by Mr. Stange at his brickyard, and had been discharged therefrom the day of the murder; that Major Stange had given him an order on Mrs. Stange for balance of wages due him, one half to be paid in money and the other half in goods; that Warner had visited the store between five and six o'clock and taken pay as the order directed; that after night, about half-past seven o'clock, Warner (who was recognized by the little daughter of Major Stange) returned and told Mrs. Stange that her husband was sick from the effects of sunstroke, and requested her to come to the yard and bring the little girl and money from a little blue box to pay off some hands. Mrs. Stange told the little girl to remain and Warner to go on, that she would overtake him; but Warner said he would wait for her, and sat down outside the house on some logs. Mrs. Stange left soon after, never more to return, and was found next morning as above related. Money was found upon his person and about the house Warner occupied with his family. It was also shown that Mr. Stange had received several hundred dollars a few days before, and that it was in the "little blue box," and Mrs. Stange had taken it with her when she left the house. She had not been sent for, the word from her husband being used as a blind to induce her to start with the box.

Warner was held to answer the charge of murder, and the Grand Jury of last fall term of the Pulaski Circuit Court found a true bill of indictment, and he was found guilty of the crime charged, after a fair and impartial trial, at the spring term of said court. He had able counsel to defend him—Messrs. R. S. Gantt and George E. Dodge—who labored hard to save him from the gallows; but the jury brought in a verdict of guilty and he was sentenced to be hung on the 8th day of July. His counsel, however, appealed to the Supreme Court of the State, which court reviewed the evidence in the premises and confirmed the action of the court below. The day of execution passed before the decision of the higher court was rendered, and under the code of practice it became the duty of the Governor to fix the day of execution. Yesterday, August 19, was the day selected, and the Sheriff of the county and his deputies performed their duties in accordance with the law.

THE PRISONER IN HIS CELL.

By request we visited the prisoner again yesterday morning about nine o'clock. He protested his innocence of the crime charged, but said he was prepared to die. We wrote down the following statement, which he gave while laboring under great distress of mind:—

Said he was born in Elbert county, Ga., and when fifteen years of age was taken to Kansas, nine miles west of Fort Scott. Soon after was taken to Missouri and was brought to this State about the time the war broke out, and from Hot Springs county was taken to Texas by Wiley Patterson, for his owner, a Mr. Davis, and sold to Mr. Joplin. Being dissatisfied with his place, ran away and was hurrying to Missouri when he was captured by rebel soldiers; made his escape at night and crossed Spring river and hid in the bushes until day, and when making his way to a house to get something to eat was seen by one of the soldiers, who fired but missed him. Reaching the house he at first attempted to escape, but in going from one part of the house to the other met the soldier in the door, took his gun from and struck him three times on the head, killing him, as he afterwards learned; then got away and hired out to Lieutenant Wilber of the Third Missouri.

In concluding the statement, we give his own words:—That is the only crime I ever committed in my life. To-day I am accused of the death of Mrs. Stange, but I know nothing of her death and am willing to tell the last time I saw her. The evening she was killed I went to her store; she was talking to a soldier; handed her a note and spoke to her a second time before she paid any attention to me, and she said this is from my husband—part in money and part in trade. She asked me what I wanted. Told her I would take half in bacon and the other half in money. She took from a pocket in her dress a large pocketbook, attached to a chain, and said "Uncle, don't know as I can make the change." She paid me all but fifteen cents. I immediately left the store, when she said to call again when I wanted anything. This was on the last day of July, 1868, about six o'clock. During the time I was there the little girl was out doors cooking supper. I went home immediately after leaving her store, and went to church. I am innocent of her murder, though I am going to be hung, but am willing to go. My sufferings have been great, but are now about closed.

LAST WORDS FOR HIS WIFE.

"Tell my wife if she wants to see me again she must prepare for Heaven to meet me."

HIS GUILT.

He had no explanation to make regarding the occupation of his time on the night of the murder from half-past six o'clock until the time he was seen to enter the church, about nine o'clock. His wife also says he gave her a lot of money the morning after the murder, saying that he received it from a man who was keeping his money for him. She took the money, and putting two dollars of her own with it placed it where it was found. The evidence against him was positive, and, notwithstanding the able manner in which he was defended, not a doubt even was raised in the minds of the jury as to his guilt, and they rendered their verdict accordingly. No one doubted his guilt.

TO THE PLACE OF EXECUTION.

The hour approaching he was taken from the jail with his arms pinioned behind him, and taken to the place of execution, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Peyton and Rev. Mr. Brown. Arriving at the platform he mounted the stairs, not with that firm tread an innocent man would have done, and was placed on the trap door, with his face to the east. A cord was passed around his legs below the knees. He was dressed plainly but neatly; new pants, coat and shoes. Deputy Sheriff Vance read the order of the Court, and asked the prisoner if he had anything to say. He spoke a minute or two, but being out of hearing we could not catch his words. He made no further confession than he did to us in his cell. Rev. Mr. Brown offered a prayer in behalf of the doomed man. The prisoner exhibited considerable emotion, more of fear than anything, and said he was prepared to go.

THE FINALE.

Deputy Sheriff Vance adjusted the white cap on the head of the prisoner, and then fixed the fatal noose upon his neck. At a given signal the drop fell. There was a slight quivering of the body, the legs were drawn slightly upward, the form a little bent, and all was still. After dangling in the air fifteen minutes or more, and being pronounced dead by Dr. Haythornewaite, the body was lowered into the coffin and taken charge of for interment. Thus ended the execution, witnessed by over a thousand persons of all ages, colors and sexes.

MURDER OF WILLIAM LAKE, THE CIRCUS MANAGER.

Escape of the Assassin.

[From the St. Louis Democrat, August 27.]

The following letter, received yesterday evening, details another horrible crime, which, in cool atrocity, stands unparalleled, as no sufficiently exciting cause existed for even the retention of ordinary passion, much less for the execution of a murder so diabolical:—

SPRINGFIELD, MO., August 24, 1869.

EDITORS MISSOURI DEMOCRAT:—

Among the many crimes of violence which have occurred in Southwest Missouri within the month past is one which will be heard of with pain by many thousands of the people of the country. On last Saturday night (21st inst.), after the ring performance of Lake's circus had concluded at Granby, in Newton county, and the minstrels were about to begin, a man named Jacob Killyon was discovered concealed under the seats, endeavoring to avoid payment for admission to the concert. Mr. Lake put Killyon out of the canvas, and while doing so Killyon drew a revolver and endeavored to use it. The weapon was wrested from him, however, and he was ejected. After a short absence Killyon returned to the door of the pavilion, paid for admission and walked at once up to where Mr. Lake was conversing with two gentlemen of Granby, and, drawing another revolver, which he had borrowed for the purpose, shot Mr. Lake through the body, near the heart. Death ensued in a few minutes. In the excitement Killyon escaped and has not been arrested as yet. One thousand dollars reward is offered for his apprehension. Killyon is easily known by the following description:—He is twenty-four years old, slender, about six feet high (or rather over that), has light brown hair, red face and his right eye is so sunken in his head as to seem to be blind—possibly he is so—is much disfigured about that eye. He was a member of the Twenty-fourth Missouri Volunteers and lives about ten miles southeast of Granby.

From an extra of the Southwest Independent, issued at Granby on the 22d, we gather the further intelligence given below:—

After Killyon was put out it is said he made several threats that he would kill Lake if he could get a revolver. A few minutes after this Killyon came up to the doorkeeper, and, pulling out his wallet, remarked that "he was a quarrelsome man, and was willing to pay to go in." While he was in the act of paying Mr. Lake came out through the passageway towards the doorkeeper. As soon as Killyon saw him he slipped back among the crowd at the door. Just at this moment Deputy Marshal Bailey (who had heard that there had been a difficulty, and that a revolver had been drawn) came up from town and inquired "who had that revolver." Mr. Lake immediately replied that he "had it, and would deliver it up to-morrow morning to the proper authority." While they were talking Marshal Bailey and a Mr. Thompson were standing facing Mr. Lake, not three feet from him. Killyon approached from behind Thompson and throwing his revolver over Thompson's right shoulder, shot Mr. Lake, the ball entering about three inches above the right nipple, coursing apparently downward toward the heart. Mr. Lake staggered a few yards and then fell down on his hands and said, "My God, boys, I am killed—carry me home." He was immediately carried to his room in the Southwestern Hotel, but expired almost as soon as it was reached. At the moment the shot was fired a panic seemed to infect the bystanders, and they all scattered. Killyon immediately turned and ran. As he did so his foot caught in one of the guy ropes and threw him upon his face, and his revolver was accidentally discharged. He promptly jumped up and disappeared.

It seems utterly incomprehensible with bystanders about, and the Marshal looking on, with the desperado tumbling among the guy ropes, that he was allowed to escape. We can readily understand the excitement and horror following the deed among the good people of Granby. Funeral services were to be held on Monday by the Odd Fellows, of whom Mr. Lake was one. The reward of $1,000 is offered by Mrs. Agnes Lake, and we trust the inhuman scoundrel who did this deed will be speedily arrested. Mr. Lake was well known in St. Louis, where he has many friends.

MILITARY NOTES.

Major Meday, Lieutenant Colonel and Adjutant Fitzgerald and Captain George W. Smith, the committee on the Norwich testimonial proceeded to that city last week and presented it to the citizens, the Mayor representing them on the occasion. Major Meday made the presentation address and Mayor Blackstone replied in a neat little speech. The officers were then entertained by the Mayor and the several committees of reception as only Norwich folks know how.

The Forty-seventh regiment will proceed on their target excursion on the 8th proximo, to proceed via Long Island North Side Railroad to Little Neck. The same system of practice as adopted in the Twenty-second regiment will be observed. The Board of Officers have offered two gold medals, one for the best shot in the regiment and the other to be competed for by the officers themselves. The company medals, eight in number, are composed of silver, and are to be delivered to the best marksman in each company.

Company G, Seventy-first regiment N. G. S. N. Y., will leave on their excursion for Newport and Providence to-day. The company will leave their armory at five o'clock P. M., proceeding down Broadway to Murray street and thence to the Newport line of steamers, where they will embark for Newport, at which place they expect to arrive at five o'clock to-morrow morning. After getting breakfast they will be formally received by the Newport Artillery. After partaking of the hospitalities of the above command they will embark, at one o'clock, for Providence, at which place they expect to arrive at half-past three o'clock P. M. On their arrival at Providence they will be formally received by Colonel Jillson and Captain Dennis, with their respective commands. After parading through the principal streets they will be escorted to the quarters assigned to them. They will have a grand collation in the evening.

Company F, Forty-seventh regiment, have elected Captain Wm. H. Heathcote, of company G, Eighth regiment, as their captain. Captain Heathcote is an excellent officer.

The Twelfth regiment drum corps have issued a challenge to "any drum corps, or collection of eighteen drummers in the United States, to compete with them for the championship in the art of drum beating." Dry goods drummers should not get into a fire by answering this defi.

Lieutenant R. Kelly Styles, of company I, Twenty-second regiment, has been elected captain of company A. The Twenty-second will hold a full dress inspection at the armory next month.

Can there be any truth in the report that an effort is being made to induce General Meserole to come back to the Forty-seventh regiment and become its colonel? There doesn't seem to be a vacant colonelcy in the regiment just now. It does seem rather premature to talk about filling the place before it is vacant.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Keystone, juniors, defeated the Atlantic, juniors, at Prospect Park, with the score 25 to 15.

On Tuesday the Olympics and Gothams will play at Hoboken, and on Friday the Gotham and Eagle second nines will play at the same place.

Two bands of India rubber workers, one from Hastings and the other from Jersey City, played a "lively" game at Dobbs' Ferry on the 21st, in which the Jerseymen were defeated, with the score 24 to 19.

The Athletes want to play the return game with the Empires on Thursday next. The Empires say, if possible, they will accommodate.

The tournament given under the auspices of the Tecumseh Club of London, Canada, commenced on the 23d inst. The result of the first two days is as follows:—The first match began at three o'clock on Monday, between the Morning Stars and Wide Awakes, two newly organized clubs. There were some three hundred spectators present, and considerable interest was centred in the match, which was won by the Morning Stars after a close contest, by one run. On Tuesday the first match was between the Stars and Albions, which was concluded in eight innings, the score standing 67 to 24, in favor of the Stars. The second game of the day was between the O. K.'s and Beavers, and after occupying about five hours' time was declared for the Beavers—score, 79 and 62. The third game was between the Eries and Atlantics, and was won by the latter—52 to 22.

Speaking of the Empire-Union game of Tuesday last, a weekly journal—the reporter of which "was not present at the game"—says:—

This year the clubs have again come upon equal footing, the cause being not an advancement on the part of the Empires, but a retrogression on that of the Unions. It is a pity that this their first meeting, after so long an estrangement, did not call out the full playing strength of both clubs. Certainly, the Empires were weak-handed, and certainly they paid for their temerity in taking hold of the Unions. The Empire nine may have held the Unions for less than their worth, and if so, the result serves them right. But we do not believe this, but regard their appearance on the field to a disposition that they would rather be soundly thrashed than disappoint their old friends by not appearing at all. But, take the most partial view we can, the Empires cannot be held blameless. Amateur clubs will never thrive if the best players in the organization are to be absent as the rule and present as the exception.

With all due respect to the impartiality and judgment of the critic who has managed to "pic-cot" the objections and conclusions given above, it must be said that he has materially erred in several points. The cause of the "equal footing" is solely this:—That both clubs now play base ball for the sake of the game and for exercise, and make it secondary to business. The cause assigned by the "medium" quoted is certainly neither complimentary nor just to the clubs in question. The Empires have been steadily improving, and the fact that the Unions have dropped the professional balling is not an evidence of "retrogression," but of healthy advancement. The critic is decidedly right in his judgment as to the appearance of the Empires in the field in their "weak-handed" condition. But after that bit of blarney he gives a bad slap. The Empires when making the engagement did not know that three members of their nine would be so pressed with business that they could not be on hand, or that two more would be laid up with sickness and another so far from the city that he could not be here in time, and they positively assure the writer of the article quoted that if he will so arrange the business of amateur players that they may be present as a rule and absent as the exception that they will do their "level best" to make the organization thrive.

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT.

A Banquet Given Him by the San Francisco Union Club.

[From the San Francisco Alta-California, August 20.]

Last evening the members of the Union Club entertained Admiral Farragut, at their rooms in this city, and gave him a banquet, at which about fifty of their members were present. The dinner was got up in the club, and pronounced one of the best ever spread in this city, comprising every delicacy to be obtained on this coast.

Commodore Selim E. Woodworth presided, and after ample justice had been done to the good things on the table, introduced the guest whom the club desired to honor, in a neat little speech.

Admiral Farragut responded in a most happy strain, complimenting California on her growth since he was last here and was identified with her as one of her children. He alluded briefly to circumstances which called him away, and since the war, he said, his residence had been in New York city, because some kind friends had given him a house there, and invited him to make it his residence. But of one thing he wished to assure them, that like all persons who had ever visited the west coast, he had become attached to it. His heart was ever here, and he had made up his mind since that glorious achievement, the Pacific Railroad, was completed he should hereafter visit his old home in California once every year. He was listened to with marked attention and heartily cheered as he sat down.

The first toast given was, "Our guest, Admiral Farragut—Once lashed to the mast of victory, now made fast to the hearts of his countrymen."

General Frisbie proposed the health of the President of the United States, the great man who presides over this country.

The health of Queen Victoria was drunk, and responded to by Mr. Booker, her Majesty's Consul, in a few happy remarks.

Volunteer toasts were then declared in order, and Robert B. Swain was soon called out, who made quite a witty after-dinner speech, full of pleasing anecdotes. He wound up by saying he was but expressing the voice of the club and of the whole community, and of all the citizens of this republic, in paying our best respects to our great Admiral for his loyalty, success and great achievements, crowned in Mobile Bay by one of the greatest successes of modern warfare. He truly deserves the full expression of our highest estimation, and we all avail ourselves with pleasure of this pleasing opportunity of assuring him that his career has been closely watched, and he has ever been remembered at his old home on this side of the Rocky Mountains, and that no name in history shall be more inspiring to youth, or more talismanic to us all, than that which he has himself written so high on the immortal page of our national history—that of Farragut.

During the dinner a full band furnished operatic music, and between each toast appropriate airs were played.

In answer to a most flattering toast as a pioneer General Frisbie made a most fervid and eloquent speech, at first reviewing the early history of California and the many trials and vicissitudes through which we, as a State, had risen to our present high position, and reminded us that while we gloried over the general prosperity of to-day, we might well remember the hardships endured by those who founded this settlement in early days and prepared a way for the civilization of to-day. He then treated his hearers to a most graphic and interesting account, giving the history of the guest of the evening, painting it in the most beautiful language, tracing his career from the time he left California, through all the grand struggles of the war until its close, and showing how well placed had been the confidence of a government and a nation, who had confided to him its honor and its dearest hopes in the hour of its darkest perils. His speech was frequently interrupted with bursts of applause, and at the close Admiral Farragut was again loudly called for and responded, thanking the members of the club for the very handsome compliment which had been paid him.

The banquet lasted until a late hour, and we are much pleased that our leading men are showing the gallant Admiral those attentions which are his due, and which every sovereign of Europe has recently so freely accorded him.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SUNDAY, August 29, 1869.

The money market during the past week was easier than during the preceding week, despite the fact that we are nigh the season when the customary drain of funds takes place to the West and South to move the corn and cotton crops. The banks have lost but a trifling amount in legal tenders, but the amount sent in national currency is not easily ascertained, except through an analysis of the item of deposits. The fact is, the city has been largely supplied with money during the summer, and capitalists have manifested an indifference about employing their funds on other than call loans. Hence we find the rate of discount on commercial paper ranging from nine per cent upwards, while the street rate for money has been only five to six and seven. Again the crops are reported two weeks behind hand, while the cotton receipts have been small. The demand will come with all the more force for the present deferment, but it remains to be seen whether the city will not be able to meet it, and yet leave an abundance for our local wants. Wall street always discounts the future. This tendency is witnessed in the engagements which are being made every day for time loans on stocks and other collaterals for periods of thirty and sixty days. There is more than usual for use on call. Of course the supply is not what it was a year ago, when the rate had fallen to three and four per cent, but it was large in comparison with the spring months. Without an increase of the circulation by the government or the sanction of additional national banks our city can never hope to return to the abundant supply of the years immediately succeeding the war. The building of the Pacific Railroad, the growth of new towns and enterprises in the West, the revival and expenditure of the cotton growing interest in the South, and the thousand and one other undertakings wherein capital has sought investment with the return of peace to the country, have disseminated the currency wide and far over the whole land. Millions have thus gone away which will never return. Such is the situation in which the metropolis finds herself at the beginning of the fall season of 1869. The character of the activity that will attend the money market during the ensuing two or three months is therefore an interesting problem. As to the amount required for moving the crops the calculations thereof should take into consideration the fact that if the crops are more abundant this year the price of corn and wheat is nearly fifty per cent less than last year. The yield of cotton is expected to be much larger, perhaps by half a million of bales, and the price is higher, owing to the failure of foreign marts to obtain their supply of the staple from other sources than the United States, and owing also to the increasing home consumption in our manufactories. Will the requirements of this increase in the amount and price of cotton offset the decrease in the value of the Western crops? Wall street is not very apprehensive of stringency. Among stock houses, with whom the demand is so constant, the disposition is to make preparation for the fall activity by time loans. If this movement become general the period will pass without the spasms so usual at the season. There were during the week faint currents in the local market depending on the changes in the quotations of stocks, and under the "bullish" feeling of Wednesday and Thursday the rate on call was six to seven per cent, with a good many transactions at the higher figure. The bank statement is not a favorable one, but still is fair for the time of year. The shipments of currency during the week were light, and the decrease in legal tenders only a little over a quarter of a million of dollars. The least flattering item is the decrease of two and a quarter millions in specie, accounted for by the customs payments and by the transfer of gold on California account. The loans have been contracted one and three-quarter millions, and the deposits have fallen off three and a quarter millions. The following are the last two statements contrasted:—

	August 21.	August 28.
Loans	$262,741,133	$261,012,109
Specie	21,594,510	19,469,102
Circulation	34,028,104	33,999,742
Deposits	192,024,546	188,754,539
Legal tenders	53,070,831	52,792,834

The changes in the respective items are as follows:—

Decrease in loans	$1,729,024
Decrease in specie	2,125,408
Decrease in circulation	28,362
Decrease in deposits	3,270,007
Decrease in legal tenders	277,997

The decrease in the amount held by the banks in excess of the legal reserve is $1,578,813. The total excess is now $16,573,366.

The ease in money and the firmness of the gold market made government bonds very strong, the improvement during the week being quite perceptible in some of the issues. The decline in gold in the previous week rendered the market unsettled at the opening, but the scarcity of bonds and the purchases by the Treasury soon obviated the feeling which this fact produced, especially as the tendency of gold was also to higher figures. The investment demand ran largely on the six per cent currencies and the ten-forties, which, from the rapid advance in five-twenties, have attracted more general attention and came quite largely from savings banks and other banking and trust institutions to whom it was urged that the next Congress will doubtless do something toward a reduction of the national debt. The funded debt at this time amounts in round numbers to $2,160,000,000. Of this sum the greater part ($1,886,000,000) bears six per cent gold interest. Of the remainder, $221,000,000 bear five per cent gold interest, and about $60,000,000 bear six per cent currency interest. Of the first named, or six per cent gold-bearing debt, no less than $1,600,000,000, or three fourths of the whole, consist of the several issues of five-twenties. The right to pay off the principal has already matured upon the whole of the five-twenty issues of 1862 and 1864, amounting to $640,000,000, or more than a third of the whole, while the right to retire the remaining series will mature in 1870, 1872 and 1873, respectively. In a similar way the right to redeem the $200,000,000 of five per cent ten-forties will belong to the government in 1874. On Saturday governments at the opening were "off" from the highest figures of the week, in consequence of the contradictory and distracting reports of financial matters in Europe, where United States securities were variously quoted. With the strength in gold and the real scarcity of bonds in the home market prices recovered and closed firm, as follows:—United States sixes, 1881, registered, 123 a 123¼; do. do., coupon, 123 a 123¼; do. five-twenties, registered, 121¾ a 122; do. do., coupon, 1862, 123 a 123¼; do. do., coupon, 1864, 122 a 122¼; do. do., coupon, 1865, 122 a 122¼; do. do., coupon, new, 1865, 120¾ a 120⅞; do. do., coupon, 1867, 121 a 121¼; do. do., coupon, 1868, 120¾ a 120⅞; do. ten-forties, registered, 111¼ a 111⅜; do. do., coupon, 115 a 115¼; currency bonds, 110¼ a 110⅜.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of operations was in the Gold Room, where the transactions were on an enormous scale, owing to a desperate and determined fight between the "outside," or stock cliques, who are "bulls" in gold, and the "regular" gold operators, who are short of the precious metal. The highly flattering character of the cotton reports from the South started the "bear" movement which carried the price down to 131¼ week before last. The stock cliques came upon the market to profit by the usual reaction, which they turned into a decided upward movement—the price on Saturday reaching 134½. Gold is a very peculiar commodity when handled in Wall street. It takes a long time to get it down one or two per cent, but it will go up the same amount on very short notice. The "bulls" have fought all the natural tendencies of the hour. The accident of some derangement in Napoleon's health helped them in the latter part of the week. Another lucky event of some kind may help them next week, but the old, shrewd "bears" who possess pluck and margin enough to stand a long siege, are selling them all the gold they will take, confident that a few weeks hence, with the new cotton crop and the marketing of the Western crops, gold will go down with a rush. The ensuing week bids fair to be a lively one in the Gold Room, for at the close on Saturday night there was an ominous lull in the battle, the price standing at 134, at which point both parties were entrenching for the renewal of hostilities on Monday morning. The range in the market during the week is shown in the table:—

	Highest.	Lowest.
Monday	132¾	131¼
Tuesday	133	132½
Wednesday	133¾	132¼
Thursday	134	132¾
Friday	134	133
Saturday	134½	133¾

Foreign exchange closed weak, owing to the light demand for bills. Sight sterling was quoted at 109¾ a 110, and sixty days at 109¼ a 109½.

Southern securities were dull and without special interest or feature.

While the stock market was in the main dull as to the number of transactions, prices were irregular and fluctuations quite frequent. The "bearish" feeling was strong at the opening, owing to the previous unfavorable bank statement, but gave way to a "bull" movement in the middle of the week, arising out of heavy purchases of New York Central and Hudson River, based on expectations that the consolidation scheme was near at hand. Erie now came upon the carpet on the discovery that the Lake Shore line had chosen its line for the through route between New York and Chicago, and considerable excitement prevailed in consequence. At the same time New York Central led in a downward movement and the general list sympathized. At the close of the week the bank statement caused a reaction, and prices were better. In the miscellaneous railways New Jersey Central and Pittsburg were the features for their great activity. The following were the closing street prices Saturday evening:—Cumberland, 35; Adams Express, 56 a 58; Wells Fargo Express, 19 a 21; American Express, 35½ a 37; United States Express, 63 a 64; Merchants' Union Express, 10½ bid; Canton, 58 a 60; Pacific Mail, 80⅝ a 80¾; Mariposa, 7 a 8½; do. preferred, 12 a 15; Western Union Telegraph, 37 a 37¼; New York Central, 201⅛ a 201¼; Erie, 33, a 33¼; do. preferred, 55 a 56½; Hudson River, 184¾ a 185; Harlem, 161 a 162; Reading, 95⅜ a 95½; Milwaukee and St. Paul, 79⅜ a 79½; do. preferred, 87½ a 87¾; Toledo, Wabash and Western, 82¾ bid; Fort Wayne, 88¾ a 89⅛; Ohio and Mississippi, 32⅝ a 32¾; Michigan Central, 128½ a 130; Michigan Southern, 106⅛ a 106¼; Illinois Central, 127¼ bid; Cleveland and Pittsburg, 107 a 107¼; Rock Island, 114⅜ a 114½; Northwestern, 84½ a 84¾; do. preferred, 95¼ a 95½.

On Tuesday last Fort Wayne was quoted ex dividend, the books of the company then closing for the purpose of calling in the old stock, amounting to $11,500,000, and issuing therefor new certificates to the extent of $19,714,285, to be guaranteed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. By the terms of the lease of this road to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company the latter company agree to pay an annual rental, for the term of 999 years, of $1,380,000, in quarterly instalments of $345,000 each, viz., on the 1st days of April, July, October and January, this amount to be paid to the stockholders of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company, free of government or State taxes or any other liability or encumbrance. The rental capitalized equals the sum for which the new certificates are to be issued, and upon these certificates regular quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent, free of government tax, are to be paid.

THE COTTON CROP.

Three Million Bales.

[From the New Orleans Picayune, August 25.]

We see that the Northern papers estimate the cotton crop of this season at the above figures, and that at twenty-five cents per pound, which it is supposed it will sell for and not less, the South will receive $300,000,000. We believe that there is cotton growing sufficient to make 3,000,000 bales, but the question is can it be picked and sent to the market. The calculation is this:—It takes one hand to make four bales, and of course, 750,000 laborers to make 3,000,000. We have not that number of field hands, and when we deduct the laborers necessary to cultivate sugar, rice, tobacco, corn and wheat, and deduct also the population of the cities, towns and villages, it will be seen that we are short of the labor necessary to secure 3,000,000 bales. With more labor the South can supply the world with cotton. Efforts are making to induce immigration this way; but we are not sure that any considerable number from Europe will come here to cultivate the soil. The only country where we can look for any material increase of laborers is China. An experiment will be made next season to cultivate cotton with Chinese laborers, and if it should be a successful one the increase then in the production of cotton in the South will be great enough to supply the demand, and cotton raising in other countries will be abandoned. We hope we may secure 3,000,000 bales, but fear there is not sufficient labor to secure that amount.

SINGULAR FATALITY IN A JUDGESHIP.—The first judicial appointment that came under Mr. Grant's administration—that to the United States District Court for the district of Indiana—would seem to be a fatal one, for four incumbents of the position have died within a few years, and three of them within a very short time after their appointment. Judge Elisha Huntington was on the bench at the time of Mr. Lincoln's inauguration, but died early in his administration. Mr. Lincoln then appointed Caleb B. Smith to the vacancy, because Mrs. Lincoln had insisted that this gentleman, who was Secretary of the Interior, should be driven out of the Cabinet. Upon Judge Smith's demise Albert S. White, formerly member of Congress from Lafayette, received the appointment, but he lived to enjoy the position only a very short time. Then Judge David McDonald, the lately deceased incumbent, was elevated to the bench.—Chicago Times, August 27.

SUNDAY RECREATIONS.

The Weekly Hegira from Bricks and Mortar in Quest of Fresh Air and Landscape Scenery—Paddle-Wheeling After Pleasure—Excursions to Coney Island, Rockaway, Fort Lee, Newburg, Fishing Banks, Glen Cove, &c.

Yonkers, West Point, Cold Spring and Newburg.

The inducements held out to excursionists yesterday were not very great. The day broke dull and threatening and at eight o'clock there was every appearance of rain. Despite the would-be weather-wise, however, and perhaps reflecting that but a few more Sundays remain for summer jaunts, the number of persons starting for various points yesterday morning was something extraordinary. One of the pleasantest excursions was that in the steamer Sleepy Hollow to Newburg, and touching at Yonkers, West Point, and Cold Spring en route. The boat started from the Fulton ferry, Brooklyn, at eight A. M., having then on board some 200 persons. At the Christopher street pier about the same number got on board, while at Thirty-fourth street, North river, over 500 persons were taken up, filling the boat, and making a rather uncomfortable crowd. The excursionists belonged to the middle and higher classes of New York society. All were well dressed; pretty girls were by no means scarce, and, barring a little squeezing, everything went on swimmingly. The unexpected number of travellers put the resources of the boat to a severe test. Indeed, before reaching West Point the restaurant contained nothing but empty plates, and forty quarts of ice cream had but a short existence. An absence of the "rowdy" element made things go on very smoothly, and as none of those abominations, itinerant musicians, desecrated the lovely scenery and tortured one's ears, full and ample opportunity was given to admire the different points of interest on the way. The number of excursion boats, yachts and other pleasure craft was something prodigious. At Yonkers the boat was eased a little, about one hundred people disembarking, and at West Point the boat began to be quite enjoyable. The run to Newburg was safely accomplished, and nobody arrived there a minute too soon, as a perfect famine reigned on board, and a good dinner was the first thing thought of.

Newburg is a charming place, and full opportunity of inspecting the environs was given us, the boat stopping there two hours. The return home was, perhaps, the most enjoyable part of all, specially so after leaving West Point. The combined effects of water, verdure, hill and dale and foliage hereabouts are unequalled. It was dusk ere we touched at Thirty-fourth street, and quite dark before landing at Brooklyn, but no accident, brawl or misbehavior marred the day's pleasure.

Fort Lee and the Palisades.

The fast little steamer Thomas E. Hulse made four trips to Pleasant Valley and Fort Lee yesterday, taking some 1,500 persons. The fare being within the reach of all it may be imagined that the company was not very select, but what was wanting in selectness was made up in hilarity and genuine enjoyment. As usual a "band" was on board and dancing was much indulged in. Oyster stews, chowder, lager and liquors were greatly in demand, and there is no doubt the venders did a roaring trade.

About one-third of the passengers got off at Pleasant Valley, the remainder going on to Fort Lee. The latter is a horrible place on a Sunday to heads of well regulated homes, but the best within a short distance of New York for the gavroches of Gotham to amuse themselves at. The usual bear-play and meaningless—to ordinary mortals—repartees were in vogue; but, with the exception of a muss, which was over in half a minute, at Fort Lee, between a German and a rather too boisterous New Yorker, in which the Teuton had his shirt collar crumpled and an ugly bump on the forehead, nothing occurred of note.

The return boats during the day were comparatively empty, but the two last trips from Fort Lee were made under difficulties. Indeed, the last boat was so crammed that it was a mercy no one was missed, as every inch of plank or rail was occupied. A canard was gotten up by a would-be sensationalist to the effect that a man had fallen overboard, but no possible foundation could be found for the rumor, and no witness of the accident but the person in question.

The Navesink Highlands—Pleasure Bay and Red Bank.

There are but few cities on the globe that can in any manner compare with New York in its beautiful environs. Paris, London, Vienna and Berlin have each their resorts of pleasure, but in natural scenery and the beauty of her surrounding villas the great metropolis has no equal. Sunday being the only day of the week in which the tired thousands of this great city can enjoy themselves they naturally cast about for a locality in which they can best spend their time.

Yesterday the swift little steamer Sea Bird, which plies between the different ports on the bay and Long Branch, started on a cruise among the points of interest in the bay, her terminus being Red Bank.

Although the weather was not favorable during the early part of the forenoon, her decks and cabin were completely packed with humanity of every age and sex bent on enjoying the sea breeze and a pleasant sail. At the early hour of seven o'clock her moorings were cast off at pier No. 4 North river, and she sped on her way towards Red Bank and Long Branch. After having been under way for about an hour the dark clouds which had overcast the sky during the morning cleared away and the sun lent its brilliancy to the scene, and one and all were gladdened by its pleasant beams. Sandy Hook, with its bleak, barren shore, was the first landing place, and a number of the excursionists, with hook and line, got off for a fishing spell until the return of the boat in the afternoon. Fort Washington, Fair Haven, Locust Point, Brown's Dock were passed, and Red Bank was reached at one o'clock, where the majority of the passengers got off, the larger portion of whom embarked in the steamer Helen for Long Branch. At two o'clock P. M. the signal for departure was given, and, the excursionists all aboard, the steamer wended her way homeward. Everything passed off pleasantly and nothing occurred to disturb the good feeling that prevailed among all until the steamer had almost reached the city. While passing through the Narrows an old gentleman in the company of several members of the Neptune Club, while sitting quietly chatting with his friends in the forecastle, was attacked by a "rough," who accused him with having appropriated his chair. The old party resisted manfully, and by a well directed blow sent his assailant sprawling on the deck, when several others interfered and the "muss" was ended.

At five o'clock the Sea Bird concluded her voyage and landed her passengers at Warren street.

Glen Cove.

The steamer T. V. Arrowsmith left her wharf at Peck slip yesterday morning at nine o'clock with a tolerably fair proportion of live freight en route for the various places of interest and pleasure on the banks of the East river and Long Island shore. The threatening aspect which the clouds wore contributed materially to diminish the number of those who usually take advantage of the Sunday excursions of this boat to refresh themselves after a hard week's work and recruit for the one to come. The complement was, however, pretty well obtained on the arrival of the boat at Thirty-seventh street, where a host of ladies and their escorts were anxiously waiting.

To strangers visiting the city and vicinity a trip on the East river will amply repay the time and expense involved; for, though by no means so grand as the Hudson, its shores are quite picturesque and in some places exceedingly beautiful. Steaming rapidly up the river, gliding swiftly and without apparent effort past yachts, sloops, schooners and innumerable small craft which throng the river on Sunday, we catch a glimpse of the Morgan and Novelty Iron Works, which "Mr. Curiosibhoy," Parsee of Apollo street, Bombay, so frequently mentions in his letters of inquiry to "Greeley, sahib," in reference to the protective tariff. Beyond these Blackwell's Island looms up, and soon we come within full view of the numerous sanitary and criminal institutions thereon. The sight is very fine, and is, without further inducement, well worthy the cost of the trip.

Proceeding toward our destination we sail through Hell Gate, pass Fort Schuyler at Throgg's Point and the unfinished work at Willets', and emerge into the waters of Long Island Sound, a short distance up which are to be seen Sands' Point and Execution lighthouses. Bowling right speedily up the Sound, stopping occasionally to deposit and receive passengers, the Arrowsmith reached Glen Cove, where the majority of the persons aboard disembarked to ramble among the groves and glens till the return of the boat from Roslyn, the terminus, in the afternoon. At Glen Cove the steam yacht belonging to the wealthy Englishman, Mr. Cunard, was festooned with the flags of the United Kingdom, in honor evidently of the Oxford victory on the Thames. Above Glen Cove, and the last station till we get to Roslyn, is Glenwood, a quiet little place, where is to be seen the residence of Mr. Clapham, nestled away very snugly among the thick foliage, and only showing a painted dome and spire looking like the minaret of a mosque. Getting a side view we perceive an elegant Mansard roof, cunning little windows and doors, all elegantly finished, and recognize the fact that there must have been a great outlay to accomplish such results.

At last we get to Roslyn, and there, just beyond the water willows, and nearly hidden by the trees, is the residence of William Cullen Bryant. Strolling around the winding road encompassing his domain, one becomes absorbed in contemplation of the absolute aspect of repose everything wears. The lake, the swans on the lake, everything animate and inanimate, seems to slumber, and no sound is heard save, at intervals, the almost inaudible vaunting cry of some far-off chanticleer. The silence is almost oppressive, but it enthrals one and awakens a yearning—oh, how longing!—to live and die in such a place. But such things are only for the chosen few, of which we are more forcibly reminded by the steam whistle of the Arrowsmith summoning the dilatory to come aboard and return to the toil and turmoil of the city.

Coney Island.

The stillness of the Sabbath morning is broken—not so much by the sound of the church or Sunday school bell as the "Toot, toot, toot," of the steam whistles announcing to the pleasure seeker that steamers and accommodation trains are waiting in every direction to bear the denizens of the pent-up city to "green fields and pastures new." That is a pretty good joke on Coney Island, whither we in imagination desire to transport the reader; for if there is a bleak, barren, unattractive place to be found it is Coney. But before eating your hare always catch him; and before discussing Coney and its merits let us get there. The trouble of a Sunday morning is not "How shall I go?" but "Where shall I go?" Hurrying to the piers, one meets a boat filled with pleasure seekers, and she is bound up the Hudson. Another has just as big a crowd on board for the Sound, and steamers are loading in every direction with their living freight bound for "down the bay" and a hundred other places. Take the Coney Island steamer that leaves several points in New York and Brooklyn every hour. If you take the early boat you get among a pretty respectable class of people. The roughs have not yet awakened from the previous night's debauch. The boat shoves out into the stream, and, as she passes Castle William, you look over her stern and you see half a dozen other steamers coming after her, all of them black with people. Little sailboats scud out from shore in every direction. The beautiful yacht, with its select party on board, spreads its white wings to the morning breeze, and the very waves seem to laugh and skip and kiss in glee. As the boat progresses down the Narrows new objects of interest open upon the vision at every turn. On your left, lying quietly at anchor in Gowanus Bay, is the little fleet of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, that lately attracted a crowd of admirers to their regatta. Further down, Bay Ridge, having left the quiet slope of Greenwood behind; and here the beautiful appearance of the landscape, the handsome residences of the inhabitants and the grassy lawns and beautiful groves elicit bursts of admiration. Still further along the gloomy, forbidding walls of "the American Bastile," Fort Lafayette, but recently made more hideous in their historical deformity by being made the prison of the patriotic Cubans, loom up out of the water, and on the shore, hanging frowning over the whole, are the bristling ramparts of Fort Hamilton—these latter filled with visitors that have gone down in the Bay Ridge boat and the horse cars. There! That horse car arrangement rather knocks some of the romance out of that sentence. But to proceed. On the opposite shore, on Staten Island, lying down close to the water's edge, is the stone citadel known as Fort Richmond, and above it, on the hill, is Fort Wadsworth. Let your eye wander around you in every direction. Behind and alongside are steamers with their living freight plunging and groaning amid the waves, each endeavoring to show the "cleanest pair of heels," to make use of turf parlance. The crowds on each are cheering and waving their handkerchiefs, while on one they had so far forgotten the day as to have taken on board the goddess Terpsichore, and saltatory exercise was the order. The sails that before studded the bosom of the water by dozens have now increased to hundreds, and there is not a point of the compass to which a fleet of sail is not pointed. Here a long line of fore and aft schooners are proceeding quietly and orderly out to sea, looking as dignified as an array of matrons in white aprons, while ever and anon, like children at play, the saucy yacht or sailboat, in its holiday rig, dashes impudently across the bows or under the sterns of their more staid consorts. As the approach to the Coney Island pier is made a general scattering takes place among the craft. Some turn off to the right, heading for the Horse Shoe, Raritan Bay, Neversink and the Quarantine. At this latter place, having dropped anchor and all hands having betaken themselves to their fishing lines, the Coney Islanders will leave them and look after their own affairs a little more closely. The pier is reached, and the crowd begin to disembark, closely scrutinized by half a dozen police officers, who having seen all hands ashore, and being satisfied that they are all law-abiding citizens, quickly place themselves in the rear, and the procession takes up its line of march along a road made of sand, chopped straw and clam shells, the sand being the only original thing there. A couple of hundred yards from the boat landing is a structure that some one has been flattered into the belief is a hotel, and so it is called. Around it the barren sand hummocks are lying in the wildest confusion. The aboriginal inhabitants of these hummocks appear to be the sand martin, called by the Islanders "swallows" probably from the fact that people are expected to swallow all they hear, but not all they see, for if the information gathered from a solitary police officer, who appeared nothing loath to communicate his knowledge of affairs in that locality be true, it would cost a pretty penny to sit down to an ordinary meal in that same "hostelrie." Stripping his information of its colloquial character, and putting it in narrative shape, he, in effect, said:—"I have been detailed here nearly every Sunday, for many years, my position being in the Brooklyn courts, and I have seen Coney Island in its best and its worst phases. There was a time when it had a good character, but that was long ago, although I believe in proper hands it would have again. You see this part of the island belongs to the village of Gravesend, and it farms out this portion of it to the man who keeps this hotel. He won't improve it, and he has but one idea, and that is to make money, but he goes to work the wrong way. Now, just look at all those people, and tell me why it is that they are all lugging heavy baskets? Why, it is just because he charges so high for everything that nobody will buy from him, and they all bring their dinners with them. He tried to keep people from bringing their own bathing clothes with them just so that they would have to hire bathing clothes here at thirty cents each; but Inspector Folk soon took that flea out of his ear. There are ten of us officers stationed here every Sunday, and this season we have kept things pretty quiet, though I have seen things hot here when Jess Allen and his crowd were here. I have seen that barroom crowded with women and children taking their meals, and have seen that Allen crowd go in with their pistols and clear it out in less than a minute. All that is wanted here, sir, is proper management." And thus his tongue ran on.

The usual number of bathers, numbering at this point not over one hundred, were in the surf with their uncouth, awkward dresses on, making them look like frights, but all enjoying themselves. In reference to Coney Island one more word will suffice. Go early and return early, and you will avoid the rough crowd. Take with you everything you require for the outer and the inner man and you will not be fleeced. Take either of the three lines, steamboat or car, and now a long farewell, Coney.

The Fishing Banks.

Yesterday morning at eight o'clock the steamer Wyoming left Peck slip (pier 24 East river) for the fishing banks. She had previously touched at North Eighth street, Williamsburg, and Eighth street, East river. The passengers she received from these places, together with those from Peck slip and pier No. 4 North river (at which place she called before proceeding on her trip), gave her deck quite a presentable appearance, but by no means such as could reasonably have been expected had it not been for the rain of the night preceding, which doubtless deterred many from venturing on the water.

These Sunday excursions are peculiarly enjoyable, especially to the masses, who are unable to devote any of the six days of labor to the recreation they so much need, as indicated by the pallid countenance and want of animation consequent upon the close confinement of the workshops and the impure air of the city.

Schiebel's brass band was on board and discoursed sweet strains to the amateur fishermen, contributing greatly to the pleasure of the party and imparting a zest to the somewhat monotonous pastime in which they were engaged. Refreshments, bait, lines, &c., were on board, and it was only necessary to get on the steamer (with the indispensable commodity, the same hue as Erin's flag, to be sure,) without the disagreeable necessity of providing for one's self the minutiæ incidental to such occasions, which detracts so much from the anticipations of enjoyment to be armed cap-a-pie for piscatorial encounters.

Arrived at the fishing banks, hooks were adjusted more securely, bait distributed, lines hurled seaward, and thenceforth, till the time for returning, fish of all kinds, sizes, colors and shapes were jerked from their element to satisfy the thirst for sport and appetite for themselves which the voyageurs had imbibed with the salt sea air—and perhaps with a fluid which sometimes renders its devotees, involuntarily, a species of fish (though they be at the same time fishers)—for they certainly live when "half-seas over."

The Wyoming returned to the city at sundown. Thorough satisfaction seems to have been given to the excursionists, and they will doubtless avail themselves of the earliest opportunity to again participate in the sport of yesterday.

Rockaway and the Seaside.

Among the many places of resort for the countless thousands of the tired humanity of New York is the little quiet nook Rockaway, pleasantly ensconced on the Long Island shore, well known to all denizens of Gotham. Yesterday morning hundreds availed themselves of a pleasant sail to that point in the steamer H. M. Cool, which plies regularly to that point. At nine o'clock, sharp, the ponderous engines of the steamer began slowly to show signs of life, and in a few minutes the vessel, with its living freight of pleasure seekers, turned her prow seaward and started on her course like an antelope. It has been a notable fact that the numerous boats that ply on the different courses during the present season have been favored with the absence of that class of "bruisers" and sporting gentry that have for years made an excursion a peril instead of a pleasure. The strict vigilance of the special officers on board, or the more interesting field in which to ply their trade, such as Hoboken and other rural localities, has had a tendency to make their visits less frequent. The passengers of the Cool were composed chiefly of hard working mechanics, their wives and children, together with individuals of the lower and middle strata of society.

Fort Lafayette and the different fortifications of the harbor were passed in turn and afforded the excursionists ample topics on which to converse. Some were inclined to the opinion that the forts could be easily passed by an enemy's fleet, while others were of the opinion that the combined fleets of the world could not effect an entrance. Such weighty topics and the flirtations which are one of the prominent features of all excursions tended to pass away the time until the quarantine buildings loomed up in the distance, when all hands crowded to the leeward side of the steamer, eagerly scanning the gloomy pile of buildings on that lonesome artificial island.

Rockaway, the terminus of the excursion, was reached by eleven o'clock, and the joyous throng disembarked and wended their way to the numerous localities in the vicinity, until the time for the departure of the steamer. The Seaside Hotel, with its broad piazza, seemed to be the favorite resort for a number of the lady excursionists. The view from this point is truly magnificent, and on a pleasant day, when the sun is shining in all its splendor, vessels can be seen while ten or fifteen miles at sea. The far off Jersey shore and Staten Island, with its numerous headlands, were in plain view, and with the numerous sailing craft which glided through the water under a stiff breeze afforded a scene worthy of the pencil of an artist.

Towards noon a yacht belonging to Fire Island landed a number of young "bloods" who laid siege to several places where "fire water" is dispensed with a lavish hand, and as soon as they had a sufficient quantity on board to make them feel "happy," as they termed it, began insulting the females at the hotel, which at one time came near leading to a serious difficulty, but they were finally quieted and took their departure, amid the jeers of the excursionists, who had congregated at the landing, attracted by the disgraceful conduct of the crew.

At two o'clock the steamer again started on her homeward trip, and the party landed at the different piers along the North river, evidently well pleased with their excursion. The weather was not as pleasant as could be desired, but the air was, nevertheless, of that bracing character that enlivened one and all.

SUBURBAN INTELLIGENCE.

NEW JERSEY.

Jersey City.

ASSAULT ON A WAGON DRIVER.—A man named Charles Carroll was arrested last evening for assaulting William Frederick and breaking several articles in his wagon. He was fined by the Recorder.

ATTEMPT TO STAB AN OFFICER.—Yesterday afternoon officer Joyce was about to arrest a man named Edward Hayes for drunkenness when the latter became furious and drew a large knife with which he attempted to wound him. The policeman proved too able for him, and with the aid of another officer conveyed him to prison.

Hudson City.

A MOTHER IN TROUBLE.—An aged woman named Reilly appeared before Recorder Aldridge yesterday and procured a warrant for the arrest of one William O'Neil for an alleged indecent assault upon her daughter Josephine. The prisoner was committed without bail to await trial.

Hoboken.

ANOTHER CHILD DRUGGED TO DEATH.—A boy named Anthony Blumling, six months old, was visited by a physician yesterday, at the house No. 90 Fifth street, who prescribed medicine for the child's relief. Subsequently another doctor administered an additional dose to the boy, who died in about half an hour afterwards. An inquest will be held to-day by Coroner White.

A GIRL KILLED BY A NARCOTIC.—A little girl, aged four years, named Bridget Bradshaw, whose parents live at No. 10 Grand street, was taken ill yesterday morning, and the father at once proceeded to effect a remedy. He repaired to a drug store, where he purchased six opium pills, one of which he gave to the child. The girl fell into a slumber shortly afterwards, from which she never awoke. Coroner White viewed the body yesterday and issued a warrant for the arrest of the father.

MELANCHOLY DROWNING CASUALTY.—About seven o'clock on Saturday evening a young man named George Farrell, in company with his sister, was seated on the Erie Railroad bridge over the Hackensack, where they were amusing themselves by fishing, when he lost his balance and fell into the water. The screams of the sister soon caught the attention of a boatman, but his exertions to save Farrell were useless. It was not till yesterday that the body was recovered. Coroner White held an inquest and the jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning. The deceased resided at Rutherfurd Park and was unmarried.

Newark.

RAID ON ALLEGED GAMBLERS.—Complaint having been made some time ago by citizens that a party of young men were in the habit of desecrating the Sabbath by gambling with cards in a vacant lot on the lower part of Railroad avenue the police have since been on the alert, and yesterday afternoon Sergeant Benedict and two officers arrested four of them named R. Boiters, huckster; John McCabe, japanner; Edward McDonald, edge tool maker; Matthew Sennit, harness maker. They were removed to the station house and held for examination.

INFANTICIDE.—Yesterday afternoon some boys called at the station house and notified the officer in charge, Lieutenant Dwyer, that a dead child had been found lying on a portion of the old Lyde property, located on the Elizabeth road, just below St. Barnabas Hospital. Officer Leonard was promptly despatched thither, and found the child to be a newly born male. It was removed to the undertaker's and the county physician notified. After examining the body the latter official came to the conclusion that the child had been born alive. It probably was only a few hours old and died from exposure. No clue to the heartless parent.

A CHILD CHARGED WITH GRAND LARCENY BY ITS FATHER.—Late on Saturday night, between eleven and twelve o'clock, two boys named Patrick Murphy and Patrick Heavy, aged respectively thirteen years, were arrested on a warrant issued at the instance of Cormick Heavy, the last mentioned boy's father, who, in his affidavit before Justice Stapff, set forth that his boy and the other Patrick had stolen a pocketbook containing sixty-seven dollars, the property of the complainant. Young Heavy admits taking the purse, but says there was only twelve dollars in it. Both are held, and will probably be committed for trial.

SAD CASE OF DESTITUTION.—On Saturday night, while a young man named Joseph Fisher was walking along Market street, when opposite the office of the county physician he suddenly fell prostrate to the sidewalk. He was removed at once to the doctor's by some citizens, when it was ascertained that he was suffering from a severe attack of hemorrhage. He stated that he had been in hospital at Boston until his money gave out, and when he could no longer pay the hospital charge of $4 50 per week he was compelled to leave. Having some relatives in Cincinnati he thought to try and work his way there, but only succeeded in getting as far as this city when prostrated in the manner described. He was removed to the hospital in charge of the Sisters of the Poor, on the corner of Nesbit and High streets, where he will receive the best of attention without money and without price.

LONG ISLAND.

SINGULAR DEATH OF A CHILD.—On Saturday a little child named O'Neil died at Far Rockaway from the sulphur inhaled by chewing matches.

FIRE AT EAST HAMPTON.—On Sunday morning, at quite an early hour, the fish house of N. H. Howell & Co. at East Hampton was almost entirely consumed by fire, together with its contents, causing a loss of about $600. The fire is alleged to be of incendiary origin.

STATEN ISLAND.

ACCIDENT.—On Friday evening last about nine o'clock a son, aged about eighteen years, of Courtland Parker, of this city, temporarily stopping at Tottenville, stripped off to go in bathing on Rutan's dock and being ignorant of the depth of water dove off. There being at the time but a few inches of water his head struck some sharp stones, fracturing his skull. His brother, who was with him, immediately went to his assistance and had him conveyed to the house. He now lies in a very precarious state.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

FIRE IN TREMONT.—At half-past four o'clock yesterday morning the extensive woollen factory of Hoffman & Co., at Tremont, took fire and was completely destroyed. The fire caught in the engine house. No statement of the loss and insurance is given in the despatch from the Tremont police station.

ANOTHER MAN KILLED ON THE NEW HAVEN RAILROAD.—A man named James Goff was killed early yesterday morning, just this side of Melrose, on the track of the New Haven Railroad, by the night train from Boston. He attempted to cross the road as the train was approaching and was struck by the engine with such force as to send him some distance from the track. The train was put back, but the man was apparently dying and was left in the hands of the bystanders.

MILES OF RAILROADS IN DIFFERENT STATES.—The following table shows the number of miles of railroad in the States given:—Pennsylvania, 4,400; Illinois, 3,450; Ohio, 3,400; New York, 3,400; Indiana, 2,600; Iowa, 1,550; Georgia, 1,580; Massachusetts, 1,450; Missouri, 1,400; Virginia, 1,480; Tennessee, 1,440; Wisconsin, 1,250; Michigan, 1,200; North Carolina, 1,100; South Carolina, 1,000.

NORTH CAROLINA POLITICS.

Report of an Interview with Governor Holden—He Defines His Position Before, During and Since the Rebellion—His Views on Public Affairs Generally and State Affairs in Particular—The State Debt.

WASHINGTON, August 15, 1869.

The great moral effect of the recent elections in Virginia on politics and parties in the South renders the views of prominent public men in this section at the present time interesting throughout the country. Your correspondent, therefore, availed himself of the opportunity afforded by a recent visit to Raleigh, the capital of the State of North Carolina, to call on Governor Holden for the purpose of ascertaining his sentiments on public affairs. He found the Governor very affable and communicative. He does not believe in a dogged and obstinate adherence to exploded or dead issues, but acts on the principle that a statesman must keep up with the progress of events, if he cannot guide and control them.

Your correspondent introduced the conversation by remarking:—I notice, Governor, that you have been particularly honored by the opposition paper since my arrival here, which represents that you were one of the most prominent instigators of the rebellion in the State, and supported the doctrine of secession, and that you only changed your opinions when the rebellion became a failure. I should like to be able to present your own account of the matter.

GOVERNOR—The information you seek is such as I shall have pleasure in communicating. Like other public men, my acts are open to criticism, and in the present temper of a portion of the Southern people I am continually the subject of misrepresentation by those who have not yet learned the necessity of yielding to circumstances which they cannot control. The assertion that I was an active advocate of the doctrine of the right of secession is entirely unfounded. As a native of this State I always took a warm interest in everything relating to State affairs. My position in national politics prior to the war was that of an old fashioned Jackson democrat. That was a party that always adhered to the principles of national unity, while it strenuously labored to define and maintain the rights of local government in the States, as guaranteed by the constitution. When secession became imminent, in the early part of 1861, I took strong grounds against it. North Carolina, as you are doubtless aware, was the last of the Southern States that seceded. It was only after all the others had passed ordinances of secession that I and my friends yielded to the movement, which now like a whirlwind swept everything before it. The secession party was not composed exclusively of democrats. Men of all shades of national politics joined in it, when resistance would have been certain destruction. When it became certain that the ordinance of secession would pass the Union men had no alternative left but to fall into the current.

CORRESPONDENT—Your case, then, was similar to that of A. H. Stephens and other prominent public men in the South, who, after opposing secession to their utmost, felt it to be their duty, when opposition became unavailing, to go with their States?

GOVERNOR—Exactly so, and I felt it to be my duty when the issue of the war was decided against us to lose no time in accepting the arbitrament of the sword and submit to the central government. My honest convictions were always opposed to the doctrines of secession, and if there was an apparent sacrifice of principle it was the result of the peculiar and prevailing doctrines of State rights forced on men with bayonets presented to their breasts.

CORRESPONDENT—How did you get over the "iron-clad" oath?

GOVERNOR—My position on the question was so well understood by the Commanding General (Canby) and the authorities at Washington that I was not required to take it.

CORRESPONDENT—I should like to know what course you pursued during the war.

GOVERNOR—As I before remarked, when the torrent of secession swept everything before it I yielded to it and joined in measures for its support, but never believed in or desired its success. As a proof of this, in 1862 I earnestly urged Governor Vance to meet Governor Stanley at Kinston and treat for peace. I determined to seize the first occasion to obtain peace on the basis of a restored Union. Accordingly in 1863, after General Grant had captured Vicksburg, I took open grounds in the Standard newspaper for negotiations. In two months eighty peace meetings were held in the State. But in September of that year my printing office was sacked by Confederate troops from Richmond, and the peace movement was repressed by the military. I was in great personal peril from this period till General Sherman reached Raleigh, being constantly denounced as a Lincolnite and a traitor to the confederacy. Being an unconditional Union man, I gladly hailed the incoming of the Union troops. I endeavored as Provisional Governor to carry out the so-called plan of President Johnson on a legal basis. Failing in that, I took ground for the Howard amendment as soon as it was adopted. That failing to restore the Union, I advocated the reconstruction acts and took open ground for them two months before they were passed. In 1865 I was defeated for Governor by the disloyal element, and in 1868 was elected for four years by the loyal vote of the State by a majority of 20,000.

CORRESPONDENT—What effect, if any, have the late elections in Virginia had on the public sentiment of this State?

GOVERNOR—No particular effect, for the reason that the people of Virginia, by their recent vote, have simply placed themselves where the republicans of North Carolina have been from the first—that is, for allowing every male citizen to vote. This is what I understand by universal suffrage and general amnesty. I am glad that Virginia has so decided, but I regret the instrumentalities employed. Governor Wells and his party would be the best guardians of this and other great republican principles. Governor Walker, no doubt, means well, and received the support of a considerable number of good citizens; but he is under obligations to many who do not love the government and who will not be cheerful and zealous in its support. It is fair to judge of the Walker tree by its fruits. It is for Congress to decide whether Virginia shall be admitted or not with the new government just chosen.

CORRESPONDENT—I am going to put what the lawyers would call a leading question. Are you in favor of having all political disabilities removed from all classes of persons engaged in the late rebellion?

GOVERNOR—I am in favor of restoring full political rights to every man who will ask them.

CORRESPONDENT—Then you do not favor a general act of oblivion?

GOVERNOR—I am willing and desirous that all should have their rights restored on application. A general act would not be appreciated by a great number, and the privileges conferred would be abused by all such. The act of asking implies submission and a desire to act up to the requirements of the constitution and the Union. Such an act of liberality on the part of the conqueror so soon after a great civil war has never been recorded in history. They have already been pardoned. What they now want is the right to sit in the Legislature and hold other offices. Let those who desire to do so ask for it, and I am in favor of giving such right.

CORRESPONDENT—Are any effectual efforts being made to establish a system of free schools in the States accessible to the children of all classes?

GOVERNOR—Earnest and active steps are being taken to establish free public schools. We have an excellent superintendent—the Rev. S. S. Ashley, formerly of Massachusetts. He is preparing the work with zeal and ability. The schools will be commenced at an early day. The university is reviving and will be sustained. The people of North Carolina have always been more devoted to the cause of education than any other State formerly slaveholding. This feeling continues, and with the aid of Northern friends, who are settling among us, we hope soon to have a good system of public instruction in the State. The children of the two races will have separate schools and separate universities, but the provision will be as liberal and thorough for the colored as for the whites.

CORRESPONDENT—I should like to know something about the financial condition of the State; the relative position, as charges on the public revenue of the various kinds of securities issued or authorized to be issued, and the effect of the late decision of the Supreme Court of the State on such securities.

GOVERNOR—The Supreme Court has decided that the debt of the State, contracted before the rebellion, is good. This amounts to about $18,100,000. It has also decided that the debt for unfinished works is equally good, and that there is no limit to taxation for these debts. The latter is about $16,240,000. The amount of appropriations that fell under the decision of the court is $5,100,000—that is, this debt is invalid and fails. The special tax bonds are at present better than the old, for the reason that a special tax is levied and is being collected, and must be applied to meet the interest on the new bonds, whereas the State will be obliged again to fund the interest on another half year of the bonds. I feel sure that ultimately the State will be able to pay every dollar she owes.

CORRESPONDENT—What is your opinion as to the prospects of this year's crops in this State?

GOVERNOR—Most favorable. From information obtained from all parts of the State I think they are fully equal to those of 1860, the best ever produced. The wheat crop is larger. Corn, since the copious rains of the present week also promises to be much larger than that of any previous year. If nothing happens to injure the cotton I think it may reach 200,000 bales—the quantity produced in 1860—which at present prices will bring more than twice as much money into the State as did the crop of that year.

Much more conversation ensued, in which his Excellency expressed it as his opinion that the State was rapidly recuperating from the effects of the war, and that with returning prosperity the political asperities would gradually diminish. My conversations with men of all shades of politics, from unrepentent rebels to extreme loyalists, lead me to think the Governor does not exaggerate the extent to which political, social and industrial reconstruction has already taken place.

POLITICS IN OHIO.

The Third Party or Temperance Movement—Declination of the Nominee for Governor.

At a convention of "prohibitionists" held at Mansfield, Ohio, July 14, Mr. J. E. Ingersoll was put in nomination as a candidate for Governor of the State. It has for some time been known that Mr. Ingersoll had declined the nomination, but for some reason his letter of declination has failed to appear in public. It is, however, just published, as follows:—

NEW YORK, July 29, 1869.

JAY ODELL, Secretary Prohibition State Central Committee:—

DEAR SIR—I have just received your letter of date the 20th inst., informing me that by the Prohibition Convention, held at Mansfield, Ohio, July 14, 1869, my name was placed upon the State ticket as candidate for Governor.

Permit me to return my thanks to the Convention who thus honored me with its confidence. I am in entire sympathy with the object which it seeks to promote, but with the views that I entertain of the present political condition of our State I deem it my duty to decline this nomination.

Respect for the friends of temperance composing the organization which you represent requires that I should give the reasons which have induced this decision.

After the straightest sect I was educated in the anti-slavery faith, and I have endeavored, so far as I have been possessed of any political influence, to use it so that it would aid in establishing the equality and brotherhood of man, irrespective of color or race.

The course pursued by the republican party of Ohio, prior to its last State convention, had led me to regard that party unwilling to take position in support of the doctrine of suffrage based on manhood, and I was therefore disposed at the time of the Alliance Temperance Convention to part company from that party to whose measures, although not always to its men, I had theretofore adhered, and aid in forming a State temperance party. But since the republican party, at its last convention at Columbus, declared in favor of this doctrine, as contained in the fifteenth amendment, I feel unwilling to take any such position as may withdraw any part of the force needed for securing the vote of Ohio in favor of this measure.

Believing that the maintenance of an independent temperance ticket at the coming election will hazard the success of this important measure, which I look to as the coup de grace of American slavery, I feel bound to give my vote and what influence I have for the republican ticket at this fall's election.

Hoping that the friends of temperance may concur with me in this decision I remain respectfully yours,

J. E. INGERSOLL.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Saxe, the poet, says that he ran twice as the democratic candidate for Governor of Vermont, and came within one of being elected each time. That was the candidate who ran against him.

The Louisville Courier-Journal—which never omits an opportunity to give a rap at the Beecher family—says it does not believe the story of its New York correspondent that "Mrs. Stowe did her great sensation on a wager of champagne and cigars;" and remarks that "she neither drinks nor smokes." So far as that is concerned she is far purer than any New York ward politician.

An exchange remarks that Anna Dickinson can make delicious bread, and adds:—Let her do it, then. Better that than reserve all her crustiness for her foes. Dough, dough!

The spirit of the press in Tennessee is decidedly opposed to the proposed new party movement in that State.

Dorsey B. Thomas is spoken of pretty generally for Speaker of the Tennessee State Senate, while others are urging the name of Edmund Cooper.

The Iowa State election occurs in about six weeks, and some republican papers are complaining that others do not come up squarely to the scratch in supporting the party candidates.

Republican papers in Illinois rebuke the lethargy in the party in regard to the coming Constitutional Convention, and aver that democrats are secretly moving to overreach them in shaping the fundamental laws of the State.

A people's party has been started in Chicago. It pretends to represent the vox populi—but the principal eye in it seems to be directed toward the loaves and fishes.

The Chicago Times revives this little bit of history, which should be taken in connection with the late Gettysburg failure:—

Some years ago a bill was before the United States Senate making appropriations for decorating the national Capitol. Senator Sumner moved a proviso that there should be no decorations designed to commemorate a victory by Americans over their countrymen. As this was while civil war was raging and the passions of the people were stirred to intensity, the motion was an eminently patriotic one, and met the approval of the Senate.

A democratic exchange says John A. Bingham, "better known as Gorgeous Bingham, has taken the stump in Ohio, and his admirers have great hopes that he will do something towards staying the desertions from the republican ranks in that State." Are you quite sure about which side these desertions are from?

IN THE FIRESIDE COMPANION.

THE MIDNIGHT MARRIAGE;

OR,

WHOSE WIFE WAS SHE?

BY MRS. SUMNER HAYDEN,

Author of "Little Goldie," &c.

Out To-morrow, August 31.

This story is the best ever penned by this talented and favorite author. The subject is a novel one, and treated in a manner that makes it intensely interesting and exciting. A beautiful young girl is married at midnight, and in circumstances that make it impossible for her to find out, in after life, whether she is really the wife of him who claims to be her husband or of him whom she thought she was marrying. The fascination that surrounds the whole subject is painfully interesting, and not the least remarkable circumstance connected with it is the fact that it is a

DISEASE ALIVE.
POSSESSING LIFE AND VITALITY.
An idea for savans to meditate on. Many are the anxious inquiries in reference to our new system of healing. A few words in explanation in plain simple terms, so that all may understand:—
The human system in its normal or perfect condition is entirely free from disease, and consequently disease is an intrusive and antagonistic principle, a principle possessing life and vitality, and at war with the life and vitality of the human system. And wherever there is disease there is a virus composed of myriads of living creatures, determined on the demolition or destruction of all organic matter, on which the life and vitality of the human body exist. And now for the explanation.
A medicine, which when taken internally will destroy or kill one of the above principles of life and vitality, will also kill and destroy the other, a fact we defy the world to deny or contradict.
Everybody knows that the tendency of the impurities of the blood is to the surface of the skin, and that it requires but little excitement in the system to make this manifest itself in eruptions; and everybody also knows that heating any portion of the surface of the skin will produce the same result. We therefore heat the surface of the skin by means of warm water, in which we place our remedy; the warm water attracts or draws the disease (the myriad living creatures) to the surface. Our remedy then kills the creatures, destroys and absorbs the disease.
Consultation free.
All diseases cured without dosing.

THE NEWS.

Europe.

Cable telegrams are dated the 29th of August.

Seven American sailors were hanged at the yard arm of the United States frigate Sabine in the port of Cherbourg, France, for mutiny and an attempt to blow up the vessel by firing the magazine. The conspiracy was widespread among the men and the fuse lighted.

Napoleon's health is improving. Eugénie was at Ajaccio; General Prim at Vichy. An extensive woollen factory at Rheims was destroyed by fire. The Germans in Berlin are in excited movement against the Catholic monastic orders. Spain remains agitated.

By mail we have interesting details of our cable telegrams to the 19th of August.

The Burlingame Treaty.

Mr. J. Ross Browne, ex-Minister to China, contradicts the report that the Burlingame treaty has been rejected by the imperial government of China. He says, on the contrary, that its ratification is only deferred until the return of Mr. Burlingame's Embassy.

Turkey.

The Sultan, it is understood, has laid down officially a line of duty to be observed in future by his powerful vassal, the Viceroy of Egypt. Among other things direct communication with foreign nations is forbidden.

The Society Islands.

Prince Alfred, the Duke of Edinburg, received a hearty reception at Tahiti, but his discourtesy towards the officers of the American vessel Kearsarge and towards the French authorities were so outrageous as to excite the ire of Englishmen themselves.

Miscellaneous.

President Grant is to be the guest of Senator Conkling, at Utica, next week.

There are said to be no indications in Washington of a Cabinet meeting this week, and apparently no business to render one necessary. General Rawlins is the only Cabinet member in town and he is unwell, although he was able to ride out yesterday.

General Clarke, of Texas, is in Washington, and says the complexions of the political parties in that State are pretty much as they were in Virginia and Tennessee. A. J. Hamilton is the candidate of the conservative republicans for Congress and will receive the greater portion of the democratic vote, the exception being those extreme old Southerers who believe in the perpetuity of the Southern confederacy and who may present a separate candidate. Davis is the candidate of the bitter end radical republicans, and will probably command the mass of the negro vote.

Senators Yates, Kellogg, Hendricks and Thurman are canvassing California.

A German named Waltz, in East St. Louis, while crazy with liquor, on Saturday, chopped his wife's head to pieces and then threw himself under a railroad train and had his head cut off. He first tried to kill his stepson with a hatchet; but he escaped and ran for the police, who arrived, however, too late.

A New York correspondent of a Louisville paper says Mrs. Stowe's Byron scandal was written as a sensation piece on a wager, like Miles O'Reilly's story of "Hicks the Pirate."

The new State of Iowa has 100 miles of railroad more than the old State of Massachusetts.

A New Orleans paper estimates that there are not enough field hands at work in the cotton States to pick 3,000,000 bales of cotton, at which amount Northern papers place the incoming crop.

The City.

Rev. David Mitchell, at the Canal street Presbyterian church, yesterday preached on the text, "Let the dead bury their dead"—the discourse being evidently suggested by Mrs. Stowe's disclosures concerning Lord Byron. Rev. Mr. Shepherd preached at Graham avenue Methodist non-Episcopal church, in Williamsburg, against what he termed the errors and corruptions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, among which he mentions its paid choirs, college education and big salaries for its ministers, political or metaphysical preaching, and its fashion, pomposity and wealth.

The United States Assistant Treasurer in this city has been instructed to purchase bonds and sell gold next month just as he did in August.

A meeting of the officers of boat clubs in this city and vicinity is proposed for next Thursday, to consider measures for giving the Harvard crew a rousing reception home.

Prominent Arrivals in the City.

Governor Dennison, of Ohio, and Colonel Samuel Tate, of Memphis, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Governor A. G. Magrath, of South Carolina; General Wickham, of Richmond, Va., and H. T. Huggins, of England, are at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

C. M. Thompson, of the United States Navy, and Stewart Hodgeson, of London, are at the Hoffman House.

General T. W. Hall, of Texas; Colonel A. M. Wood, of New York; Major J. W. Allison, of Philadelphia; Colonel T. J. Wright, of Boston, and E. H. Weirman, of the United States Army, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Judge E. Durell, of New Orleans, and Caleb Cushing, of Washington, are at the Astor House.

J. Marical, of Washington, and Lewis Cass, of Paris, are at the Clarendon Hotel.

Colonel T. L. Eagan, of Cincinnati, and Professor J. M. Hamilton, of Delaware, are at the St. Charles Hotel.

Lieutenant Commander G. E. McConnell, of the United States Navy, is at the St. Denis Hotel.

Among the passengers who arrived here yesterday on board the steamship Idaho, from Liverpool, was the well-known cantatrice, Madame Anna Bishop.

Prominent Departures.

Captain Bouniakofsky and Captain Kalinsky, for Hartford; Colonel H. S. McComb, for Newport; Colonel J. Mason, for Philadelphia, and Professor Williams, for Canada.

The Telegraph as a Regulator of Financial Operations and Exchange.

The old system of exchange between different countries and sections of a country is undergoing a change, and is destined to be revolutionized through the influence of the magnetic telegraph. In past times, when specie was comparatively scarce to what it is now, and when the means of communication were slow and limited, the difference in the value of money in different countries was often great, and this produced considerable profit to bankers and exchange brokers at the financial centres of the world. Merchants and others were willing to suffer a great shave, to use a Wall street expression, in making drafts or settling their balances, for the sake of convenience and to avoid the risks and slow process of transmitting money. In the dawn of commercial development the rate of exchange was sometimes very high, and that between countries not far distant from each other, as, for example, between England and Holland; but as space and time became destroyed more and more through the discovery of steam power and the telegraph, it was more equalized. Of course the balance of trade even now against or in favor of a country or section regulates to some extent the rate of exchange, it being higher against a debtor country in some proportion to its debts or obligations, and in favor of the creditor country that holds the capital. The profits on exchange to a great financial centre are very large, and it is these that have contributed greatly to the enormous wealth and moneyed power of London. But even with the balance of trade against a country exchange must be reduced and more equalized through the rapidity, facility and cheapness of communication. Indeed, this will tend to equalize trade and keep the balance down more within the immediate wants and means of a people.

Instead of sending money from one country, or part of a country, to another, or of buying bills of exchange, the cost and time of doing this will be saved by simply making a deposit with some agent or banking institution and telegraphing the fact. This is done now to some extent, and the time is coming when the telegraph will be almost the exclusive medium for such transactions. This will have a great effect upon currency and the use and value of specie. Much less of both will be needed. Almost the only demand for money, whether in the form of paper or the precious metals, will be for small change, which passes from hand to hand in little ordinary transactions. All large operations in trade will be balanced or adjusted through the telegraph. A similar result will be brought about between different countries and sections of the same country, as we now see in the operations of the Clearing House in New York city. It is known that the vast financial transactions with the banks here, amounting to a hundred millions or more daily, are all adjusted or balanced each day by the comparatively insignificant sum of one or two millions of currency or specie through the Clearing House. In a certain sense this balance is all the current money needed. Extend this system to the whole country—and it will be so extended in time, through the agency of the telegraph—and we see that a much less amount of currency will be wanted throughout the republic. We are on the eve of this mighty revolution in financial or monetary operations. In fact, it has commenced already.

This is one of the subjects resulting from the wonderful developments of science and progress of the age which demands the attention of statesmen. Such an important change in the trade, financial affairs and social condition of the country must be met by suitable legislation. The agent that is to produce this revolution—the magnetic telegraph—must be under the control of government. It must not remain in the hands of a monopoly of individuals or companies. The interests involved are too general and too great. The day is not distant when the telegraph will be used more than the Post Office, and, indeed, it would be more used now if the rate of charges were brought down to the lowest paying point and within the means of the general public. Every argument that can be made in favor of the Post Office being under government control applies more cogently to the telegraph. Congress should prepare at once to establish a postal telegraph system for the whole country and hold the absolute control over it. Not to farm the business out to companies, as some have suggested; for that would only be a modification of the present monopoly and evil, but to manage it as a department, just as the postal system is managed. To this end Mr. Washburne's bill for an experimental telegraph line between Washington and New York should be passed without delay, and, besides that, the new invention for an automatic self-telegraphing system, which, if is said, will multiply the facilities of communication eight or ten times, should be tested by government, and, if found successful, should be taken and used for the public good. Let us follow at once the example set by Belgium, England and some other countries, and place the telegraph in the hands of government. Sooner or later we must come to that, and the sooner the better for the commerce and welfare of the people.

THE BURLINGAME TREATY.—We are informed by telegram from San Francisco that Mr. J. Ross Browne, our ex-Minister to China, contradicts the report of the rejection of the Burlingame treaty by the Pekin government. On the contrary, it is said that he has stated that the imperial ratification of that instrument is merely delayed until the members of the Chinese Embassy return from their foreign tour.

The Fall Elections.

The first of the series of fall elections takes place in California on Wednesday next, September 1. Two judges of the Supreme Court, members of the Legislature and county officers are to be chosen. Considerable excitement in regard to candidates has prevailed in the large cities as well as in the rural districts, and parties have been pretty well split up. Combinations have been formed in a number of districts in order to secure the election of independent tickets, thus, if possible, overthrowing the old party organizations and putting a quietus on their leaders. The last election for judges of the Supreme Court in California occurred in 1867, when Royal T. Sprague, democrat, was elected over John Curry, republican, by a majority of 2,269. In 1868 Grant carried the State by 514. In the present Legislature the republicans have a majority of six in the Senate, and the democrats a majority of twenty in the House—democratic majority on joint ballot, fourteen. The democratic candidates for judges of the Supreme Court are J. B. Crockett and William T. Wallace, and for Mayor of San Francisco Frank McCoppin.

The Vermont election takes place on the 7th of September for Governor and State officers. As the State is overwhelmingly republican of course there is no danger in predicting the triumphant election of that ticket, headed as it is by one of the house of Washburne.

The State election in Maine occurs on the 13th September and will afford some indication as to the popularity of General Grant and his administration, whether they have lost or gained popularity. Grant's majority in 1868 was 28,080, and Chamberlain's, the present republican candidate for Governor, 20,403. A United States Senator is to be chosen in place of William Pitt Fessenden, who seems to have lost some caste with the radicals on account of his course in the Senate relative to the impeachment trial—he having voted against that measure. The malcontents are not, it is apprehended, sufficiently strong to prevent his return to the Senate if he desires to go. There is also some muddle in the republican ranks in Maine in regard to the temperance question, and a third party is talked of. Some of the republican papers affect to despise the movement, while the democrats are hopeful of creating a split in the republican ranks that will result to their benefit. But the indications are that whether a third party attempts to make a show at the polls or not (they have already a candidate for Governor in the person of a worthy gentleman named Hichborn) Chamberlain will be re-elected by a decisive majority. The democratic candidate for Governor is General Franklin Smith, quite a strong and popular candidate. Some interest is attached to the election in Maine, as her vote, with her State motto—"Dirigo" I lead—are used in all important electioneering occasions as tending to show which way the popular sentiment is drifting.

The above comprise all the State elections that occur during the month of September. In October the great field days of the fall campaign occur in Pennsylvania and Ohio, with State elections in Iowa and Colorado; and in November the elections in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois—with their so long forlorn sisters, Mississippi and Texas—close the fall season for the year 1869.

Mutiny on an American Frigate.

The Atlantic cable brings us sad, very sad intelligence in the shape of news of the existence of a widespread mutinous conspiracy on board the United States frigate Sabine, an attempt by the mutineers to blow up the vessel, the discovery of the plot, and its punishment by the execution of seven of the sailors by hanging at the yard arm. These melancholy events occurred in the port of Cherbourg, France. A portion of the crew attempted to destroy the ship by firing the gunpowder in the magazine. The fuse was lighted and in communication with this place of storage when the officers were made acquainted with the facts. The loyalty, courage and obedience to discipline of the men of the American navy have been ever appreciated and acknowledged both at home and abroad. In the early days of our naval history, and during the period of the first consolidation of that powerful arm of our governmental force, a very prominent execution, after charges of a mutinous conspiracy and intended piracy, took place on one of the vessels at sea. Happily the record is honorable thence till now. England experienced the effects of the mutiny of the Nore, and its punishment in after years; and it will bring a feeling of real regret to the public mind that this case should have taken place on board the Sabine in the presence of quite a number of young midshipmen and at the very door of a Bonaparte.

ITALIAN OPERA AT THE SEASIDE.—The success of "Don Pasquale" at Continental Hall, Long Branch, the other evening, has induced the proprietor to give the "Barber of Seville" next Wednesday. Miss McCulloch and Signori Brignoli, Susini, Petrella and Fossati are in the bill. A good idea for dispelling the monotony of Long Branch. The revival of the Italian opera, even for a night or two, will give the fashionables pining there for the gayeties of the city something to talk about for a week to come, and then will commence the general break-up in the country for the return to town.

AN ALBANY OPINION.—The Albany Journal (radical) thinks that in the contest between Tweed and Belmont for the head of the national democratic committee Belmont has no chance; that Tweed gave Hoffman his immense fictitious majority; that Tweed fixed it between Tammany and Mozart; that Tweed managed the tax levies in the Legislature; that he manages all our Corporation spoils; that all the boys swear by him, and that unless Tweed says he may Hoffman cannot run even a second term for Governor, and that finally as between the "German Duke" and the Grand Sachem there is no comparison to be made. We apprehend, however, that in the solution of this question our Albany contemporary will find that he has overlooked one or two of the "big Indians" of Tammany who have something to do in managing the wires and running the machine, and that Bismarck Sweeny will appear as the Martin Van Buren of the new regency.

The Inter-University Boat Race—More Facts.

It would appear from our authentic news published in the HERALD yesterday that the Oxford crew did not win by so much odds after all. We were led to suppose by our first despatches that the winning post was reached by the English University athletes from three to four boat lengths ahead of the Harvards. This was undoubtedly the currently reported fact, and in such a shape it reached this country. But it turns out now that the umpire of the race, who was stationed at the winning point, near Mortlake, and who no doubt measured the arrival of the boats with keen and conscientious vision, has declared that the Harvards were only half a length "clear water" behind the Oxford boat when they came to the finish. It is admitted on all sides that the Harvards lost only by the defect in their steering. This defect might have been expected and it was no doubt anticipated, in a measure, by the Harvards themselves when they so gallantly accepted the terms of the Oxford crew to row with a coxswain at all, an addition to the crew of a racing boat entirely unknown in races on their own waters. However, in a commendable spirit of pluck and chivalry they tried it, although it was a dangerous experiment, as they have discovered before this time, and, indeed, as they acknowledge.

The Oxford crew admitted, at the dinner which succeeded the race, that they never had a harder contest than this in all the races which they had run and won. It is conceded from every quarter which is entitled to the credit of good authority that there has never been a race so hardly contested, so fairly run and so gallantly conducted on both sides. The conclusion we have to come to is that inexperience in steering lost the race for the Harvards by just half a boat's length—according to the statement of the judge—which probably one good stroke or "spurt" would have covered, and thus have changed the fortunes of the day. If this be so there is no evidence that the American style of rowing is not quite as good as the English, even on the Thames, particularly if it be true, as the Harvard men say, that the steering made a possible difference of from half a length to a whole boat's length in the race. It is pretty clear, viewing it from all points, that the winners had pretty hard work to obtain their laurels, and that the vanquished have no reason to be disheartened because they lost them. There is another chance ahead. The gentlemen of Oxford will certainly not refuse to meet the Harvards on their own waters at some future time. Indeed, we hope that the challenge will come freely and chivalrously from the English side, as the challenge for the late race came from the Harvard boys, coupled, too, with all the disadvantages which were known to accompany its acceptance.

A GENUINE WOMAN'S RIGHTS WOMAN.—The lady delegates to the Woman's Rights Convention, now in session at Newport, paid a visit on Saturday to Ida Lewis, the heroine of the lighthouse, the brave girl to whom personal peril is as nothing when a fellow being's life is in danger. Probably they expected to enlist her in the service of their mission. If they did they must have been disappointed to find her exercising woman's right to perform a portion of woman's duties. These ladies—who were no doubt inflated with the speeches they intended to make at the next session in behalf of woman's right to the franchise and all that stuff—found this gallant woman, the saviour of many lives, engaged at—what kind of occupation can we suppose? "Assisting her mother at the washtub!" We hope that the lady delegates will profit by the lesson accidentally taught them by this noble girl, who has done more in the service of humanity within the past five years of her young life than all the spouting at conventions can accomplish in a century.

PRINCE ARTHUR—A HINT TO PRESIDENT GRANT.—It has been given out that Prince Arthur in his present visit to America is to keep clear of the United States—that he is not to "come over the border." Why he should be thus instructed we cannot divine. Perhaps, however, he may be standing on ceremony, awaiting an official invitation. At all events, we think that President Grant would be doing the handsome thing in detailing a special messenger to the Prince to invite him to spend a day or two at the White House, including the offer of a war steamer for his transportation. As a simple act of international courtesy, especially after the late boat race, we think this invitation would be eminently proper, and we hope that General Grant will so regard it.

ANOTHER DISCOVERY IN ALASKA.—Professor Davidson, of the United States Coast Survey, has, it appears, discovered a mountain range of iron ore in Alaska and convenient to the seacoast. The range is two thousand feet high and of unknown extent. Thus little by little the resources of that prodigious region are becoming known. With what is thus already known of Alaska, what with its numerous rivers and inlets swarming with walruses, seals, codfish and salmon, and what with its boundless forests of northern pines, and its coal mines and mountains of iron ore, it will surely, and before long, too, turn out a splendid speculation after all.

MOVEMENTS OF GENERAL GRANT.—The President had a triumphal journey from the White Mountains across the country to Saratoga Springs on Saturday last, the enthusiasm of the people—men, women and children—breaking out in various manifestations at every station and crossroad along the route. The General leaves Saratoga for Washington this morning, where he will hold a Cabinet council on Tuesday, and on Thursday will leave again to rejoin Mrs. Grant and the members of his family who remain at the springs.

APPARENTLY FORGOTTEN IN ENGLAND—Senator Sumner's speech on the Alabama claims. The English lion "roars as gently as a sucking dove," and with him all is peace and affection for his American cousins. At this rate we may expect that her Majesty's principal Secretary for Foreign Affairs will before long request Mr. Motley to hand in his little bill, in order that it may be settled without further debate or delay. The good time is coming. Even so mote it be.

The New Dominion.

Rumor is in the air about the New Dominion. The London Times makes mysterious allusions and throws out hints which it is difficult for the uninitiated to understand. Speeches of strange import are made in different parts of the New Dominion, and by men who cannot be wholly ignorant.

What does rumor say? It says that the Confederation scheme has not been so successful as its friends believed it would be. It has so far failed to make the British North American Provinces a unit. Dissension and jealousy were never so rife as they are now in the two Canadas and in the other sections of the Confederation. The party now in power in Great Britain has all along been opposed to the maintenance of colonies for the mere sake of territorial show. Since his conversion to liberal politics Mr. Gladstone has been ahead of all his colleagues in this particular branch of foreign policy. It was he who went out some years ago to act as plenipotentiary in the handing over of the Ionian Islands to Greece. It is the conviction of the present government in Great Britain that the New Dominion leans too much on the mother country and too little upon itself, and that the Confederation will never be a success until it is compelled to trust to its own resources. It will not be wonderful if in a very short time we learn that it is the desire of the home government that the New Dominion, which has been bolstered long enough, should accept complete independence on easy conditions. The New Dominion is under heavy obligations to the home government, but we do not believe that the home government will lay down conditions with which it will not be easy to comply. We have good reason to believe that we are on the eve of a great change, so far as our northern neighbors are concerned. It remains to be seen how our neighbors will act.

We do not believe that the British government will insist that the New Dominion shall declare itself in favor of a monarchy, although we cannot forget that it was originally intended to call the Confederation the "Kingdom of Canada." Nor do we find it easy to strip the present visit of Prince Arthur of a certain political character. We know well that Great Britain would like above all things to learn that the Confederation was willing to accept Prince Arthur as king. It would not at all surprise us if the men who rule the Confederation should declare themselves in favor of this policy. We have but a word to say on the subject, and we say it all the more willingly that we would spare our neighbors all unnecessary trouble—a kingdom on our northern border is impossible. It will fail as failed the last attempt to establish a monarchy in Mexico. The fate of Maximilian is worthy the attention of Prince Arthur and his friends in England. Two events which have occurred of late years have contributed to make monarchy impossible on this Continent. One of these was the failure of the Southern rebellion; the other was the execution of Maximilian of Hapsburg. Our northern neighbors may do as they please; but they cannot have a king with comfort.

THE SENATE AS AN ASYLUM FOR EX-PRESIDENTS.—A New Orleans exchange, deprecating the obscurity into which our ex-Presidents fall as soon as they are out of office, suggests an amendment to the constitution by which they would be entitled during after life to seats in the United States Senate as Senators at large. It might happen, if such an idea should be carried out, that some persons would be entitled to seats in the Senate whom the people would not like to have there. One or at most two terms in the Executive chair should satisfy the ambition of all reasonable men. Besides, the Senate as at present constituted is sufficiently oligarchical and corrupt, and to make it a life asylum for those who have filled the Presidential office—good, bad and indifferent—would only tend to perpetuate a power in the legislative branch of the government of which the people are already becoming suspicious and jealous.

COMING TO A CRISIS.—The Sultan of Turkey has officially defined a line of tributary duty which must, it is said, be observed in the future by the Viceroy of Egypt towards the Porte government. It is a comprehensive schedule, but in the tone of an imperial firman, and will be forwarded to Alexandria. Should the Viceroy be advised or resolve to reject it we may look for news of very serious complications in the East. The Sultan says the idea of independent rule by the Viceroy must be "crushed out."

THE HEALTH OF NAPOLEON.—The rumors recently circulated in Paris concerning the health of Napoleon are officially denied, and the authorities are hunting up the perpetrators of the alarming canards. If the Emperor is seen to limp or heard in a cough all France is agitated and all her political factions are on the qui vive. All things considered, it is, however, to be hoped that in the matter of his health he will continue to disappoint and baffle his enemies for a long time to come. His health and vigilance are still necessary, not only for law and order in France, but for the peace of Europe.

THE POT AND THE KETTLE.—A Western exchange remarks that Pendleton, in his letter of acceptance, charges his opponent, Governor Hayes, with being silent on the subject of the fifteenth amendment in his speech opening the campaign. But Hayes retorts on Pendleton that he, too, failed to define his position on it in his letter of acceptance. In subsequent speeches Hayes advocates its ratification by the Ohio Legislature; but thus far Pendleton has dodged the question. There seems to be a growing disposition on the part of the democracy to "pigeon-hole" this whole question about the fifteenth amendment.

GLORIOUS CALIFORNIA.—Flour extra has declined in San Francisco to $6 and superfine to $4 87½. Legal tenders, 75½. Edmund Burke says that education is the cheap defence of nations; but cheap bread is better still.

DON'T BOTHER YOURSELF.—The Rochester Chronicle (republican) wants to know what is going to become of Governor Hoffman. Don't worry yourself. That is a matter which the democracy will probably decide for themselves. At the present time Governor Hoffman is acting like a sensible man and taking things as coolly as the hot and the hop season will permit.

New Secret Political Organization in Massachusetts.

The Salem Observer, in an article on the political situation in Massachusetts, asserts that there is "a secret, powerful, fresh and insidious element" at work in the politics of that State which claims to be based upon the strength of fifty thousand votes, and which will operate in the field without much regard to party politics or to prohibition. It refers to the Crispin lodges and similar workingmen's organizations. The Observer adds "that labor questions are becoming of vast importance in this country, and the organizations of laboring men are becoming constantly more numerous and influential. Ordinarily, in Massachusetts, side movements like that of the Crispins would not amount to much, but under existing complications they may exercise considerable influence." It is evident that the republicans in Massachusetts are in a heap of trouble; and now that the cordwainers are deserting them and organizing leagues upon their own hook, it will require no little finesse to enable them to retain their ascendancy in a State even as strongly republican as Massachusetts. The labor movement is no doubt growing in strength all over the country; but what those who are sincere in it have to fear is being sold out body and soul by some unscrupulous leaders on the eve of an important election.

LIVE ISSUES VERSUS DEAD BEATS.—The republicans in Massachusetts are endeavoring to get over their temperance difficulty by declining to recognize it as a "live issue." They probably intend to regard it as a "dead beat"—a style of political loaferism always more or less connected when the rum question enters politics.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

When will that magnificent job of many years' standing, the Battery enlargement, be completed?

If the good people of Gotham don't "peach" at this season then there is no telling anything in this world. Just think of it—180,000 baskets of the delicious fruit dumped in our metropolitan market in one day!

What a glorious thing it is to live in New York just now! Here we can imbibe to hilarity our Croton, while in Philadelphia they have "to go it" on benzine and a "little more lager."

Who pockets the rents for the apple, peanut and soda water stands that cumber what remains to the public of the City Hall Park sidewalks?

Is it absolutely essential to the public safety that an upright boiler and a small sized oyster saloon should occupy the open ground at the foot of Roosevelt street, a space that is greatly desired at this season for country and other vehicles?

We are in favor of the extension of Leonard street to the Bowery, opposite Division street; of Franklin to Pell street, widened and improved; and of White street to Bayard street. These improvements would treble the value of property on the thoroughfares named and the cost would be trifling.

When completed—and it soon will be—that will be a magnificent business place the New York Life Insurance Company have caused to be erected on the corner of Broadway and Leonard street. It has three times the room of the new Court House, and it will not cost one half the money.

It is a great pity that in extending Thomas street through the grounds of the New York Hospital a movement was not made to widen Pearl street from Chatham street and Thomas street to the river, and then have organized and renumbered the avenue under a new name.

We advise timorous people who own property below Canal street to look out. There are geologists who would insinuate that the southern end of Manhattan rests on basaltic arches, against which the currents of a vast subterranean river dash, and that 500 or a 1,000 years hence the lower part of the island will cave in!

Of course when the new Post Office is completed Beekman street will be extended to Broadway; and of course, also, Ann street will be widened and opened to Fulton street.

A crabbed old gentleman without psalmody in his soul wants to know if the square boxes on street corners, out of which ear-splitting tunes are continuously ground by one-armed heroes are not organic nuisances? Shame on his patriotism.

WATERING PLACE NOTES.

The season at the more Northern and seaside resorts is rapidly drawing to a close.

The magnificent scenery of the Saguenay river is growing greatly into the popular affection. Each summer this region is more and more frequented.

Since the opening of the Pacific Railroad large parties of excursionists have taken trips on the plains, some even going to the new mineral springs in Montana, Colorado, Utah and California.

The magnificent surf shore of Monterey, Cal., will next season be visited by large numbers of health and pleasure seekers from the interior and Atlantic States. The bathing at Monterey, in the glorious waters of the Pacific, is magnificent.

The season has not been brilliant at either Near or Far Rockaway. There have been but few days of really enjoyable bathing weather vouchsafed to "Long Island's sea girt shore."

Long Branch is not what it was a few weeks since. Stetson gave a magnificent ball at his hotel, trusting to enliven things. It was a failure so far as the galvanizing process went.

The Southern places of resort, particularly those in Virginia, appear to have fared better this season than at any time since, or even before, the war.

Saratoga is yet enjoying itself. This watering place is generally the first to fill up and the last to be deserted.

The proprietors of cottages and the lessees of hotels at Newport are not over pleased with the sizes of their greenback piles made this season. They are examining their debit and credit accounts, and they do not think fortunes are so easily made as many are led to believe at Newport.

New London has had a few visitors at its bathing grounds, but business was not so lively as at one time it promised to be.

Niagara has a sensation in the person of a gymnast who tempts death daily by crossing a rope that spans the chasm below the railroad bridge. The rope is made taut, and the "professor" mounts an "untamed bicycle" and wheels himself across it. The professor fulfills the end for which he is hired to risk his life, viz., to supply the hotels with gaping guests.

Croton Lake, a beautiful sheet of water, fifteen miles in length and about one-fourth of a mile in breadth, is greatly affected by quiet people. Quite a number of families from the city reside in cottages that skirt its shores, and grow fat and healthy on its rich trout and other fish. It is very cool and healthy at Mount Kisco.

Sharon Springs are not utterly deserted. Sharon keeps pace with Saratoga in numbers, but not in fashions.

"John Brown's Tract," in Northwestern New York, has not been forgotten this season by the disciples, including both sexes, of gentle Izak Walton. It has been estimated that over ten thousand persons of all ages have visited this rugged country within the past four months.

Now that a ride of five days will take a resident of the Atlantic shore to the Rocky Mountains, we may expect to read next season of hundreds of others besides artists visiting them. There have been discovered very fine mineral waters in the "eternal hills" which form the great water shed of our continent.

The lakes of Maine have not been without their visitors this summer.

That lively young gentleman Commodore Vanderbilt and his bride were at Saratoga last week; she the envied of all the ladies in search of that gem of price—a husband. Mrs. Vanderbilt on the demise of her husband will be entitled to dower in one-third of his estate, or an annual interest of seven per cent on say $53,333,333 33 1-3. That's what's the matter. The happy Commodore is rated at $100,000,000. What woman wouldn't be envious?

The White Mountains have been sketched "to death" by bucolic and other artists this summer.

Mutiny on a United States Frigate—Seven Sailors Hanged.

PARIS, August 29, 1869.

A desperate conspiracy was discovered on board the United States frigate Sabine, now lying in the port of Cherbourg. Some of the crew, to revenge themselves on their officers, attempted to set fire to the powder magazine and blow up the ship. They had proceeded so far as to light a fuse communicating with the magazine, when the plot was frustrated by a cabin boy, who discovered the burning fuse. It was found that twenty-two sailors were implicated in the plot, and they were put in irons. Seven have since been condemned to death and hanged at the yardarm.

Relations With and Policy Towards Egypt—Imperial Letter to the Viceroy.

LONDON, August 29, 1869.

Advices to hand in this city from Constantinople state that although the late official report of the Viceroy of Egypt on the condition of affairs in the territory, and his relations to the Porte generally, has been found satisfactory to the Sultan, rumors in the Turkish capital represent his Majesty as being resolved either to crush out at once any attempt which may be made towards independence by the Viceroy or bring matters to a direct issue in a peaceful manner.

The Grand Vizier of the Sultan will despatch another letter to his Highness the Viceroy next Tuesday, demanding that both the land and sea forces of Egypt be kept within the limits described in the Imperial firman of the year 1841; that a regular quarterly budget of finance be submitted to the Porte Cabinet; forbidding any future imposition or levying of taxes by the Viceroy or his holding direct communication with any foreign government.

Murder and Suicide at St. Louis—A German Chops His Wife's Head to Pieces and Then Throws Himself Under a Railroad Train.

ST. LOUIS, August 29, 1869.

A most horrible murder and suicide were committed in East St. Louis yesterday morning. A man named Casper Waltz attempted to kill his stepson, Nicholas Lutz, by striking him on the head with a hatchet, but the weapon glanced and Nicholas escaped and ran for a policeman. When they returned they found Mrs. Waltz lying on the floor with her head literally chopped to pieces. After committing this deed Waltz walked to the crossing of several railroad tracks near by, on one of which a coal train was approaching. When the locomotive and one car had passed him he flung himself across the rail between two cars and the remainder of the train passed over his neck, completely cutting off his head. Waltz was a hard drinker, and in the morning drank a pint of whiskey before breakfast and procured another, when his stepson remonstrated with him, which doubtless led to the assault, although it was not made until some hours later.

Rains prevailed this morning for several hours, which will benefit the vegetable crop, and in some soils will aid corn in filling. The weather is warm, but not uncomfortable.

The stock of chemicals and the press and printing material of the Shipping List were both destroyed. The losses in the aggregate will be about $20,000, on which, in most instances, there are full insurances.

THE FENIAN CONGRESS.

Re-election of Mr. Savage—That $20,000 and the Pure but Rival Patriots.

After remaining in session from ten o'clock on Saturday night till nine o'clock yesterday morning the Fenian Convention brought its business to a close.

Mr. Savage was re-elected as President for the ensuing year, and the announcement was received with the usual throwing up of hats. Mr. Savage made the kind of speech customary on such occasions. Mr. McCorry was appointed chairman of a committee to audit the books of the Brotherhood, and he and Mr. Curry received a vote of thanks.

The latest developments show unmistakably a very suspicious connection between the $20,000 of Fenian bonds in litigation before Judge McCunn, and one important object of the recent Convention. Both parties of the Fenian Brotherhood are moving heaven and earth to clutch the $20,000. As has already been stated in yesterday's HERALD, Mr. O'Mahony made an exposé of Messrs. Scanlon's and Meehan's efforts to prevent $20,000 coming into the possession of the Savage party. A new phase has been added to this struggle for the spoil, for on Friday evening last a writ was served on Mr. O'Mahony requiring him to show cause why $8,000 of the $20,000 in litigation should not be paid to Mrs. O'Donovan Rossa in behalf of her husband, now in an English prison. She states that she is authorized by her husband to make this claim for the reason that, in 1865, he took charge of the Irish People newspaper in Dublin, in the interest of the Brotherhood in America, the expenses of the paper to be paid from the Fenian exchequer here. He alleges that he spent $2,500 in gold, of his own money, on the paper, and that $5,500 are due him on salary, making a total of $8,000, besides interest on the money. He was to have been paid, it is alleged, out of the $20,000, had that money ever reached it destination.

Still another phase in this scramble after the money contributed by a patriotic and trusting people has been added in the shape of a few individuals of the "three tailors of Tooley street" stamp, who claim to represent the Irish Revolutionary Brotherhood, and who, having failed to gain admission to the recent Convention, have appointed a "committee" to further the Scanlon-Meehan attempt after the $20,000. Military committees and president's annual reports sound very well; but the $20,000 is what all sides are after, and of course both parties have the purest intentions in the matter.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, August 29, 1869.

The Proposed Cabinet Meeting.

The time of Secretary Boutwell's return to Washington is unknown. There are no indications of a Cabinet meeting this week, nor are there intimations of any business that renders one necessary. Secretary Rawlins is the only head of a department now in Washington.

Politics in Texas.

With regard to the condition of politics in Texas General Clarke reports that the lines between the Hamilton and the Davis parties are being clearly drawn and that men are taking sides on distinctive party questions. The democrats rally to the support of Hamilton, while the republicans are consolidating around Davis. It is estimated that there are from 15,000 to 20,000 men in the democratic party of Texas who will refuse to vote for Hamilton on strictly personal grounds. They are of the extreme Southern school, and will either refuse to vote at all or else run a candidate of their own. General Clarke thinks Hamilton will get a portion of the negro vote in certain sections of the State, but Davis will get the mass of it. Hamilton, it is said, has alienated nearly all the Northern men resident in Texas from him by denouncing some of them as "carpet-baggers." They seem a little tender on this point, and have made common cause against Hamilton on that account. The canvass promises to be an exciting and a bitter one, owing to personal animosities between the different candidates, and in the present aspect of affairs it is difficult to tell who will be elected.

The Mail Service in Texas.

General Clarke, of Texas, nominated for Congress in the Galveston district, arrived here yesterday for the purpose of urging upon the Post Office Department the importance of affording better mail facilities to that State. It appears that under the present arrangement the largest towns in Texas cannot obtain a mail more than twice a week, while many of the smaller towns are not served with a mail more than once in two weeks. In consequence of this business men, especially in the large towns, are greatly embarrassed, and people of all classes inconvenienced. It is urged that if better mail facilities were afforded by the government the Post Office service would not only become self-sustaining in Texas, but would soon produce a revenue to the government, while the spread of general intelligence would be promoted.

Pensions to be Paid.

Early in September large disbursements will be made on account of pensions.

The fire originated from the upsetting of an oil lamp. Engine Companies Nos. 2 and 8 had a "set-to" in Smith street while returning home from the fire. The fight was stopped by the Forty-third precinct police.

BROOKLYN PAID FIRE DEPARTMENT.

How It was Organized—What the Commissioners Have Been Doing and What is in Prospective.

Nothing can be more conducive to the feeling of security which should pervade a community with regard to the means available for extinguishing conflagrations than a well organized and disciplined fire department. It is not, then, to be wondered that Brooklyn, after having for the past few years experienced the insufficiency of the old volunteer system and witnessed the success which attended the workings of the paid department in New York, should look forward with much satisfaction to the permanent establishment of the new fire regime in their midst.

During the session of the Legislature of 1867-8 most strenuous efforts were made by Mr. Joseph Reeve and other prominent republican politicians of Brooklyn to get a paid department bill through, but without success, when, as a sort of compromise between reorganization and the volunteer rule, a Board of Estimates and Disbursements was appointed by act of the Legislature, which took the power of supervision in all matters of expenditure for the department out of the hands of the Common Council, in which body the matter had heretofore been vested. The Board of Estimates and Disbursements was composed of the Mayor, Street Commissioner, Comptroller and the Chief Engineers of the Eastern and Western Districts. While they remained in power they managed to expend more than $100,000—a great increase in the expenditures over the years preceding—and this proved a strong argument for presentment by the advocates of a paid fire department in the Legislature of 1868-9.

THE PAID SYSTEM

was authorized by act of the last Legislature, the bill for which was introduced by ex-Assemblyman A. B. Hodges, with but slight opposition from any source. It provides for the selection of four citizens of Brooklyn to serve as Fire Commissioners, which was accomplished on the 22d of May, the appointing power being invested by law in Mayor Kalbfleisch, Comptroller Johnson, Street Commissioner Furey, Alderman Bergen, President of the Common Council, and the City Treasurer.

THE COMMISSIONERS,

who are all more or less experienced in fire matters, are as follows:—Frederick Massey, who has been chosen President of the Board, is a young and energetic man. He was formerly foreman of Pacific Engine Company No. 14 of the Western District, and is Treasurer of the Widows and Orphans' Fund of the volunteer organization.

Hugh McLaughlin, who fills the office of treasurer, was an active member of the old department, and served his time with No. 6 Engine Company. He represented the Second ward in the Board of Aldermen, and was more recently appointed Assistant Fire Marshal for Brooklyn, but resigned that office soon after.

Anthony Campbell, ex-Sheriff of Kings county, has had much experience as a fireman, having filled the position of foreman of Hose Companies No. 2 and 6, Western District, at various times. Mr. Campbell, who has been Postmaster of Brooklyn, is at present a member of the Wallabout Commission.

William A. Brown was a member of Eastern District Hose Company, No. 4. He is regarded as a very intelligent man, and formerly filled the office of Clerk of Justice Voorhies' court, Williamsburg.

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED.

Under the volunteer organization there were fifty apparatuses, all told, in use between the two districts, to man which were enrolled about three thousand men. Several of the engines, hose carriages, &c., were mere excuses for fire apparatus, while there was a general decay noticeable throughout the houses in which they were kept. One of the first acts of the Commissioners was to reduce the number of companies one-half. A tour of inspection of the department property was made, which elicited a most shockingly loose and demoralized state of affairs. All the houses with the exception of three were found to be in a dilapidated condition. In one instance, in the Sixth ward, an engine house was found to be almost untenantable, notwithstanding the fact that in the October previous the Board of Aldermen appropriated the sum of $3,200 to put it in good repair. There was no account for the money thus expended. Some other houses were found to be occupied as whiskey manufactories, political club rooms, and even as assignation houses. These outrageous abuses were at once corrected and are not likely to again crop out to disgrace the community.

IN THE EASTERN DISTRICT

the houses of engines Nos. 5, 7 and 13 have been fitted with stables and the engines altered so that the change can be made from hand-pulling to horses at very short notice. The house of No. 4 Engine, corner of Ewen and Wyckoff streets, has been enlarged so as to take in a hook and ladder, which latter description of apparatus will be provided for that neighborhood. A truck company will also be established in the house of Hose Company No. 4, South Third street, near Fifth. Stables have been erected on the premises occupied by the Greenpoint Hook and Ladder Company. Each of the latter companies will be furnished with a hose tender and hose.

CAUSE OF THE DELAY IN ORGANIZING.

The non-fulfilment of the contracts for apparatus by the Allerton Iron Works, of Naugatuck, Conn., who contracted for altering engines Nos. 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 14, 19 and 22, of the Western District, to be run by horses, and for furnishing new tenders, accounts for the apparent tardiness of the Commissioners in this respect. Had the contract been carried out in time they would have been ready on the 15th of August. A repair shop has been opened in Hampden street, near Myrtle avenue. The house of Engine Company No. 5, in Canton street, opposite Fort Greene, has been furnished as a hospital for diseased horses, and the upper floor is a harness shop. The amount of funds placed by law at the disposition of the Board for the first year being but $175,000 (thereafter the annual allowance will be $250,000) is not sufficient to admit of all the improvements desired, and strict economy has been found absolutely necessary in all matters of expenditure. The headquarters of the Board are in the house of Engine Company No. 17, 285 Jay street, which is neatly fitted for that purpose. The made thus far are as follows:—Caspian A. Sparks, secretary; John Cunningham, chief engineer of the city, and John W. Smith, assistant chief. Both engineers are men of many years of active membership in the Fire Department, and have each filled the offices of chief of the Western and Eastern Districts. There are 400 applications now on file with the secretary for positions under the new régime, while the total force required this year is only 200. These appointments will be filled September 1.

THE UNIFORM

will be blue cloth (pure indigo dye) coats and pants, blue flannel shirts from foremen down, and white flannel shirts for all above that grade. The caps will be similar to the United States navy regulation fatigue. The buttons, of three sizes, German silver, will bear the initials "B. F. D." Each member will wear a badge, German silver also. The rates of wages will approximate with those of New York:—Foreman, $1,300; assistant foreman, $1,100; engineer, $1,200; firemen, $1,000.

A PARADE

and review of the department will take place as soon as practicable, when the public will be treated with an opportunity of witnessing the force and of judging as to the personnel of the men who for the future will be custodians of the motto, "We brave the elements to succor the distressed."

FIRE IN HUDSON AVENUE, BROOKLYN.

At about half-past two o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the smoke house of Mr. Henry Newman, in Hudson avenue, between Concord street and Park avenue, and before the flames could be extinguished $2,000 worth of old buildings and sheds, owned by Messrs. Finley & Driscoll, were demolished. The occupants of these premises also sustained losses on their stock.

Mr. Newman sustained a loss of $500; insured in the Germania Insurance Company of New York for $1,500.

James Cowley, who occupied No. 201 Hudson avenue as a blacksmith shop, sustained a loss of $200 on tools. Cowley had spoken for an insurance policy at the office of the Germania, but had not taken it out.

Edward McCarty, who kept a feed store in one of the buildings, lost $700 on his stock.

Mr. Quirk, a painter, lost $200 worth of paints and brushes. Insured for $300 in the Fulton Fire Insurance Company.

Thomas Rose had a stable destroyed. Loss $100; insured.

William Apy, who occupied 203 Hudson avenue as a dwelling, lost $200 on furniture.

The fire originated from some kindling wood taking fire where they were smoking fish in the rear of Henry Newman's grocery.

ACCIDENT ON THE YACHT FLEUR DE LIS.

While off Poughkeepsie, on Saturday night, an accident occurred by the upsetting of a kettle by which William D. Tisdell and John Sullivan, stewards of the yacht Fleur de Lis, were very badly scalded. On the arrival of the vessel at this port to-day they were sent to Bellevue Hospital.

LITERATURE.

Reviews of New Books.

THE SEVEN CURSES OF LONDON. By James Greenwood. Boston: Fields, Osgood & Co.

If we have any fault at all to find with the style in which the author of this book has treated his subject, or rather subjects, it lies in his over delicacy of treatment, and too cautious avoidance of everything that could tend, even in the remotest degree, to arouse the susceptibilities of the over fastidious. The title is about the most sensational part of the volume. Certainly there is nothing in its contents which is either very horrid or very nasty, although, as might be expected, anything relating to thieves, beggars, fallen women and other "curses" of great cities could not be truthfully narrated without containing some repulsive features. Without pandering to a morbid taste for the horrible, Mr. Greenwood has succeeded in writing a most entertaining book. There is nothing he tells us which has not an existence in New York. The difference in the size of the population, and, to some extent, a different style of operation pursued by our sharpers, are the only things that prevent this work from applying to the American metropolis with all the accuracy with which it undoubtedly applies to the great European city. We have been quite entertained by the chapters relating to professional beggars, and to that which describes "advertising tipsters and betting commissioners." Whether fortunately or unfortunately is hard to say, but it is none the less true that our gamblers do not, as a rule, patronize the turf to the extent to which it is patronized in England. Our people prefer euchre, poker, faro and such like fascinating games upon which to lose their money, while our shop boys, apprentices and "counter jumpers" are more likely to fall victims to a weakness for seeking fortune in the magic numbers of a keno card than in blindly placing their money in the hands of a professional better at races. Still, in spite of American preferences, the end is the same. If American flats are less dull than their English confreres, American sharps are certainly keener than Continental or British rogues. If any national pride can be engendered from a knowledge of this fact we impart it with pleasure to the gushing "free and independent citizen."

Continuing this desultory review we would refer to the chapters on "neglected children," which are very graphic and correct. The chapters on "fallen women" are also quite instructive, though hardly so well treated as they could have been. The quotations from Mr. Acton's recent report of the great social evil are appropriate; but this entire part lacks in interest, after reading, as we have, a most carefully written review on the same subject, published in the Westminster Review. Altogether, though, the book is one that deserves an extensive circulation. Its contents are both entertaining and instructive, the style is full of life and animation, and the absence of everything tending to gratify a prurient taste is an evidence of the desire of the author to make his work acceptable to all classes. In point of mechanical execution it is quite neat and pleasant to look at. The type is large and clear and the binding tasteful and serviceable.

The September Magazines.

Lippincott's contains no striking feature for the coming month. Nearly one-third of the number is occupied by the continuation of Trollope's "Vicar of Bullhampton," a novel we can offer no opinion upon, not having read any part of it. "Grouse Shooting" is a pleasant, readable paper, and "Myra's Mirror" is a highly sensational story of the supernatural order. The author of "Land Monopoly" evidently thinks his subject new—in fact, he says it "is too novel." We beg to inform him it is as old as the Israelites. "A Week in an Aquarium" tells all about a visit to an asylum for inebriates. Under the title of "The National Debt" Francis A. Walker believes in liquidating the national debt at as early a date as possible. He believes that a successful attempt to fund it will inevitably lead to its repudiation by the coming generations of Americans. "That Man" is not bad, but it is suspiciously familiar. "Our Monthly Gossip" is pleasant and entertaining. As a whole, however, the magazine is not up to its usual standard of merit.

Packard's Monthly contains the concluding part of an article, by Edward A. Pollard, entitled "Imperialism in America," one of the most thoughtful and interesting of papers that we have read for some time. "Facts about Working Women" is full of sentiments and suggestions which are worthy of endorsement, except the—pardon us—twaddle about woman's suffrage. In spite of its sanguinary title "An Avenger of Blood" is very tame; and the poem "I am Going to Seek My Fortune" does not deserve the prominence given to it. Mr. Wakeman, who usually writes very sensibly and entertainingly, indulges in a lot of stuff about "Beauty and the Ballot." "Fashionable 'Full Dress' for Women," by Howard Glyndon, is a most interesting paper. Its strictures, if apparently harsh, are none the less true, and it ought to be widely read. The other papers are pleasant enough reading. Unless intended as an advertisement the "verbatim report," &c., published under the head of "Practical Education," is in bad taste.

The Eclectic Magazine of Foreign Literature, as usual, contains the cream of the British periodicals, and is necessarily very entertaining. "The Language of Light," "Madame de Pompadour," "The Ever Widening World of Stars," "Social Superstitions," "Marie de Medicis," "A New Theory of the Universe," "The Human Intellect," "Young Husbands and Wives," "An Optical Delusion" and "The Leaning Tower of Pisa" are papers the perusal of which cannot fail either to instruct or to amuse. The frontispiece of this number is embellished by a fine portrait of the late Henry J. Raymond, a laudatory sketch of whom appears in the last pages of the magazine.

The fifth monthly part of Appletons' Journal is a magazine of unusually large size, containing as it does nearly or fully 150 printed pages of reading matter. The contents are very interesting. "The Man Who Laughs" is continued, and, in spite of its extravagances, is one of the noblest fruits of Victor Hugo's genius. The conception is a sublime one, and the manner in which the work is handled is none the less grand. The illustrations, with but one or two exceptions, such as that beneath which the question is put, "Will she vote?" are admirable. The literature is of the highest order.

Our Young Folks is full of charming stories and instructive articles for the little ones, who will never tire of reading them. The present number is quite equal to any of its predecessors, which is saying a great deal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

We have received the Little Corporal, a well-conducted magazine for the young, which we can speak favorably of, and the Church Monthly, a very sharp, spicy publication.

MUSICAL REVIEW.

The coming musical season promises well for the publishers. The appearance of the exquisite cantatrice de concert, Mlle. Carlotta Patti, who, to judge from her European career, will find no rival here worthy of her great talents, will undoubtedly give a strong impetus to music publishing, as her repertoire is very large, and, of course, her ballads and romanzas will be eagerly sought after. The demise of burlesque and opera bouffe has brought a healthier and more artistic style of music into the field, and we are seldom afflicted with the trash which it has been our duty to denounce so often. English opera will also exercise, we hope, a beneficial influence on the musical tastes of the public, and do service in cleansing the Augean stables of some of our publishers of the rubbish which they have so long persisted in placing before their patrons. Altogether the prospects are bright and cheering to the mind of every true lover of the divine art.

Wm. Hall & Son publish the following:—

"The Leaves that Fall in Spring." Ballad. J. R. Thomas. A very pretty little ballad with a simple and expressive melody.

"Pleasant Memories." Ballad. J. R. Thomas. Another of this favorite song writer's sterling compositions.

"Bright Days are Coming, Love." Song. J. R. Thomas. An old, popular ballad of a style which we should like to meet with in the songs of the present day.

Ditson & Co. publish the following:—

"Out on the Rocks." Song. Mme. Sainton Dolby. A republication of one of the sweetest ballads sung by the gifted composer and cantatrice. The hand of the musician is seen in every measure of it.

"Rip Van [illegible]" W. T. Wellman, Jr. Simple and pleasing. We don't like the opening bars.

"Album Leaf." Kirchner. A charming little piece of the berceuse order.

"Red Ribbon Polka Mazurka." G. B. Douglas. An ordinary dancing piece without any noticeable merit.

"About the Jubilee, Sir." Major A. Little. One of those compositions which, in the language of Jeffreys, "neither gods nor men permit." It is intended for a dreary joke on Gilmore's great festival.

"Les Huguenots." Fantasia. Thalberg. It would be needless to explain to musicians the beauties of this truly great work, one of the best of the renowned pianist. All the well known characteristics of the composer appear in it. The large, bold, vigorous treatment of the grand subjects of Meyerbeer and the exquisite beauty of the coloring recommend it to every artist. It is very handsomely published.

Lyon & Healy, Chicago, publish the following:—

"The Blue Bells of Scotland," with brilliant variations. A. P. Wyman. Nothing worthy of particular comment in these variations. Rather hackneyed.

"Silvery Streamlet" and "Tears of Solitude." G. Lange. The first is a very beautiful andante theme in six-eight time, very artistically handled also, and the second is a nocturne in twelve-eight time of considerable beauty and expressive treatment.

Koppitz, Prufer & Co., Boston, publish the following:—

"Corraggio." Song. Angelo Mariani. A quaint minor theme, which has a certain charm of its own.

"The American Nightingale." Cantilene. G. Duprez. A little waif of melody quite in keeping with the subject.

"Depths of Mercy." Solo and quartet. J. Goodell. The words are the only good thing in this piece. The melody is of a sing-song character, and might answer a Sunday school.

RECEPTION HOME OF THE HARVARD CREW.

NASSAU BOAT CLUB, NEW YORK, August 28, 1869.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Our American crew was unsuccessful in the race of yesterday. One and all of us feel a sorrow at the result which words would fail to express. But while we are not able to join in an exultation over a victory with the noble fellows, in no degree has our obligation to manifest our admiration for the spirit and courage which prompted them to the herculean task been diminished. Our reception of the Harvard crew upon their return to this city should be of such a character as to show them that they are esteemed glorious even in defeat.

A hearty welcome from their brother oarsmen of New York seems even more to be demanded now than though they had returned victorious, and if we can in any way lessen the keen disappointment they must have experienced let us try and do so. To secure this end and insure a concert of action, the officers of other clubs are invited to meet at the Nassau Boat Club House, Thirty-fourth street and North river, on Thursday next, September 2, at two o'clock P. M., for consultation. LLOYD ASPINWALL,

President Nassau Boat Club.

AQUATICS.

International Boat Race in Japan.

Our special correspondent in Yokohama, Japan, writing on the 28th of July, reports the following interesting international aquatic contest:—

A boat race for $700 a side was rowed in this harbor on the 10th inst., between the cutters of the United States steamer Iroquois and her Britannic Majesty's frigate Ocean. The latter beat the former in a five mile race four minutes twenty-eight seconds. This result again gives the boast to the Britishers in these waters, which was won from them about a year ago in a contest between the Ocean and the Oneida.

An article in the HERALD, of the 28th inst., entitled "Authors and Publishers in the United States," in which it is suggested that authors should form a co-operative system for the purpose of publishing their own productions, thus avoiding the disadvantages originating from the present system of book publishers, contains the most feasible and appropriate remedy for the almost unlimited abuses under which authors labor, not only in not receiving their appropriate share of the profits of published works, but would give to the public a large amount of valuable information that now lies in manuscripts, having been rejected by some one or more publishers from motives very far from being consistent or honorable. The same necessity for like reasons follows in regard to inventions. Most inventors are too poor to place their inventions in operative form, and their only alternative is to give the lion's share to the manufacturer, frequently under royalty, the pecuniary results of which, like the book publishers, is dependent wholly upon their honesty, as neither the author nor inventor can be possessed of the means of ascertaining to what extent their rights may be abused. It would be wise and profitable for these two classes of intellectual workers to consider the suggestions alluded to.

A QUEER STORY ABOUT MRS. STOWE AND THE BYRON SENSATION.—The New York correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal is responsible for the following curious story:—You remember the sensation about Hicks, the pirate, which Halpine got up on a wager? It has been the envy of the Bohemians for ten or a dozen years. All of them have tried their hand at something of the sort, producing only abortions. No one has approached it until Mrs. Stowe, who has surpassed it. They tell a queer tale. They say that Mrs. Stowe did it on a wager, and a lot of literary swells are implicated. Their idea was a sensation, but they overshot the mark. They fancied Lord Byron's character so low that no one would defend it. The wager was a trifle—champagne and cigars. When Henry Ward Beecher heard of it he was very angry. A card of denial is expected from Mrs. Stowe, and, as the affair happened at the house of a Boston publisher, they may hush it up. Dana and Bonner fairly burst with spleen—Dana because he didn't invent the Byron scandal, and Bonner because he didn't get it for the Ledger. "Damnation!" cried Bonner when he first got an inkling of it; "why didn't she fetch it to me? Why, I'd have paid her a cool $5,000 for it."

THE SUICIDE OF EDWARD HOWLAND.—From H. B. Platt, who has just returned from an excursion to Lake Tahoe, we learn the following particulars of a terrible tragedy which took place there on Monday evening last:—Edward Howland, son of a celebrated ship owner of New Bedford, Mass., came here some months since as mate of a vessel, and after visiting around San Francisco for a time found his way to Lake Tahoe, where he had relatives who were engaged in boating on the lake. The young man had been somewhat irregular in his habits, and appears to have left his ship and became a boatman, attending on the pleasure parties on the lake. On Monday morning he had been out with a party, and, coming back, started to walk from the landing with his companions up to the Tahoe House. After going a few rods he said, "I don't think I will go any further now; good night." A moment after he placed a pistol to his head and fired. A portion of his head was blown off, and the ball, ranging downward, entered the neck, inflicting, of course, a fatal wound. A large company were seated on the piazza of the hotel at the time, and they were unwilling witnesses of the fearful tragedy. The deceased was but twenty-four years of age, and of gentlemanly address and prepossessing appearance. He did not appear to have been drinking to any excess before committing the fatal act, and nothing definite is known as to the cause of his determination thus to end his life.—San Francisco Alta California, August 20.

RELIGIOUS.

Divine Worship in the Metropolis and Suburbs Yesterday—Sermons on the Villification of the Dead, the Abuses and Errors of the Methodist Church, Revivals, &c.—Church Dedications and Other Interesting Services.

CANAL STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Sermon by Rev. David Mitchell on the Villification of the Dead.

Canal Street Presbyterian church was reopened yesterday for public worship. The services, morning and afternoon, were conducted by the pastor, Rev. David Mitchell. The morning's discourse was evidently suggested by Mrs. Stowe's attack on Lord Byron. All reference to Mrs. Stowe or Lord Byron was skilfully avoided, but the occasion was made one for the consideration of the general subject—unnecessary prying into the secrets of the dead. After the usual devotional exercises, Mr. Mitchell announced as his text Matthew viii., 22—"Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead."

The Saviour by these words, he said, does not mean that his followers are not to perform the last offices towards their deceased friends. He speaks to his disciples according to their necessities. To one eagerly professing a desire to follow Him he points out the hardships of the Christian life. "The Son of Man has not where to lay his head." To another who would defer the duty of taking up the Cross till he has performed some other subordinate duty—such as burying his father—Jesus said, "Follow me and let the dead bury their dead." To this disciple he spoke thus because he was more occupied with thoughts regarding the dead than the duties and struggles of life. And to all who neglect their present duty with the excuse of having to bury their dead, he now as then distinctly says, "Let the dead bury their dead." These words may also be applied to those who occupy themselves with discovering the secrets of the dead rather than with the duties of life. There is in the heart of many a longing for what the common sense regards forbidden knowledge. If this craving were after a knowledge of the good parts and deeds of men, it would be well. But to draw aside the curtain which hangs between time and eternity, merely to discover what was bad in the life of a fellow creature, to have no motive in doing so but to gratify a vain ambition, to present a story which, though improbable, will be eagerly taken up by lovers of sensation and dealers in secrets and mysteries, is altogether outside of the Christian life and character, and comes under the rebuke of the Saviour when he said, "Follow me and let the dead bury their dead." The preacher remarked, in further consideration of the subject, that an unnecessary prying into the secrets of the grave is contrary to the tone and spirit of Christianity. The facts of a man's life, or of a nation's history, so far as they are publicly known, the Scriptures never attempt to conceal. It is one of the beauties of the Word of God that it never glosses over the characters of men; that it never suppresses or distorts the truth, and that its pictures of individual or national character are true to the life. But we cannot point to any one of whom Scripture reveals more than was known to his contemporaries or by his own confessions.

Further, God would have us deal with no less charity with the dead than with the living. "Charity thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth." "Charity shall cover the multitude of sins." Jesus said unto them who had brought unto him a woman taken in adultery, "He that is without sin among you let him first cast a stone at her." If the Word of God would have us thus deal with the living, would it, think you, give us unbridled license to stir up the ashes of the dead? But further, the grave is in Scripture poetically described as a resting place. "There the wicked cease from troubling and there the weary be at rest." Our Saviour severely rebukes those who would pry into the secrets of the grave. He ask regarding the eighteen overwhelmed by the fall of the Siloam's tower, "Think you that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you nay. Except ye repent," &c. He tells them they have nothing to do with the dead; they have to do with their own sins. Besides, Scripture clearly reveals a judgment day. The dead are transferred from the tribunal of man to the tribunal of God. Let us beware of making ourselves the judges of the dead past and taking the judgment of God into our own hands. Let us lay to heart these words, "Judge not, that ye be not judged." In the second place, it was remarked that unnecessary discoveries of the secrets of the dead are contrary to the instincts of human nature. Our instincts point to death as a haven of rest.

We sail the sea of life; a calm one finds,
And one a tempest; and, the voyage o'er,
Death is the quiet haven of us all.

When we call up the image of a deceased child we never think of its acts of disobedience. We all feel an honest shame when any one thrusts upon our unwilling ears their doubts and assertions regarding those who have gone the way of all the earth. It is a common saying, let us forget the evil and remember with gratitude the good a man has done. The custom at our funeral services is worthy of attention. At such a time we think only on the good that characterized the deceased. In the death of the prodigal we fondly cherish the thought of his having come back to the father. We ponder his words, expressive of a returning love, and forget his wandering into the far country. Our common sense of justice has made it a stringent rule not to try any one in his absence for an alleged crime. The accused should be brought face to face with his accuser. We feel this should be observed more stringently with regard to the dead. The dead are silent as the grave which covers them. The attempts of the Spiritualists to communicate with the spirits of the departed have only proved a grand failure and imposture. It is universally the feeling that it is unjust to call the dead to a human tribunal. The consequences of such unnecessary discoveries were, in the third place, considered. Such as the injury they would do to the living, the creation of a sensational taste worse than that which is gratified by illustrated papers and dramatic representations of crime, and a dangerous craving after a knowledge of the secrets of the living. The reverend gentleman concluded with an eloquent peroration enjoining the duty of revering the memory of the illustrious dead, and showing that, except to do justice to the living, or for the interest of society, we should "let the dead bury their dead."

ST. PETER'S CHURCH.

Sermon on the Raising of the Widow's Son to Life.

On account of the organ being in process of repairs there was no music at the services in St. Peter's church yesterday, and low, instead of high, mass was celebrated. The Rev. Father Quinn preached from the seventh chapter of St. Luke, being an account of the restoration to life of the widow's son of Nain.

The reverend speaker began by saying that this raising of the widow's son to life was one of three instances recorded by the Evangelist in which God had manifested His divine power by restoring the dead to life—the other cases being that of Lazarus and that of the daughter of Jairus. A doctor of the Church, one of the interpreters of the Holy Scriptures, says that it is quite likely that God restored many others to life, for St. John, the Evangelist, says, "There were many other things which Jesus did, which if they were written every one, the world itself would not be able to contain the books that should be written." So much were the people impressed by this wonderful manifestation of Christ's power that they were first filled with fear, but soon this fear gave way to reverence and admiration, for they cried out, "A great prophet has risen up among us and God has visited His people." The motives which seem to have induced the Saviour to work this miracle were compassion for the widowed mother and the exercise of that divine charity which filled His heart. This miracle was not only intended to manifest such love, but it was likewise intended for our special instruction, for it has, besides the ordinary meaning, a mystical signification. It is so interpreted by ecclesiastical writers, and is declared to be a figure of the condition to which sin reduces the human soul. If Christ was reduced to compassion for mere human suffering, how much more for those which are to last for all eternity? His sufferings in the Garden of Gethsemane is an evidence of this great love for man. And again, His being bound to a pillar and scourged by a brutal soldier, and afterwards dying on the cross to atone for our sins. Would it not be well for us to turn our eyes upon our own consciences and see if our souls may not be dead in sin? It will be well for us to implore Christ that He interfere in our behalf and restore again to the life of grace those souls dead by a life of sin.

CHURCH OF THE PILGRIMS.

Sermon on Revivals by Rev. T. T. Kendrick.

Special services were held yesterday at the Church of the Pilgrims, West Forty-eighth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, and were all very largely attended. The sermon in the morning was preached by the pastor of the church, the Rev. T. T. Kendrick, on the subject of revivals. The sermon was a very eloquent one and had special reference to the various revival services and camp meetings which were being held at this season of the year. The preacher defended the class of services known as revivals from the objections which are commonly made against them, and spoke of them as a great power for good and as exerting a most healthy stimulus upon the Church of Christ at large.

In the afternoon at three o'clock a love feast was held, at which the brethren and sisters present evidently enjoyed a good time. A considerable number of those present stated their religious experience, some of them doing so very briefly and others going into detail at considerable length. In the evening the sermon was preached by the Rev. William Archer, M. D., who took his text from the sixteenth chapter of St. Luke and the nineteenth and following verses—the parable of the rich man and Lazarus. The preacher said the parables of Christ were among the most interesting and the most valuable of his teachings. They had been objected to by some critics as being mere fables, and, as such, devoid of high moral teaching, but the objection was a captious one. In many cases the parables of Christ were founded on fact, and he believed this to be one of them, and argued from the internal evidence contained in it that such was the case, and it was unreasonable to disbelieve it. The parables were all drawn from facts which had actually transpired—facts which were known to all, and hence the main value of their teaching. They had a living, everyday interest for his hearers. Another objection to this parable had been started by those who disbelieved in the doctrine of eternal punishment, which this parable so plainly taught. A great number of persons disliked to hear that there was even a possibility of their going to hell. They were all pleased to believe in heaven, of a state after death in which all would be peace and rest; but they objected to anything which implied a second place in the great unknown world where the wicked would be punished. The Bible all throughout plainly taught that there were both heaven and hell. If the proof that hell existed was insufficient, then the proof that there was a final state of blessedness was insufficient too. The one must either stand or fall with the other; they could not be separated. The parable taught that there was a separation of the soul and body after death, and that though the body would be mouldering in the grave the spirit would retain all its energies, would not lose its consciousness, but would be keenly alive to all sensations and feelings. It also proved that the transition of the spirit after leaving the body for some other sphere would be immediate, there would be no period unconsciousness, no state in which anything approaching to annihilation could be found. When the body died it was only like the prison gates being opened and the prisoner within released. The parable should not be supposed to blame the rich man because he was possessed of riches, but because he abused the trust which was placed in him. The preacher then spoke at length on the folly of trusting to riches; they were a great gift and a means of good not to be despised, but if abused they were like a millstone hung round a man's neck to drag him down to perdition. He concluded by an eloquent appeal to his hearers to rather live the life of Lazarus, and thus insure a blessed immortality hereafter.

PLYMOUTH BAPTIST CHURCH.

Sermon by the Rev. Dr. Westcott.

The chapel of the Plymouth Baptist church, a comfortable room on the ground floor of No. 610 Ninth avenue, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets, was well filled last evening. The Rev. Dr. Westcott conducted the services, and, after the usual opening exercises, announced as his text the fifty-sixth and fifty-seventh verses of the fifteenth chapter of the Second Epistles to the Corinthians—"The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." The reverend gentlemen in his opening remarks referred to the resurrection of the body, and contended that the identity of individuals will be preserved in the life after death. It was said that every seven years a man's body became virtually changed; but, notwithstanding this, the person's identity was preserved, and the man is the same though the particles constituting him may have been changed. Such would be the case after the resurrection, which must be of such a character as that each person should keep his idenity after rising from the dead. The reverend gentleman in proceeding with the more immediate subject of his text called the attention of his hearers to the fact that if there were no sin in the world there could be no death. It was one of the principles of the Divine government that suffering should only exist as a consequence of sin. There was but one exception to this rule, and that was not an exception in full—namely, the Lord Jesus Christ. If there were no other argument than this inseparability of sin and suffering, that alone would be sufficient to establish the doctrine of everlasting suffering. The only sting of death, the preacher said, is sin. It is sin which makes death so terrible. It is not the suffering consequent upon disease; not the going to sleep of the body; but it is that which lies behind death—the remembrance of the past sins and shortcomings, and the assurance that the soul will have to stand alone in the presence of that God against whom the sins have been committed and whose law has been violated. These are the things that make the sting of death. The righteous law is that which gives the strength to the sting, for all God's law was right. There have always been men who have scoffed at death and tried to laugh away its terrors; but their efforts have been of no avail. The text provided a deliverance from the sting of death. An ample provision had been made in the gospel of God's dear Son, and this was the only remedy for man in the dying hour of misery. Dr. Westcott's discourse was a short one, but very impressive, and he concluded with an unusually telling appeal to his hearers to embrace the offers of the gospel and thus rob death of all sting to them.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

Services by the Rev. William Patton.

The congregation at Plymouth church last evening was not by any means large, owing probably to the closeness of the atmosphere. A sermon was preached by the Rev. William Patton, of Chicago, who took his text from Mark xii., 34—"When Jesus saw that he answered discreetly He said unto him—Thou art not far from the kingdom of God." The reverend gentleman first referred to the occasion which elicited the observation from the Saviour in his discussion with the Herodeans, Saducees and Pharisees, and then proceeded to dilate upon the classes of men who might be represented by the scribe to whom He had addressed the consoling words mentioned in the text. He showed that this might represent more particularly two classes; first, those who had sense at heart, but who had not yet come unto Christian life and consciousness; and, secondly, that it might represent unconverted persons, but favorably impressed and tending to a right decision, people who were tending to truth and purity, yet had had many practical and theoretical difficulties, growing sometimes from theology. A cloud of doubt and darkness overshadows their ideas. The preacher pointed out the case of the scribe mentioned in the gospel as one of great importance, and one that commanded the deepest scrutiny. Many were inclined to be favorably impressed, and only awaited the opportunity to come within the pale of religion. The conversation which took place between the scribe and the Saviour showed unmistakeably that the former was desirous of being informed as to the divine truth, and gave evidence of his appreciation of the great love which the Lord bore towards mankind. He might have been a man who rested upon the good works he had performed, yet he displayed the best symptoms towards improvement. [This was] a mood of mind that might have been exhibited without any real piety taking place. He had been convinced on the fundamental principles of religion. He evinced sincerity by his manner, and was anxious to become more thoroughly acquainted with religious truth. Surely he was not far from the kingdom of God. He seemed ready to converse upon all that was good. How many men were like that scribe? When we saw an unconverted friend listening attentively to the instructions of his minister, was it not proper that he should be encouraged to proceed. Good nature was easily enlisted on the side of piety. It might prove a slow process to bring him over to the paths of truth, but perseverance would triumph in the end. If any man stood on the borders of the kingdom of God let him make no delay. There was such a thing as being nigh to victory. There was such a thing as being six seconds late in an international race—as was the case in the Harvard and Oxford boat race—and consequently a defeat. The reverend gentleman concluded by an earnest appeal to the congregation to persevere in good works and make no delay when proceeding in the paths of righteousness.

GRAHAM AVENUE METHODIST NON-EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The Errors and Corruptions of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Rev. D. Shepherd preached a sermon on the above subject in the Methodist Non-Episcopal church, Graham avenue, Williamsburg, yesterday. In opening his discourse he contrasted the simplicity, force, energy and poverty of that Church fifty years ago with its pompousness, weakness, listlessness and wealth of the present time. He lamented the good old days when the congregation did its own singing, when the ministers were not graduates of colleges but of the Church itself, and required no ordination but that of God. Then, he said, the Church was poor, despised and persecuted. Now it was the richest in America, and yet the poorest. Its real estate was worth $35,000,000, the interest of which was $2,500,000, enough, he thought, to support all the preachers in America. We then, he said, chose our trustees from the members, now from the world, especially if they are wealthy. These men are lords over God's heritage. They rule the people with a rod of iron, and even the ministers themselves are controlled by them and called by them without the bishop's approval. We formerly built churches for the poor, now palaces for the rich; and the bishop is at his wits' end to find men to fill these magnificent churches. To please the trustees he has to search all the conferences in the United States to find preachers to send them. And after all they are not satisfied. Fifty years ago the preachers had about $100 a year, now $3,000 a year and a fine, well furnished house to live in, besides many donations. Really the preachers and people have got above themselves. They neither act like Methodists, live like Methodists, or dress like such; they are as proud, pompous, haughty and fashionable as other people. Fifty years ago our preachers preached the gospel, repentance and remission of sins through the name of Jesus, justification and sanctification, holiness of heart and life, a free and a full salvation. Now the fashionable preachers preach nothing but either politics or metaphysics. The name of the Saviour and his doctrines are seldom or never named in the pulpit or out of it. The minister who never names the name of Jesus but in the pulpit, ought never to enter it, and the member who never mentions his name but in the church, is unworthy of it or to go to the sacrament. Fifty years ago the itinerant plan was in full operation, now the congregational the ministers want to be settled for life, without sermons enough to last them two years. Formerly the bishop stationed the preachers, now the trustees and presiding elders do it. If the trustee wants a favorite preacher he goes to the elder and tells him the person he wants, and he is sure to have him. He may be a relative or friend, so that if the preacher can only get the trustees on his side he is sure to succeed. The people have no voice whatever in the choice of their preacher, nor any interest whatever in the real estate of the Church. It all belongs to the conference. O, how has the pure gold become dim and the mighty fallen—"we have hung our harps on the willow. We can sing the songs of Zion no longer; because in a strange land." Hear what our blessed Saviour says, "Because thou art neither cold nor hot, but lukewarm, I will spew thee out of my mouth because thou sayest I am rich and increased in goods, and have need of nothing, and knowest not that thou art wretched and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked. Remember, therefore, from whence thou art fallen, and repent and do the first works over again or I will come unto thee quickly and remove the candlestick (church) out of its place." How shall we walk in the good old way? "We must repent and do our first works over again." Set out anew for heaven. Let that excellent man (I knew him before he was a priest), who is no novel reader nor novel writer, and who has never departed from the good old way—that is, Bishop Janes—first, insist on congregational singing, with the old Methodist tunes. Second, that all the preachers throw aside their notes, and let us have old-fashioned preaching. Third, let all our churches in future be built for the poor as well as for the rich. Fourth, insist on the preachers warning every man and teaching every man in all wisdom (doctrines), that they may present every man without excuse in the day of judgment. If not, their blood will be required at their hands. Fifth, let him insist that the discipline or rules of the Church shall be observed by all, rich and poor. Sixth, let the preachers visit every member of the church, whether rich or poor; seventh, let the preachers warn the people against dress dancing, card playing, the theatre, opera and places of fashionable amusements—away with them all, they are diabolical. Eighth, let him insist that provision be made for the poor and needy in the winter, that none of our members may be sent to the almshouse. May we remember that "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Ninth, let the preachers insist on the people "bringing up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," never to read a novel or have a newspaper in their houses on Sunday, nor to write letters or read them on that holy day. Here, then, dear brethren, is the good old way pointed out to you and how you should walk in it. Do not say, therefore, like the rebellious Jews, "We will not walk in this way." Remember, they were destroyed by the Roman army for disobeying God's command; and if we refuse to do it he will punish us also—perhaps with the cholera, or yellow fever, or some other epidemic disease. May the great Head of the Church bless you and cause his face to shine on you. Amen and amen.

DEDICATION OF A CATHOLIC CHURCH IN BROOKLYN.

There was a large congregation present yesterday morning at the dedication of the new Catholic church at the Roman Catholic College grounds, East Brooklyn. The Right Rev. Bishop Loughlin, of Brooklyn, was assisted in the dedicatory ceremonies by Father Freel, of the Sidney place church; Rev. Thomas Mooney, of St. Bridget's church, New York, and Revs. Eugene McSherry and P. Karney. The solemn high mass was sung by the Rev. Thomas Mooney, assisted by Revs. Eugene McSherry and Karney, of the Cathedral and St. Joseph's church.

The Rev. Father Freel read a portion of the sixteenth chapter of St. Matthew, after which he preached a short sermon, which was listened to by the congregation with marked attention.

The edifice is constructed of wood and is quite plain. It is 116 feet long by 60 feet wide. The ceiling is neatly frescoed, and over the altar is a fine painting of the baptism of our Lord by St. John. An admission fee of fifty cents was taken at the door of the church.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH AT COLLEGE POINT.

The steamer Neversink left Peck slip yesterday morning for College Point and New Rochelle, with a goodly company of excursionists on board, comprising a fair sprinkling of Teutons. On arriving at College Point the majority of the passengers landed to take part in the dedication of a new Catholic church which has been erected in that village and dedicated to St. Fidelis. The services were highly impressive and attractive, and were participated in by upwards of five hundred persons. The day passed off without any accident, and in due time all were safely landed back in New York.

DEDICATION OF A CATHOLIC CHURCH AT FREEMANTOWN, N. J.

At half-past ten o'clock yesterday forenoon the new and handsome church of "Our Lady of the Valley," recently erected at Freemantown, N. J., was dedicated with appropriate and imposing ceremony. Many clergymen from the neighboring parishes were present. A collection was made at the close, and a handsome sum realized, which goes to liquidate the debt on the building.

THE JEWISH TEMPLE OF EMANUEL.

In compliance with the statute providing for an annual sale of the pews in the new Jewish Temple in Fifth avenue till all shall be disposed of, a sale took place yesterday, pursuant to a resolution of the Board of Trustees. It was, however, a pro forma sale, made merely to comply with the requirements of the law, it not being the wish of the corporation to dispose of the pews in fee at present. Only six or seven pews were sold, and most of these were the cheaper ones. One, however, sold as high as $4,300, and the others were knocked down at a much lower figure, some of them being as low as $300. The attendance was small, and the sale was adjourned as soon as it was thought the demands of the law were complied with.

THE HUMBOLDT MEMORIAL.

Rehearsal of the Singing Societies for the Centenary Celebration—A Jubilee in Prospect.

Yesterday forenoon, at the Germania Assembly Rooms, the Northeastern Saengerbund, of New York and vicinity, an association of thirty-three, and the Allgemeine Saengerbund, an association of eleven German singing societies, of this city, held their rehearsals of choruses to be sung at the Humboldt Festival. The first, under the direction of Herr Carl Anschutz, practised Mohr's "Jauchzend Erhebt Sich die Schopfung;" the second, under the direction of Herr C. Kruger, Kretzschmar's "Geisterschlacht." About four hundred singers were present, but more than twice that number absented themselves to participate in an excursion arranged by some other societies. They will hold several rehearsals during the week, and to judge from the performances of those who were present yesterday the vocal part of the fest concert will be executed with remarkable force, precision and finish.

The delegates of the Northeastern Saengerbund having assembled, the President, Mr. Th. Heidenfeldt, introduced to them Professor Doremus, president; Mr. Hill, secretary, and Mr. Carl Bergmann, musical director of the Philharmonic Society, remarking that these gentlemen had come to make a proposition in regard to a musical festival, to be held next year in this city, on a scale far surpassing that of the Boston festival.

Professor DOREMUS said that Germany a century ago had produced two geniuses, the one Humboldt, whose anniversary we now propose to celebrate, and Beethoven, to whose memory the like tribute would be paid next year. The Philharmonic Society having the largest orchestra and musical resources generally, they were determined to celebrate Beethoven's hundredth birthday on a gigantic scale. With the Park Commissioners' leave the festival would be celebrated at the Park, and he invited the Saengerbund to take part in that celebration. Unfortunately Beethoven had been born in the wrong month for their purpose (December 17), in which it would be difficult to have a suitable building erected. The Beethoven festival would therefore take place during May or June, 1870.

Mr. HEIDENFELDT having assured them that the Bund would favorably consider the matter the deputation retired.

A proposition to hold a "commers" or social gathering on the evening of the Humboldt festival was then discussed.

Mr. RICHARD KATZENMEYER moved to hold no such festivity, but a torchlight procession, to start at nine o'clock in the evening from Bowery to Fourteenth street, in order to give those singers who were not able to take part in the day's procession, or in the banquet in the evening, and also to other associations and the public generally, an opportunity of actively participating in the celebration of the Humboldt anniversary.

This motion was unanimously adopted, and a committee of arrangements, consisting of Messrs. Flick, Steffens, Münster, Flatus and Deiker, appointed. The secretary, Mr. A. Banhahn, was requested to direct a circular to the press of this city, expressing thanks for what the press had till now done in the matter, and requesting it to call on the public for a numerous participation in the torchlight procession. It was further resolved to notify the Philharmonic Society that their invitation would be accepted by the Northeastern Saengerbund. The meeting then adjourned.

EUROPE.

By the steamship Idaho, from Liverpool, at this port last night, we received our European files dated to the 19th of August. We have also our special correspondence, supplying the following interesting details of the news received by our cable telegrams, in addition to the mail report published in the HERALD yesterday morning:—

At judges' chambers in London, August 15, an application was made on behalf of Mr. Grenville Murray to stay execution of the order obtained by Mr. Hughes at the Croyden Assizes. The application was made with a view to a new trial, and was supported by affidavits from two Paris physicians to the effect that since the 29th ult. Mr. Murray has not been in a condition to travel without danger to his life. On the payment of a sum into court to abide the event of a new trial the application was granted.

Another attempted military murder is reported from England. A private of the Twelfth regiment, irritated by some supposed grievance in reference to his hopes of promotion, took his rifle and was in the act of discharging it at a sergeant who had incurred his anger when he was seized by some of the bystanders and the weapon taken from him. After this he succeeded in escaping from his captors, procured another rifle, loaded it and was about to discharge it at the sergeant when he was again arrested.

In Rome a number of young ecclesiastical students who have been working hard to make themselves masters of stenography, having been appointed official reporters to the Council, are considered sufficiently perfect in the system to be allowed the vacation customary during the sultry season.

The physician of the Prussian Admiralty has proposed the adoption by all civilized States of a flag of distress to be used on every occasion, both in peace and war. It is suggested that the flag should be of a dark yellow color, with a red cross upon it.

Mr. Disraeli was present at a dinner at Alton Towers. The leader of her Majesty's opposition made a short speech proposing the health of the host and hostess, the Earl and Countess of Shrewsbury and Talbot; but he carefully eschewed politics. "There was no such thing," he said, "as politics in August."

At Croydon, England, the proprietors of the Echoes were defendants in an action for libel brought by Mr. Allington, a magistrate. The libel arose out of a police report of a case in which Mr. Allington was fined five pounds for an assault on a man named Whitehouse at the Prince of Wales' theatre. The Echoes, commenting on this assault, used terms in reference to Mr. Allington which, it was admitted, exceeded fair comment. Damages were laid at £500 and the jury found for the plaintiff in full.

At a court held by Vice Chancellor James, at Guildford, the publisher of the Poole Post appeared to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt of court, in consequence of some comments made in that paper upon the pending Tichborne baronetcy case. An apology was entered and accepted, but the respondent was ordered to pay the costs, and the Vice Chancellor gave notice that in future the full powers of the Court would, under similar circumstances, be exercised.

A letter from Paris, dated on the 15th of August, has the following:—

Yesterday the yacht Puebla conveyed twenty-five of the pupils of the St. Denis house of the Legion d'Honneur to St. Cloud, where these young ladies were entertained by her Majesty, who, having ascertained, when distributing the prizes at that establishment last week, that for various reasons they were prevented from spending their vacation with their families, kindly undertook their amusement for one day.

The London Record, speaking of the diary of the late Palmerston as in preparation at the hands of Sir Henry Bulwer, observes:—

The diary is said to be full of interest and distinguished by all the late Premier's finest characteristics. It commences when he was sixteen years of age, and it ends at the close of 1830, when he assumed office as Foreign Secretary. But at present no continuation of the diary has been found among his lordship's papers, and it has none of the attributes of a Boswellian record. It is replete with interest, modest, unaffected and simple, without an atom of gall or ill nature, but short and condensed, as if the style had been formed after the model of the sententious brevity of Tacitus. It seems to have been originally designed in its present form chiefly to explain why he left the tories and took office under the whig Earl Grey—a change which, according to Lord Palmerston's chivalrous sense of honor, could only be justified by the fact that he was himself deserted by the party when he was unseated for the University of Cambridge for voting in favor of Roman Catholic emancipation, although there had been an established compact, according to which that question was to have been an open one. The diary will explain that his long term of service as Secretary of War was not from the want of many overtures to accept higher offices.

A committee has been founded at Berlin for the establishment of a transatlantic cable to place Germany in communication with the United States without using any one of the three lines actually existing.

On the 17th of August, in London, an act of Parliament was issued to prohibit for a limited period the importation, and to restrict and regulate the carriage of nitro-glycerine save as mentioned. No person, after the passing of this act, is to bring into any port or harbor of the United Kingdom, or ship or unship in, from, or near the coasts of any port of the United Kingdom any nitro-glycerine; by act, in contravention of this judicia, the party is to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to be imprisoned for one year, and all nitro-glycerine to be brought into any port to be forfeited.

IRELAND.

Metropolitan Reminiscences and Street Scenes in Dublin—Party Divisions—Pauperism—"Young Ireland" in Its Birth Place—A Public House Acquaintance—The Irish Church Bill in an Orange Point of View—British Legislation and Papal Policy.

DUBLIN, August 13, 1869.

On the south side of the river Liffey there is a district known as "The Liberty," as distinct in character as St. Giles, in London, is from upper Portland street, or the Quartier Latin in Paris is from le Boulevart des Italiens; but it is not so wicked as the former nor as elegant as the latter. To-day it is the most miserable of the many wretched streets in the city, but seventy years ago the click of a thousand shuttles vibrated through its humblest street, and the humming of spindles and bobbins was heard almost in every household as "the loud laugh," which Goldsmith tells us "proclaims the vacant mind," was heard responding to the joke and repartee of the busy artisans. But the union with England has broken the looms; the bobbins have ceased to hum; want and misery have taken up their stations in every street, and vice and intoxication of the most repulsive and horrible aspect unite in the midst of unparalleled filth, brutality and ignorance. "The Liberty" remains, but its trade is no more; the people are sunk in ignorance—hope has left their hearts, and they live, in the majority of cases, upon the pittance of chance amid sorrow and bitterness, lewdness and dirt.

We can enter "The Liberty" by St. Patrick's cathedral—built by the Catholics, but confiscated by Prostestant government in the interest of God and the Reformation—or by Meath street. Entering the latter, from one of the business thoroughfares, Thomas street, we are in a long street known as "the Coomb." At right angles there is a filthy place—Skinner's alley—considered, since William III. drove James II. over the Boyne, as the headquarters of the Dublin Orangemen. It is a dirty looking place, full of garbage, inhabited by the worst characters and unfortunate Protestant tradesmen who eke out a living by drudgery. Skinner's alley was not always as it is to-day. Forty years ago the bone and sinew of Dublin's Orangemen lived in it or its vicinity, and supported the public houses that furnished the admirers of "the glorious, pious and immortal memory" with usquebaugh, "cakes and ale," and XX of undoubted origin. When the college boys—the students of Trinity college—paraded around the equestrian statue of William III. the roughs from Skinner's alley were on hand to protect them from the angry Catholics, who often beat both so unmercifully that many were maimed for life.

Yesterday I visited Skinner's alley, but I took care to put my revolver in my pocket, leave my watch and change in my lodgings, and carry a stout stick that is almost fit to be entitled to shillelah honors. Up Meath street and into "the Coomb" hundreds of ragged, dirty children gambolled in the middle of the street and upon the sidewalks. Many of them had their hair so inextricably matted that it was disgusting to look at. Others, with filthy noses, had crusts of bread in their hands, but through the smutty veil that enveloped them from forehead to chin the exquisite white skin and rosy cheeks so peculiar to the children of Erin peeped out like half-ripe peaches through heavy foliage. Slatternly women gossipped with each other; babes squealed and urchins laughed boisterously at merry pranks; but Skinner's alley was at hand, where two women were engaged in a lingual altercation, that was put an end to by the interference of the prim policeman, who firmly ordered them to go home or he'd bring them to the station house. The belligerents moved away; one went up Skinner's alley, and the other continued walking up "the Coomb." It was with no love of adventure that I ventured my boot leather into the muck of the famed alley, but the public house was not far up, and I soon entered it, determined to find out how Orangedom in its den viewed the Irish Church bill. The door of the public house evidently has been a long time in use, as the lower part was plentifully indented with kicks and raps from nailed brogans, heavy sticks and all kinds of missiles used to "rap up" the barkeeper. The counter is high, but the stock was not very select. The taproom, to which I went after a hasty survey, was dingy but cosey; cobwebs had full possession of each corner; fly dirt speckled the ceiling and windows better than any painter could; a faded piece of red stuff, with a dozen holes in the centre, shut out the outer world from seeing the Symposium feasts of reason and flow of soul that may have taken place within. A few old lithographs in mahogany frames and a large colored likeness of William III. crossing the Boyne adorned the saffron-like walls. There was only one person inside when I entered. A long deal table, painted like a cheap coffin, extended almost the entire length of the room; forms, painted the same, flanked it; the fireplace was covered with a fancy screen—'twas a dreary place. The waiter brought me a pint of ale, half bitter, half mild.

Desirous of opening a conversation with the other occupant, I politely asked him if he was reading the Express or Irish Times. He raised his eyes and promptly answered me the Express. I blandly informed him that I would look over it when he was done. He very courteously handed it to me, remarking at the same time that there wasn't much news in it. The kind manner in which he said this prompted me to ask him if he would do me the favor of "taking a pint," as I intended to look over the paper and have a little chat with him about the news. A pint of ale soon made its appearance, and we were in the midst of a pleasant conversation when he abruptly asked, "Are you not an American, sir?" Before I answered him I took a sip of my ale and told him I was, after a pause. As his conversation was interesting and his manner frank I subjoin it:—

CORRESPONDENT—I'm an American; have come over to see your beautiful country and find out the opinion of all classes (Protestants and Catholics) about the important measure—the Irish Church bill—lately enacted in London and assented to by the Queen the moment it was presented to her.

UNKNOWN GUEST—Well, what is your opinion of the bill?

CORRESPONDENT—I have no particular opinion about English or Irish affairs; but, as an American, I don't believe in State churches at home or abroad; but every person is not of my opinion, and those who prefer them may be right or wrong.

UNKNOWN GUEST—I was born and reared in the Established Church, and have been taught to consider it as the anchor of Irish liberty; that it was upheld at great expense, I believe, but it enabled England to keep her friends in Ireland always on the alert against Popish plots, French invasions or Fenian insurrections. We were in the minority, 'tis true, but our Church was as legally established as that of England. If the Church of Ireland was wrong, was the Church of England right? Both were planted by Henry and that glorious woman, whose name is engraven upon every true Protestant heart, Queen Elizabeth, to purify religion, to preserve liberty.

CORRESPONDENT—Then you think the late legislation was unjust?

UNKNOWN GUEST—Unjust! Infamous and cruel towards the Protestants of Ireland, and will never be forgotten. Who asked for its abolition? Not the common people—not the aristocracy.

CORRESPONDENT—The spirit of the age is against State churches; the most enlightened statesmen of England have spoken against it. Thousands have written about its wealth, &c., but do you think that its abolition will have any influence upon the political, social or financial condition of the country? I see a spirit of fraternity in all the papers. I'm sure the Catholics would only be too happy to fraternize with their Protestant countrymen in forgetting the past.

UNKNOWN GUEST—It is a hard pill for a true Protestant to swallow—to unite with "a child of Rome," but I am not prepared to deny that many Protestants are not Orangemen.

CORRESPONDENT—Oh, yes, I forgot to ask you about them. How do they view the matter?

UNKNOWN GUEST—As I do; I'm one, but it's not much to boast of now. Many Orangemen hate England as bitterly as any Ribbonman. I am neutral, but observant.

CORRESPONDENT—Don't you think the intelligent Catholics sincerely attached to the Crown and government of England? Surely the Catholic bishops and clergy have done great service in denouncing Fenianism. Loyalty more eloquent could not be expressed by any Englishman than by the Catholic Bishop of Kerry, who stated that "eternity was not long enough nor hell hot enough for the Fenians."

UNKNOWN GUEST—The denunciations of the Romish priesthood against Fenianism were what any person of ordinary sense would expect. It is very easy to humbug men 3,000 miles away about invading Ireland, but any man living within the jurisdiction of these islands knows how absurd such an undertaking would be, and the Catholic priests are too wary to be caught by such bad chaff. I don't believe any Catholic is attached to the crown of England; there are many Orangemen, too, not very much in love with it now.

CORRESPONDENT—Do you think the Orangemen will forego their party processions in the future and be less offensive towards their fellow Catholic countrymen—feel more like Irishmen?

UNKNOWN GUEST—I can't tell; but I'm sure we won't shout for England as lustily as in the past. We always have loved Ireland, and I hope always will.

As he finished he raised his hat and made a sign or salute towards the colored likeness of William III. and kindly bade me good day.

Two other persons entered, who conversed sotto voce for a few minutes. I finished my pint, picked my steps to "the Coomb," went up to St. Patrick's church and thence home to dine and cogitate over the dismal forebodings of Orangedom in Dublin, the want and wretchedness in "The Liberty" and the sums spent by England in Borneo and Japan for the diffusion of the Gospel.

ROME.

An Italian Tragedy—Murder in a Railway Carriage—Preparations for the Council.

ROME, August 16, 1869.

A recent tragic event on the line from Naples to Rome forms the chief topic of conversation and comment just now. The express train which left Naples for Florence at a quarter-past eleven on Thursday evening arrived at the frontier station of Isoletta early on Friday morning, with the corpse of a lady, drenched in blood, stretched on the floor of a first class carriage, with a revolver by her side. The Italian police and military authorities at Isoletta made the minutest investigations among the other passengers in the train but without eliciting any satisfactory explanation of the sanguinary mystery, so that after a considerable delay the train was allowed to proceed and arrived in Rome an hour behind time. All sorts of conjectures were broached on the subject, but the true version has now revealed the name of the victim, the Countess Armanda Cattaneo, of Novara, in Piedmont, who was separated from her husband, and had been residing for a few days at the village of San Paolo, in the neighborhood of Nola, near Naples. The cavalry regiment, Victor Emanuel, being quartered at Nola, the Countess was visited by some of the officers, with whom she was acquainted, but from motives which it is superfluous to go into, she decided to leave the neighborhood of Naples and return to Piedmont. This determination seems to have greatly irritated an officer of the regiment named Negro, so that the lady, to avoid molestation, was escorted to the railway station at Naples by two other officers, named Vitale and Veglio, and a Roman emigrant, Count Augusto Pandolfi. These gentlemen, to insure the safety of the Countess, entered a first class carriage with her and accompanied her on her journey as far as Caserta, where they got out, leaving her alone, with the windows drawn up. Signor Negro, however, who had arrived in Naples the preceding morning with his troop, and had had, it is said, a violent altercation with the Countess at the Hotel de Genève, was also a passenger in the train, having presented himself at the station in plain clothes and taken a third class ticket. It is supposed that when the three gentlemen who had undertaken to see the Countess safely on her journey got out at Caserta, Negro, during a long run without any stoppage, got out of his carriage and, proceeding along the foot boards to the carriage in which the unfortunate lady was sole passenger, broke the window glass with his revolver and shot the Countess through the aperture, the bullet penetrating her eye and causing instantaneous death. The assassin is supposed to have taken refuge on Pontifical soil.

The Italian government has granted permission to travellers proceeding on the lines of the Roman Railway Company through the dominions of his Holiness from Central to Southern Italy, and vice versa, exemption from the usual custom house visit to their luggage at Narni and Isoletta.

The Pope, by a rescript of Cardinal Berardi, Minister of Commerce, has granted to the Roman Engineer, Signor Filippo Costa, the privilege of forming a company for the restoration of the ancient port of Ostia, and the construction of a railway thence to Rome. This scheme, if realized, would certainly afford this city a more direct communication with the sea than the present port of Civita Vecchia, but the latter enjoys the indisputable advantage of being already in practical existence, and in communication by rail with the capital.

The clerical journal, Unita Cattolica, states that the Marquis de Banneville, passing through Florence on his way from Rome to Paris, advised the Italian Prime Minister, Count Menabrea, to use more temperate language towards the Holy See, and to be more reserved with respect to the Council. The French Ambassador is said to have added the following remarks:—"All the governments of Europe are much more embarrassed than the Pontifical government, and we witness the undeniable fact that with time the Pope surmounts all difficulties." The Unita Cattolica then states that the Marquis proceeded from Florence to Turin to fulfil a mission to Victor Emanuel entrusted to him by the Emperor. Unfortunately for the correctness of all these details the Marquis de Banneville never visited Florence at all, but on leaving Rome ten days ago proceeded directly to Paris, as I reported, via Civita Vecchia and Marseilles, leaving the Viscount de Croy Chargé d'Affaires in his absence.

Monsignor Nardi left Rome for France on Friday evening. A solemn funeral service will be performed on the 12th at the Church of St. Salvatore in Lauro, by the prelates of the Pontifical family, for the repose of the soul of the Pope's elder brother, Count Gabriel Mastai.

The work of the Council Hall in St. Peter's is proceeding rapidly. The cardinals' seats are already visible at the extremity of the apse; the two lateral chapels, which will serve as supplements to the great Council Hall, are enclosed and the great hall is being enclosed also, eleven altars contained in its area being thus temporarily withdrawn from the public celebration of divine offices. The new design, besides being more grand and simple than the preceding one, will also afford a saving in the execution of 10,000 scudi. The young ecclesiastical students selected to become stenographers of the debates in the Council have made such progress in that art that they have been allowed to suspend their studies during the vacation customary in the present hot season.

His Holiness has decided that a universal exhibition shall be held in Rome during the Council, to be opened to the public on the 1st of February next, and to remain so for four months. In order that this exhibition may have a character suitable to the Church it is to consist entirely of works of Christian art. Another artistical project connected with the Council is to have placed in the vast atrium of the Vatican Basilica the portraits in mosaic of all preceding Popes who have held Ecumenical Councils.

Cardinal Borromeo, who lives in the Altieri palace, proposes to open his noble saloons to the assembled bishops of Christendom during the duration of the Council. How to lodge so many prelates is already a matter of serious consideration. The Pope has taken many apartments in palaces at his own expense, so as to be able to offer hospitality to the most distinguished bishops, and one of these residences, in the Borgo Nuovo, is already occupied by the Austrian Bishop Fessler, appointed Secretary of the Council, who has arrived in Rome and is hard at work.

MUSICAL AND THEATRICAL NOTES.

Metropolitan theatres are, to a certain extent, the barometers of fashion. When the theatres at this season of the year are slimly attended it is safe to conclude that Dame Fashion and her votaries are "out of town;" but when, as has lately been the case in this city, the attendance at the various histrionic and lyric temples increases in point of numbers, it invariably follows that the gay birds of fashion, despite the continued heat, have begun to wing their way homeward from the seaside, springs and mountains. During the past week the theatrical barometer has risen to the mark indicating "large average attendance," which, by the by, is a point of managerial delight but seldom reached thus early in the season. Large audiences and attractive plays have been the rule at most of our theatres during the past six nights, nor is there any reason for believing that the public patronage will diminish in the slightest degree with the present week. The revival of old plays in many instances has been found sufficiently attractive to warrant managers to indulge still further in this line, while the endeavor to produce new ones of merit has met with a reciprocal appreciation from the playgoers of our community. The programmes, as a general thing, at most of our leading theatres, for the present week remain unchanged, but such new inducements and novelties as are offered by our amusement caterers will be found highly spiced with sensation, and will doubtless prove attractive.

At Booth's theatre Mr. Joseph Jefferson this evening enters upon the fifth week of his renowned impersonation of Rip Van Winkle, and there is every probability that he will continue to appear before the public in the same character during the continuance of his present engagement. The house is crowded every night from parquet to gallery, and the plaudits evoked from the audience by Mr. Jefferson in his artistic portrayal of the sufferings and escapades of poor old "Rip" are such as are but seldom bestowed in this city upon even great actors.

Mr. John E. Owens at Wallack's has met with an immense success in his two famous specialties, Solon Shingle, and Joshua Butterby, in "The Victims." These pieces, which will be repeated all this week, have never been brought out in better style in this country, nor has Mr. Owens in these characters ever shown to more advantage. With the termination of next week Mr. Owens' present engagement at this establishment comes to an end, so that all those who desire to see him in these two popular characters, should avail themselves of the present opportunity.

"Play," with its superb scenery and magnificent cast, has reached its last week at the Fifth Avenue theatre. The piece, though light in construction, has met with a fair success, which is mainly attributable to certain alterations and improvements made in its dialogue and situations by Manager Daly. On Monday evening next the comedy of "Dreams," the joint work of Messrs. Boucicault and Robertson, will be produced at this house for the first time in this city.

"The Sea of Ice" this evening enters upon the second week of its success at the Grand Opera House. The piece has been handsomely placed upon the stage, and with such a favorite actress as Miss Lucille Western in the leading part cannot fail to prove attractive to the public and remunerative to the management. The patriotic drama of "Patrie" is now in active preparation and will be the next sensation at this gorgeous establishment.

At Niblo's Garden the "last nights" of "Arrah-na-Pogue" are announced, notwithstanding the fact that the drama is still attracting large audiences. Its last representation will be given on next Saturday evening, and on the following Monday Boucicault's latest sensation, "Formosa, or the Railroad to Ruin," will be produced at this theatre for the first time in this country. On Friday evening next Dan Bryant takes a benefit, upon which occasion he appears as Shaun in "Arrah-na-Pogue," and Handy Andy in the drama of that name.

Wood's Museum reopens for the fall and winter dramatic season this evening. The opening will be marked by a strong concentration of attraction. The theatre has been entirely redecorated in white and gold, and the auditorium fitted up with comfortable chairs and the old fashioned cushion sofas removed. Two additional private boxes have also been added to the parquet circle, and new matting has been laid down in the various saloons. One marked feature is the convenient space between the rows of seats, which now permits of an easy ingress and egress without crowding or confusion. The initial performance of the new season will be given this afternoon with the Zavistowski Sisters—Emeline, Alice and Christine—in the burlesque of "Masaniello" and the comedietta of the "Water Nymphs." In the evening the Rand Sisters—Oliva and Rosa—two new debutantes for metropolitan favors, will appear in "The Pearl of Savoy," supported by a strong stock company. Chang, the Chinese giant; Admiral Fisk, Jr., the diminutive dwarf, from Narragansett; the "Flying Gymnast" and thousands of other curiosities will remain on exhibition, as heretofore, in the museum department of this establishment.

The last week of the mirth-provoking pantomime of "Hiccory Diccory Dock" at the Olympic is also announced. This will finish American pantomime in this city for the present; but it is more than probable that Mr. Fox, with his face rechalked, will again tickle the town with his inimitable drollery in a new pantomime about Christmas tide. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with a strong cast and elaborate scenery, will be revived at the Olympic on next Monday evening.

The Bowery theatre will dazzle its patrons with two brilliant "stars" during the next six nights. Miss Mary Mitchell—sister of "Fanchon" Maggie—and Mr. John Alburgh are announced to appear this evening in the sensational dramas of "Eustache" and the "Hungarian Chief."

At the cosey Comique we are to have an English version of the French drama entitled "A Life's Revenge, or Two Loves for One Heart," with a splendid cast, and the comedietta of "The Good for Nothing," with Miss Lizzie Wilmore as Nan. With such an attractive programme the Comique is certain to be crowded.

Tammany is mightily jammed with the admirers of the ballet, the lovers of the acrobatic and the patrons of the marvellous. The spectacular "Queen of Hearts," with all its beauties, is still upon the bills, as is also the Sylvester illusionists and "Harry Curr, the Man Fish." This last named individual is one of the greatest sensations that Tammany has yet had, and to see him disporting in his glass tank alone is worth double the price of admission charged to see the entire "show."

The Waverley theatre having established its popularity, its managers are determined that no effort on their part shall be spared to insure the continuance of its popularity. The Delevanti Brothers and Charley Pettingill have been added to the attractions for the present week.

Tony Pastor's Opera House this week will be resplendent with "stars" of the "varieties" order. Delehanty and Hengler will appear nightly in their song and dance specialties, besides which Tony himself, assisted by a strong varieties combination, will endeavor to delight the audience.

The San Francisco Minstrels, with all the old favorites and many new candidates for Ethiopian honors, inaugurate the season at their redecorated hall this evening, with new songs, new jokes, new dances, new acts and new eccentricities. Birch, Wambold, Bernard and Backus will be on hand to welcome their friends.

The Central Park Garden, with its delicious music and refreshing breezes, continues to receive the lion's share of public patronage. An excellent programme is offered for this evening.

The Worrell Sisters will favor the pious Brooklynites on Wednesday and Thursday next with the burlesques of "The Field of the Cloth of Gold" and "Lalla Rookh." They will be supported by a strong company.

At Hooley's Opera House, Brooklyn, minstrelsy is the loadstone that is attracting large and delighted audiences. For the present week, besides the usual amount of songs and dances, we are promised the laughable sketches of "Off for Cuba," "The Tempest," and "The Seedy Musician."

VEXATIOUS LAWSUIT SETTLED.—The Adams county (Iowa) Gazette states that the expensive and vexatious lawsuit pending in the Supreme Court of the United States between the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad Company and Fremont county, involving the title to over 13,000 acres of swamp land, has been compromised. The county pays the company four dollars per acre for the land, or over $50,000. Much of the land had been sold by the county to settlers who had improved it.

THE GALLOWS.

Execution of James Warner, at Little Rock, for the Murder of Mrs. Stange.

[From the Little Rock Republican, August 20.]

On the morning of the 1st of August, 1868, our city was horrified at the announcement that a white woman had been found murdered on the road leading to the brickyard, near Fourche bridge, and was then lying in a pool of blood. The murdered woman proved to be the wife of Major Stange. Upon examination the facts elicited warranted the officers in searching for and arresting one James Warner as the individual who committed the brutal murder. Before the Coroner's jury the following facts were elicited:—

That Warner had been employed by Mr. Stange at his brickyard, and had been discharged therefrom the day of the murder; that Major Stange had given him an order on Mrs. Stange for balance of wages due him, one half to be paid in money and the other half in goods; that Warner had visited the store between five and six o'clock and taken pay as the order directed; that after night, about half-past seven o'clock, Warner (who was recognized by the little daughter of Major Stange) returned and told Mrs. Stange that her husband was sick from the effects of sunstroke, and requested her to come to the yard and bring the little girl and money from a little blue box to pay off some hands. Mrs. Stange told the little girl to remain and Warner to go on, that she would overtake him; but Warner said he would wait for her, and sat down outside the house on some logs. Mrs. Stange left soon after, never more to return, and was found next morning as above related. Money was found upon his person and about the house Warner occupied with his family. It was also shown that Mr. Stange had received several hundred dollars a few days before, and that it was in the "little blue box," and Mrs. Stange had taken it with her when she left the house. She had not been sent for, the word from her husband being used as a blind to induce her to start with the box.

Warner was held to answer the charge of murder, and the Grand Jury of last fall term of the Pulaski Circuit Court found a true bill of indictment, and he was found guilty of the crime charged, after a fair and impartial trial, at the spring term of said court. He had able counsel to defend him—Messrs. R. S. Gantt and George E. Dodge—who labored hard to save him from the gallows; but the jury brought in a verdict of guilty and he was sentenced to be hung on the 9th day of July. His counsel, however, appealed to the Supreme Court of the State, which court reviewed the evidence in the premises and confirmed the action of the court below. The day of execution passed before the decision of the higher court was rendered, and under the code of practice it became the duty of the Governor to fix the day of execution. Yesterday, August 19, was the day selected, and the Sheriff of the county and his deputies performed their duties in accordance with the law.

THE PRISONER IN HIS CELL.

By request we visited the prisoner again yesterday morning about nine o'clock. He protested his innocence of the crime charged, but said he was prepared to die. We wrote down the following statement, which he gave while laboring under great distress of mind:—

Said he was born in Elbert county, Ga., and when fifteen years of age was taken to Kansas, nine miles west of Fort Scott. Soon after was taken to Missouri and was brought to this State about the time the war broke out, and from Hot Springs county was taken to Texas by Wiley Patterson, for his owner, a Mr. Davis, and sold to Mr. Joplin. Being dissatisfied with his place, ran away and was hurrying to Missouri when he was captured by rebel soldiers; made his escape at night and crossed Spring river and hid in the bushes until day, and when making his way to a house to get something to eat was seen by one of the soldiers, who fired but missed him. Reaching the house he at just attempted to escape, but in going from one part of the house to the other met the soldier in the door, took his gun from and struck him three times on the head, killing him, as he afterwards learned; then got away and hired out to Lieutenant Webb of the Third Missouri.

In concluding the statement, we give his own words:—That is the only crime I ever committed in my life. To-day I am accused of the death of Mrs. Stange, but I know nothing of her death and am willing to tell the last time I saw her. The evening she was killed I went to her store; she was talking to a soldier; handed her a note and spoke to her a second time before she paid any attention to me, and she said this is from my husband—part in money and part in trade. She asked me what I wanted. Told her I would take half in bacon and the other half in money. She took from a pocket in her dress a large pocketbook, attached to a chain, and said "Uncle, don't know as I can make the change." She paid me all but fifteen cents. I immediately left the store, when she said to call again when I wanted anything. This was on the last day of July, 1868, about six o'clock. During the time I was there the little girl was out doors cooking supper. I went home immediately after leaving her store, and went to church. I am innocent of her murder, though I am going to be hung, but am willing to go. My sufferings have been great, but are now about closed.

LAST WORDS FOR HIS WIFE.

"Tell my wife if she wants to see me again she must prepare for Heaven to meet me."

HIS GUILT.

He had no explanation to make regarding the occupation of his time on the night of the murder from half-past six o'clock until the time he was seen to enter the church, about nine o'clock. His wife also says he gave her a lot of money the morning after the murder, saying that he received it from a man who was keeping his money for him. She took the money, and putting two dollars of her own with it placed it where it was found. The evidence against him was positive, and, notwithstanding the able manner in which he was defended, not a doubt even was raised in the minds of the jury as to his guilt, and they rendered their verdict accordingly. No one doubted his guilt.

TO THE PLACE OF EXECUTION.

The hour approaching he was taken from the jail with his arms pinioned behind him, and taken to the place of execution, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Peyton and Rev. Mr. Brown. Arriving at the platform he mounted the stairs, not with that firm tread an innocent man would have done, and was placed on the trap door, with his face to the east. A cord was passed around his legs below the knees. He was dressed plainly but neatly; new pants, coat and shoes. Deputy Sheriff Vance read the order of the Court, and asked the prisoner if he had anything to say. He spoke a minute or two, but being out of hearing we could not catch his words. He made no further confession than he did to us in his cell. Rev. Mr. Brown offered a prayer in behalf of the doomed man. The prisoner exhibited considerable emotion, more of fear than anything, and said he was prepared to go.

THE FINALE.

Deputy Sheriff Vance adjusted the white cap on the head of the prisoner, and then fixed the fatal noose upon his neck. At a given signal the drop fell. There was a slight quivering of the body, the legs were drawn slightly upward, the form a little bent, and all was still. After dangling in the air fifteen minutes or more, and being pronounced dead by Dr. Haythornewhite, the body was lowered into the coffin and taken charge of for interment. Thus ended the execution, witnessed by over a thousand persons of all ages, colors and sexes.

MURDER OF WILLIAM LAKE, THE CIRCUS MANAGER.

Escape of the Assassin.

The following letter, received yesterday evening, details another horrible crime, which, in cool atrocity, stands unparalleled, as no sufficiently exciting cause existed for even the retention of ordinary passion, much less for the execution of a murder so diabolical:—

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., August 24, 1869.

EDITORS MISSOURI DEMOCRAT:—

Among the many crimes of violence which have occurred in Southwest Missouri within the month past is one which will be heard of with pain by many thousands of the people of the country. On last Saturday night (21st inst.), after the ring performance of Lake's circus had concluded at Granby, in Newton county, and the minstrels were about to begin, a man named Jacob Killyon was discovered concealed under the seats, endeavoring to avoid payment for admission to the concert. Mr. Lake put Killyon out of the canvas, and while doing so Killyon drew a revolver and endeavored to use it. The weapon was wrested from him, however, and he was ejected. After a short absence Killyon returned to the door of the pavilion, paid for admission and walked at once up to where Mr. Lake was conversing with two gentlemen of Granby, and, drawing another revolver, which he had borrowed for the purpose, shot Mr. Lake through the body, near the heart. Death ensued in a few minutes. In the excitement Killyon escaped and has not been arrested as yet. One thousand dollars reward is offered for his apprehension. Killyon is easily known by the following description:—He is twenty-four years old, slender, about six feet high (or rather over that), has light brown hair, red face and his right eye is so sunken in his head as to seem to be blind—possibly he is so—is much disfigured about that eye. He was a member of the Twenty-fourth Missouri Volunteers and lives about ten miles southeast of Granby.

After Killyon was put out it is said he made several threats that he would kill Lake if he could get a revolver. A few minutes after this Killyon came up to the doorkeeper, and, pulling out his wallet, remarked that "he was a quarrelsome man, and was willing to pay to go in." While he was in the act of paying Mr. Lake came out through the passageway towards the doorkeeper. As soon as Killyon saw him he slipped back among the crowd at the door. Just at this moment Deputy Marshal Bailey (who had heard that there had been a difficulty, and that a revolver had been drawn) came up from town and inquired "who had that revolver." Mr. Lake immediately replied that he "had it, and would deliver it up to-morrow morning to the proper authority." While they were talking Marshal Bailey and a Mr. Thompson were standing facing Mr. Lake, not three feet from him. Killyon approached from behind Thompson and throwing his revolver over Thompson's right shoulder, shot Mr. Lake, the ball entering about three inches above the right nipple, coursing apparently downward toward the heart. Mr. Lake staggered a few yards and then fell down on his hands and said, "My God, boys, I am killed—carry me home." He was immediately carried to his room in the Southwestern Hotel, but expired almost as soon as it was reached. At the moment the shot was fired a panic seemed to infect the bystanders, and they all scattered. Killyon immediately turned and ran. As he did so his foot caught in one of the guy ropes and threw him upon his face, and his revolver was accidentally discharged. He promptly jumped up and disappeared.

It seems utterly incomprehensible with bystanders about, and the Marshal looking on, with the desperado tumbling among the guy ropes, that he was allowed to escape. We can readily understand the excitement and horror following the deed among the good people of Granby. Funeral services were to be held on Monday by the Odd Fellows, of whom Mr. Lake was one. The reward of $1,000 is offered by Mrs. Agnes Lake, and we trust the inhuman scoundrel who did this deed will be speedily arrested. Mr. Lake was well known in St. Louis, where he has many friends.

MILITARY NOTES.

Major Meday, Lieutenant Colonel and Adjutant Fitzgerald and Captain George W. Smith, the committee on the Norwich testimonial proceeded to that city last week and presented it to the citizens, the Mayor representing them on the occasion. Major Meday made the presentation address and Mayor Blackstone replied in a neat little speech. The officers were then entertained by the Mayor and the several committees of reception as only Norwich folks know how.

The Forty-seventh regiment will proceed on their target excursion on the 8th proximo, to proceed via Long Island North Side Railroad to Little Neck. The same system of practice as adopted in the Twenty-second regiment will be observed. The Board of Officers have offered two gold medals, one for the best shot in the regiment and the other to be competed for by the officers themselves. The company medals, eight in number, are composed of silver, and are to be delivered to the best marksman in each company.

Company G., Seventy-first regiment N. G. S. N. Y., will leave on their excursion for Newport and Providence to-day. The company will leave their armory at five o'clock P. M., proceeding down Broadway to Murray street and thence to the Newport line of steamers, where they will embark for Newport, at which place they expect to arrive at five o'clock to-morrow morning. After getting breakfast they will be formally received by the Newport Artillery. After partaking of the hospitalities of the above command they will embark, at one o'clock, for Providence, at which place they expect to arrive at half-past three o'clock P. M. On their arrival at Providence they will be formally received by Colonel Jillson and Captain Dennis, with their respective commands. After parading through the principal streets they will be escorted to the quarters assigned to them. They will have a grand collation in the evening.

Company F, Forty-seventh regiment, have elected Captain Wm. H. Heathcote, of company C, Eighth regiment, as their captain. Captain Heathcote is an excellent officer.

The Twelfth regiment drum corps have issued a challenge to "any drum corps, or collection of eighteen drummers in the United States, to compete with them for the championship in the art of drum beating." Dry goods drummers should not get into a fire by answering this defi.

Lieutenant R. Kelly Styles, of company I, Twenty-second regiment, has been elected captain of company A. The Twenty-second will hold a full dress inspection at the armory next month.

Can there be any truth in the report that an effort is being made to induce General Meserole to come back to the Forty-seventh regiment and become its colonel? There doesn't seem to be a vacant colonelcy in the regiment just now. It does seem rather premature to talk about filling the place before it is vacant.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Keystone juniors, defeated the Atlantic juniors, at Prospect Park, with the score 25 to 15.

On Tuesday the Olympics and Gothams will play at Hoboken, and on Friday the Gotham and Eagle second nines will play at the same place.

Two bands of India rubber workers, one from Hastings and the other from Jersey City, played a "lively" game at Dobbs' Ferry on the 21st, in which the Jerseymen were defeated, with the score 24 to 19.

The Athletes want to play the return game with the Empires on Thursday next. The Empires say, if possible, they will accommodate.

The tournament given under the auspices of the Tecumseh Club of London, Canada, commenced on the 23d inst. The result of the first two days is as follows:—The first match began at three o'clock on Monday, between the Morning Stars and Wide Awakes, two newly organized clubs. There were some three hundred spectators present, and considerable interest was centred in the match, which was won by the Morning Stars after a close contest, by one run. On Tuesday the first match was between the Stars and Albions, which was concluded in eight innings, the score standing 67 to 24, in favor of the Stars. The second game of the day was between the O. K.'s and Beavers, and after occupying about five hours' time was declared for the Beavers—score, 79 and 62. The third game was between the Eries and Atlantics, and was won by the latter—52 to 22.

This year the clubs have again come upon equal footing, the cause being not an advancement on the part of the Empires, but a retrogression on that of the Unions. It is a pity that this their first meeting, after so long an estrangement, did not call out the full playing strength of both clubs. Certainly, the Empires were weak-handed, and certainly they paid for their temerity in taking hold of the Unions. The Empire nine may have held the Unions for less than their worth, and if so, the result serves them right. But we do not believe this, but regard their appearance on the field to a disposition that they would rather be soundly thrashed than disappoint their old friends by not appearing at all. But, take the most partial view we can, the Empires cannot be held blameless. Amateur clubs will never thrive if the best players in the organization are to be absent as the rule and present as the exception.

With all due respect to the impartiality and judgment of the critic who has managed to "pre-cot" the objections and conclusions given above, it must be said that he has materially erred in several points. The cause of the "equal footing" is solely this—That both clubs now play base ball for the sake of the game and for exercise, and make it secondary to business. The cause assigned by the "medium" quoted is certainly neither complimentary nor just to the clubs in question. The Empires have been steadily improving, and the fact that the Unions have dropped the professional balling is not an evidence of "retrogression," but of healthy advancement. The critic is decidedly right in his judgment as to the appearance of the Empires in the field in their "weak-handed" condition. But after that bit of blarney he gives a bad slap. The Empires when making the engagement did not know that three members of their nine would be so pressed with business that they could not be on hand, or that two more would be laid up with sickness and another so far from the city that he could not be here in time, and they positively assure the writer of the article quoted that if he will so arrange the business of amateur players that they may be present as a rule and absent as the exception that they will do their "level best" to make the organization thrive.

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT.

[From the San Francisco Alta-California, August 20.]

Last evening the members of the Union Club entertained Admiral Farragut, at their rooms in this city, and gave him a banquet, at which about fifty of their members were present. The dinner was got up in the club, and pronounced one of the best ever spread in this city, comprising every delicacy to be obtained on this coast.

Commodore Selim E. Woodworth presided, and after ample justice had been done to the good things on the table, introduced the guest whom the club desired to honor, in a neat little speech.

Admiral Farragut responded in a most happy strain, complimenting California on her growth since he was last here and was identified with her as one of her children. He alluded briefly to circumstances which called him away, and since the war, he said, his residence had been in New York city, because some kind friends had given him a house there, and invited him to make it his residence. But of one thing he wished to assure them, that like all persons who had ever visited the west coast, he had become attached to it. His heart was ever here, and he had made up his mind since that glorious achievement, the Pacific Railroad, was completed he should hereafter visit his old home in California once every year. He was listened to with marked attention and heartily cheered as he sat down.

The first toast given was, "Our guest, Admiral Farragut—Once lashed to the mast of victory, now made fast to the hearts of his countrymen."

General Frisbie proposed the health of the President of the United States, the great man who presides over this country.

The health of Queen Victoria was drunk, and responded to by Mr. Booker, her Majesty's Consul, in a few happy remarks.

Volunteer toasts were then declared in order, and Robert B. Swain was soon called out, who made quite a witty after-dinner speech, full of pleasing anecdotes. He wound up by saying he was but expressing the voice of the club and of the whole community, and of all the citizens of this republic, in paying our best respects to our great Admiral for his loyalty, success and great achievements, crowned in Mobile Bay by one of the greatest successes of modern warfare. He truly deserves the full expression of our highest estimation, and we all avail ourselves with pleasure of this pleasing opportunity of assuring him that his career has been closely watched, and he has ever been remembered at his old home on this side of the Rocky Mountains, and that no name in history shall be more inspiring to youth, or more talismanic to us all, than that which he has himself written so high on the immortal page of our national history—that of Farragut.

During the dinner a full band furnished operatic music, and between each toast appropriate airs were played.

In answer to a most flattering toast as a pioneer General Frisbie made a most fervid and eloquent speech, at first reviewing the early history of California and the many trials and vicissitudes through which we, as a State, had risen to our present high position, and reminded us that while we gloried over the general prosperity of to-day, we might well remember the hardships endured by those who founded this settlement in early days and prepared a way for the civilization of to-day. He then treated his hearers to a most graphic and interesting account, giving the history of the guest of the evening, painting it in the most beautiful language, tracing his career from the time he left California, through all the grand struggles of the war until its close, and showing how well placed had been the confidence of a government and a nation, who had confided to him its honor and its dearest hopes in the hour of its darkest perils. His speech was frequently interrupted with bursts of applause, and at the close Admiral Farragut was again loudly called for and responded, thanking the members of the club for the very handsome compliment which had been paid him.

The banquet lasted until a late hour, and we are much pleased that our leading men are showing the gallant Admiral those attentions which are his due, and which every sovereign of Europe has recently so freely accorded him.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

SUNDAY, August 29, 1869.

The money market during the past week was easier than during the preceding week, despite the fact that we are high the season when the customary drain of funds takes place to the West and South to move the corn and cotton crops. The banks have lost but a trifling amount in legal tenders, but the amount sent in national currency is not easily ascertained, except through an analysis of the item of deposits. The fact is, the city has been largely supplied with money during the summer, and capitalists have manifested an indifference about employing their funds on other than call loans. Hence we find the rate of discount on commercial paper ranging from nine per cent upwards, while the street rate for money has been only five to six and seven. Again the crops are reported two weeks behind hand, while the cotton receipts have been small. The demand will come with all the more force for the present deferment, but it remains to be seen whether the city will not be able to meet it, and yet leave an abundance for our local wants. Wall street always discounts the future. This tendency is witnessed in the engagements which are being made every day for time loans on stocks and other collaterals for periods of thirty and sixty days. There is more than usual for use on call. Of course the supply is not what it was a year ago, when the rate had fallen to three and four per cent, but it was large in comparison with the spring months. Without an increase of the circulation by the government or the sanction of additional national banks our city can never hope to return to the abundant supply of the years immediately succeeding the war. The building of the Pacific Railroad, the growth of new towns and enterprises in the West, the revival and expenditure of the cotton growing interest in the South, and the thousand and one other undertakings wherein capital has sought investment with the return of peace to the country, have disseminated the currency wide and far over the whole land. Millions have thus gone away which will never return. Such is the situation in which the metropolis finds herself at the beginning of the fall season of 1869. The character of the activity that will attend the money market during the ensuing two or three months is therefore an interesting problem. As to the amount required for moving the crops the calculations thereof should take into consideration the fact that if the crops are more abundant this year the price of corn and wheat is nearly fifty per cent less than last year. The yield of cotton is expected to be much larger, perhaps by half a million of bales, and the price is higher, owing to the failure of foreign marts to obtain their supply of the staple from other sources than the United States, and owing also to the increasing home consumption in our manufactories. Will the requirements of this increase in the amount and price of cotton offset the decrease in the value of the Western crops? Wall street is not very apprehensive of stringency. Among stock houses, with whom the demand is so constant, the disposition is to make preparation for the fall activity by time loans. If this movement become general the period will pass without the spasms so usual at the season. There were during the week faint currents in the local market depending on the changes in the quotations of stocks, and under the "bullish" feeling of Wednesday and Thursday the rate on call was six to seven per cent, with a good many transactions at the higher figure. The bank statement is not a favorable one, but still is fair for the time of year. The shipments of currency during the week were light, and the decrease in legal tenders only a little over a quarter of a million of dollars. The least flattering item is the decrease of two and a quarter millions in specie, accounted for by the customs payments and by the transfer of gold on California account. The loans have been contracted one and three-quarter millions, and the deposits have fallen off three and a quarter millions. The following are the last two statements contrasted:—

	August 21.	August 28.
Loans	$252,741,133	$251,012,109
Specie	21,594,570	19,469,102
Circulation	34,028,181	33,999,742
Deposits	192,024,546	188,754,539
Legal tenders	53,070,831	52,792,834

The changes in the respective items are as follows:—

Decrease in loans	$1,729,024
Decrease in specie	2,125,468
Decrease in circulation	28,462
Decrease in deposits	3,270,007
Decrease in legal tenders	277,997

The decrease in the amount held by the banks in excess of the legal reserve is $1,578,513. The total excess is now $16,573,333.

The ease in money and the firmness of the gold market made government bonds very strong, the improvement during the week being quite perceptible in some of the issues. The decline in gold in the previous week rendered the market unsettled at the opening, but the scarcity of bonds and the purchases by the Treasury soon obviated the feeling which this fact produced, especially as the tendency of gold was also to higher figures. The investment demand ran largely on the six per cent currencies and the ten-forties, which, from the rapid advance in five-twenties, have attracted more general attention and came quite largely from savings banks and other banking and trust institutions to whom it was urged that the next Congress will doubtless do something toward a reduction of the national debt. The funded debt at this time amounts in round numbers to $2,160,000,000. Of this sum the greater part ($1,886,000,000) bears six per cent gold interest. Of the remainder, $221,000,000 bear five per cent gold interest, and about $60,000,000 bear six per cent currency interest. Of the first named, or six per cent gold-bearing debt, no less than $1,600,000,000, or three fourths of the whole, consist of the several issues of five-twenties. The right to pay off the principal has already matured upon the whole of the five-twenty issues of 1862 and 1864, amounting to $640,000,000, or more than a third of the whole, while the right to retire the remaining series will mature in 1870, 1872 and 1873, respectively. In a similar way the right to redeem the $200,000,000 of five per cent ten-forties will belong to the government in 1874. On Saturday governments at the opening were "off" from the highest figures of the week, in consequence of the contradictory and distracting reports of financial matters in Europe, where United States securities were variously quoted. With the strength in gold and the real scarcity of bonds in the home market prices recovered and closed firm, as follows:—United States sixes, 1881, registered, 123 a 123¼; do. do., coupon, 123 a 123¼; do. five-twenties, registered, 121¾ a 122; do. do., coupon, 1862, 123 a 123¼; do. do., coupon, 1864, 122 a 122¼; do. do., coupon, 1865, 122 a 122¼; do. do., coupon, new, 1865, 120¾ a 120⅞; do. do., coupon, 1867, 121 a 121⅛; do. do., coupon, 1868, 120⅝ a 120⅞; do. ten-forties, registered, 111¼ a 111½; do. do., coupon, 115 a 115½; currency bonds, 110¼ a 110⅜.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of operations was in the Gold Room, where the transactions were on an enormous scale, owing to a desperate and determined fight between the "outside," or stock cliques, who are "bulls" in gold, and the "regular" gold operators, who are short of the precious metal. The highly flattering character of the cotton reports from the South started the "bear" movement which carried the price down to 131¼ week before last. The stock cliques came upon the market to profit by the usual reaction, which they turned into a decided upward movement—the price on Saturday reaching 134¼. Gold is a very peculiar commodity when handled in Wall street. It takes a long time to get it down one or two per cent, but it will go up the same amount on very short notice. The "bulls" have fought all the natural tendencies of the hour. The accident of some derangement in Napoleon's health helped them in the latter part of the week. Another lucky event of some kind may help them next week, but the old, shrewd "bears" who possess pluck and margin enough to stand a long siege, are selling them all the gold they will take, confident that a few weeks hence, with the new cotton crop and the marketing of the Western crops, gold will go down with a rush. The ensuing week bids fair to be a lively one in the Gold Room, for at the close on Saturday night there was an ominous lull in the battle, the price standing at 134, at which point both parties were entrenching for the renewal of hostilities on Monday morning. The range in the market during the week is shown in the table:—

	Highest.	Lowest.
Monday	132⅞	131¼
Tuesday	133	132½
Wednesday	133⅝	132⅞
Thursday	134	132⅞
Friday	134	133
Saturday	134¼	133⅝

Foreign exchange closed weak, owing to the light demand for bills. Sight sterling was quoted at 109¾ a 110, and sixty days at 109¼ a 109½.

Southern securities were dull and without special interest or feature.

While the stock market was in the main dull as to the number of transactions, prices were irregular and fluctuations quite frequent. The "bearish" feeling was strong at the opening, owing to the previous unfavorable bank statement, but gave way to a "bull" movement in the middle of the week, arising out of heavy purchases of New York Central and Hudson River, based on expectations that the consolidation scheme was near at hand. Erie now came upon the carpet on the discovery that the Lake Shore line had chosen its line for the through route between New York and Chicago, and considerable excitement prevailed in consequence. At the same time New York Central led in a downward movement and the general list sympathized. At the close of the week the bank statement caused a reaction, and prices were better. In the miscellaneous railways New Jersey Central and Pittsburg were the features for their great activity. The following were the closing street prices Saturday evening:—Cumberland, 35; Adams Express, 56 a 58; Wells Fargo Express, 19 a 21; American Express, 36½ a 37; United States Express, 63 a 64; Merchants' Union Express, 10¾ bid; Canton, 58 a 60; Pacific Mail, 80¾ a 80½; Mariposa, 7 a 8½; do. preferred, 12 a 15; Western Union Telegraph, 37 a 37¼; New York Central, 201¼ a 201½; Erie, 33, a 33¼; do. preferred, 55 a 56½; Hudson River, 184¾ a 185; Harlem, 161 a 162; Reading, 95¾ a 95⅞; Milwaukee and St. Paul, 79⅛ a 79¼; do. preferred, 87¼ a 87½; Toledo, Wabash and Western, 82¾ bid; Fort Wayne, 88¾ a 89¼; Ohio and Mississippi, 32⅛ a 32¼; Michigan Central, 128½ a 130; Michigan Southern, 106⅛ a 106¼; Illinois Central, 127½ bid; Cleveland and Pittsburg, 107 a 107¼; Rock Island, 114⅝ a 114¾; Northwestern, 84⅛ a 84¼; do. preferred, 95⅛ a 95¼.

On Tuesday last Fort Wayne was quoted ex dividend, the books of the company then closing for the purpose of calling in the old stock, amounting to $11,500,000, and issuing therefor new certificates to the extent of $19,714,285, to be guaranteed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. By the terms of the lease of this road to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company the latter company agree to pay an annual rental, for the term of 999 years, of $1,380,000, in quarterly instalments of $345,000 each, viz., on the 1st days of April, July, October and January, this amount to be paid to the stockholders of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company, free of government or State taxes or any other liability or encumbrance. The rental capitalized equals the sum for which the new certificates are to be issued, and upon these certificates regular quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent, free of government tax, are to be paid.

THE COTTON CROP.

We see that the Northern papers estimate the cotton crop of this season at the above figures, and that at twenty-five cents per pound, which it is supposed it will sell for and not less, the South will receive $300,000,000. We believe that there is cotton growing sufficient to make 3,000,000 bales, but the question is can it be picked and sent to the market. The calculation is this:—It takes one hand to make four bales, and of course, 750,000 laborers to make 3,000,000. We have not that number of field hands, and when we deduct the laborers necessary to cultivate sugar, rice, tobacco, corn and wheat, and deduct also the population of the cities, towns and villages, it will be seen that we are short of the labor necessary to secure 3,000,000 bales. With more labor the South can supply the world with cotton. Efforts are making to induce immigration this way: but we are not sure that any considerable number from Europe will come here to cultivate the soil. The only country where we can look for any material increase of laborers is China. An experiment will be made next season to cultivate cotton with Chinese laborers, and if it should be a successful one the increase then in the production of cotton in the South will be great enough to supply the demand, and cotton raising in other countries will be abandoned. We hope we may secure 3,000,000 bales, but fear there is not sufficient labor to secure that amount.

SINGULAR FATALITY IN A JUDGESHIP.—The first judicial appointment that came under Mr. Grant's administration—that to the United States District Court for the district of Indiana—would seem to be a fatal one, for four incumbents of the position have died within a few years, and three of them within a very short time after their appointment. Judge Elisha Huntington was on the bench at the time of Mr. Lincoln's inauguration, but died early in his administration. Mr. Lincoln then appointed Caleb B. Smith to the vacancy, because Mrs. Lincoln had insisted that this gentleman, who was Secretary of the Interior, should be driven out of the Cabinet. Upon Judge Smith's demise Albert S. White, formerly member of Congress from Lafayette, received the appointment, but he lived to enjoy the position only a very short time. Then Judge David McDonald, the lately deceased incumbent, was elevated to the bench.—Chicago Times, August 27.

SUNDAY RECREATIONS.

Yonkers, West Point, Cold Spring and Newburg.

The inducements held out to excursionists yesterday were not very great. The day broke dull and threatening and at eight o'clock there was every appearance of rain. Despite the would-be weather-wise, however, and perhaps reflecting that but a few more Sundays remain for summer jaunts, the number of persons starting for various points yesterday morning was something extraordinary. One of the pleasantest excursions was that in the steamer Sleepy Hollow to Newburg, and touching at Yonkers, West Point, and Cold Spring en route. The boat started from the Fulton ferry, Brooklyn, at eight A. M., having then on board some 200 persons. At the Christopher street pier about the same number got on board, while at Thirty-fourth street, North river, over 500 persons were taken up, filling the boat, and making a rather uncomfortable crowd. The excursionists belonged to the middle and higher classes of New York society. All were well dressed; pretty girls were by no means scarce, and, barring a little squeezing, everything went on swimmingly. The unexpected number of travellers put the resources of the boat to a severe test. Indeed, before reaching West Point the restaurant contained nothing but empty plates, and forty quarts of ice cream had but a short existence. An absence of the "rowdy" element made things go on very smoothly, and as none of those abominations, itinerant musicians, desecrated the lovely scenery and tortured one's ears, full and ample opportunity was given to admire the different points of interest on the way. The number of excursion boats, yachts and other pleasure craft was something prodigious. At Yonkers the boat was eased a little, about one hundred people disembarking, and at West Point the boat began to be quite enjoyable. The run to Newburg was safely accomplished, and nobody arrived there a minute too soon, as a perfect famine reigned on board, and a good dinner was the first thing thought of.

Newburg is a charming place, and full opportunity of inspecting the environs was given us, the boat stopping there two hours. The return home was, perhaps, the most enjoyable part of all, specially so after leaving West Point. The combined effects of water, verdure, hill and dale and foliage hereabouts are unequalled. It was dusk ere we touched at Thirty-fourth street, and quite dark before landing at Brooklyn, but no accident, brawl or misbehavior marred the day's pleasure.

Fort Lee and the Palisades.

The fast little steamer Thomas E. Hulse made four trips to Pleasant Valley and Fort Lee yesterday, taking some 1,500 persons. The fare being within the reach of all it may be imagined that the company was not very select, but what was wanting in selectness was made up in hilarity and genuine enjoyment. As usual a "band" was on board and dancing was much indulged in. Oyster stews, chowder, lager and liquors were greatly in demand, and there is no doubt the venders did a roaring trade.

About one-third of the passengers got off at Pleasant Valley, the remainder going on to Fort Lee. The latter is a horrible place on a Sunday to heads of well regulated homes, but the best within a short distance of New York for the gavroches of Gotham to amuse themselves at. The usual bear-play and meaningless—to ordinary mortals—repartees were in vogue; but, with the exception of a muss, which was over in half a minute, at Fort Lee, between a German and a rather too boisterous New Yorker, in which the Teuton had his shirt collar crumpled and an ugly bump on the forehead, nothing occurred of note.

The return boats during the day were comparatively empty, but the two last trips from Fort Lee were made under difficulties. Indeed, the last boat was so crammed that it was a mercy no one was missed, as every inch of plank or rail was occupied. A canard was gotten up by a would-be sensationalist to the effect that a man had fallen overboard, but no possible foundation could be found for the rumor, and no witness of the accident but the person in question.

The Navesink Highlands—Pleasure Bay and Red Bank.

There are but few cities on the globe that can in any manner compare with New York in its beautiful environs. Paris, London, Vienna and Berlin have each their resorts of pleasure, but in natural scenery and the beauty of her surrounding villas the great metropolis has no equal. Sunday being the only day of the week in which the tired thousands of this great city can enjoy themselves they naturally cast about for a locality in which they can best spend their time.

Yesterday the swift little steamer Sea Bird, which plies between the different ports on the bay and Long Branch, started on a cruise among the points of interest in the bay, her terminus being Red Bank.

Although the weather was not favorable during the early part of the forenoon, her decks and cabin were completely packed with humanity of every age and sex bent on enjoying the sea breeze and a pleasant sail. At the early hour of seven o'clock her moorings were cast off at pier No. 4 North river, and she sped on her way towards Red Bank and Long Branch. After having been under way for about an hour the dark clouds which had overcast the sky during the morning cleared away and the sun lent its brilliancy to the scene, and one and all were gladdened by its pleasant beams. Sandy Hook, with its bleak, barren shore, was the first landing place, and a number of the excursionists, with hook and line, got off for a fishing spell until the return of the boat in the afternoon. Port Washington, Fair Haven, Locust Point, Brown's Dock were passed, and Red Bank was reached at one o'clock, where the majority of the passengers got off, the larger portion of whom embarked in the steamer Helen for Long Branch. At two o'clock P. M. the signal for departure was given, and, the excursionists all aboard, the steamer wended her way homeward. Everything passed off pleasantly and nothing occurred to disturb the good feeling that prevailed among all until the steamer had almost reached the city. While passing through the Narrows an old gentleman in the company of several members of the Neptune Club, while sitting quietly chatting with his friends in the forecastle, was attacked by a "rough," who accused him with having appropriated his chair. The old party resisted manfully, and by a well directed blow sent his assailant sprawling on the deck, when several others interfered and the "muss" was ended.

At five o'clock the Sea Bird concluded her voyage and landed her passengers at Warren street.

Glen Cove.

The steamer T. V. Arrowsmith left her wharf at Peck slip yesterday morning at nine o'clock with a tolerably fair proportion of live freight en route for the various places of interest and pleasure on the banks of the East river and Long Island shore. The threatening aspect which the clouds wore contributed materially to diminish the number of those who usually take advantage of the Sunday excursions of this boat to refresh themselves after a hard week's work and recruit for the one to come. The complement was, however, pretty well obtained on the arrival of the boat at Thirty-seventh street, where a host of ladies and their escorts were anxiously waiting.

To strangers visiting the city and vicinity a trip on the East river will amply repay the time and expense involved; for, though by no means so grand as the Hudson, its shores are quite picturesque and in some places exceedingly beautiful. Steaming rapidly up the river, gliding swiftly and without apparent effort past yachts, sloops, schooners and innumerable small craft which throng the river on Sunday, we catch a glimpse of the Morgan and Novelty Iron Works, which "Mr. Curiosibhoy," Parsee of Apollo street, Bombay, so frequently mentions in his letters of inquiry to "Greeley, sahib," in reference to the protective tariff. Beyond these Blackwell's Island looms up, and soon we come within full view of the numerous sanitary and criminal institutions thereon. The sight is very fine, and is, without further inducement, well worthy the cost of the trip.

Proceeding toward our destination we sail through Hell Gate, pass Fort Schuyler at Throgg's Point and the unfinished work at Willets', and emerge into the waters of Long Island Sound, a short distance up which are to be seen Sands' Point and Execution lighthouses. Bowling right speedily up the Sound, stopping occasionally to deposit and receive passengers, the Arrowsmith reached Glen Cove, where the majority of the persons aboard disembarked to ramble among the groves and glens till the return of the boat from Roslyn, the terminus, in the afternoon. At Glen Cove the steam yacht belonging to the wealthy Englishman, Mr. Cunard, was festooned with the flags of the United Kingdom, in honor evidently of the Oxford victory on the Thames. Above Glen Cove, and the last station till we get to Roslyn, is Glenwood, a quiet little place, where is to be seen the residence of Mr. Clapham, nestled away very snugly among the thick foliage, and only showing a painted dome and spire looking like the minaret of a mosque. Getting a side view we perceive an elegant Mansard roof, cunning little windows and doors, all elegantly finished, and recognize the fact that there must have been a great outlay to accomplish such results.

At last we get to Roslyn, and there, just beyond the water willows, and nearly hidden by the trees, is the residence of William Cullen Bryant. Strolling around the winding road encompassing his domain, one becomes absorbed in contemplation of the absolute aspect of repose everything wears. The lake, the swans on the lake, everything animate and inanimate, seems to slumber, and no sound is heard save, at intervals, the almost inaudible vaunting cry of some far-off chanticleer. The silence is almost oppressive, but it enthrals one and awakens a yearning—oh, how longing!—to live and die in such a place. But such things are only for the chosen few, of which we are more forcibly reminded by the steam whistle of the Arrowsmith summoning the dilatory to come aboard and return to the toil and turmoil of the city.

Coney Island.

The stillness of the Sabbath morning is broken—not so much by the sound of the church or Sunday school bell as the "Toot, toot, toot," of the steam whistles announcing to the pleasure seeker that steamers and accommodation trains are waiting in every direction to bear the denizens of the pent-up city to "green fields and pastures new." That is a pretty good joke on Coney Island, whither we in imagination desire to transport the reader; for if there is a bleak, barren, unattractive place to be found it is Coney. But before eating your hare always catch him; and before discussing Coney and its merits let us get there. The trouble of a Sunday morning is not "How shall I go?" but "Where shall I go?" Hurrying to the piers, one meets a boat filled with pleasure seekers, and she is bound up the Hudson. Another has just as big a crowd on board for the Sound, and steamers are loading in every direction with their living freight bound for "down the bay" and a hundred other places. Take the Coney Island steamer that leaves several points in New York and Brooklyn every hour. If you take the early boat you get among a pretty respectable class of people. The roughs have not yet awakened from the previous night's debauch. The boat shoves out into the stream, and, as she passes Castle William, you look over her stern and you see half a dozen other steamers coming after her, all of them black with people. Little sailboats send out from shore in every direction. The beautiful yacht, with its select party on board, spreads its white wings to the morning breeze, and the very waves seem to laugh and skip and kiss in glee. As the boat progresses down the Narrows new objects of interest open upon the vision at every turn. On your left, lying quietly at anchor in Gowanus Bay, is the little fleet of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, that lately attracted a crowd of admirers to their regatta. Further down, Bay Ridge, having left the quiet slope of Greenwood behind; and here the beautiful appearance of the landscape, the handsome residences of the inhabitants and the grassy lawns and beautiful groves elicit bursts of admiration. Still further along the gloomy, forbidding walls of "the American Bastile," Fort Lafayette, but recently made more hideous in their historical deformity by being made the prison of the patriotic Cubans, loom up out of the water, and on the shore, hanging frowning over the whole, are the bristling ramparts of Fort Hamilton—these latter filled with visitors that have gone down in the Bay Ridge boat and the horse cars. There! That horse car arrangement rather knocks some of the romance out of that sentence. But to proceed. On the opposite shore, on Staten Island, lying down close to the water's edge, is the stone citadel known as Fort Richmond, and above it, on the hill, is Fort Wadsworth. Let your eye wander around you in every direction. Behind and alongside are steamers with their living freight plunging and groaning amid the waves, each endeavoring to show the "cleanest pair of heels," to make use of turf parlance. The crowds on each are cheering and waving their handkerchiefs, while on one they had so far forgotten the day as to have taken on board the goddess Terpsichore, and saltatory exercise was the order. The sails that before studded the bosom of the water by dozens have now increased to hundreds, and there is not a point of the compass to which a fleet of sail is not pointed. Here a long line of fore and aft schooners are proceeding quietly and orderly out to sea, looking as dignified as an array of matrons in white aprons, while ever and anon, like children at play, the saucy yacht or sailboat, in its holiday rig, dashes impudently across the bows or under the sterns of their more staid consorts. As the approach to the Coney Island pier is made a general scattering takes place among the craft. Some turn off to the right, heading for the Horse Shoe, Raritan Bay, Neversink and the Quarantine. At this latter place, having dropped anchor and all hands having betaken themselves to their fishing lines, the Coney Islanders will leave them and look after their own affairs a little more closely. The pier is reached, and the crowd begin to disembark, closely scrutinized by half a dozen police officers, who having seen all hands ashore, and being satisfied that they are all law-abiding citizens, quickly place themselves in the rear, and the procession takes up its line of march along a road made of sand, chopped straw and clam shells, the sand being the only original thing there. A couple of hundred yards from the boat landing is a structure that some one has been flattered into the belief is a hotel, and so it is called. Around it the barren sand hummocks are lying in the wildest confusion. The aboriginal inhabitants of these hummocks appear to be the sand marten, called by the Islanders "swallows" probably from the fact that people are expected to swallow all they hear, but not all they see, for if the information gathered from a solitary police officer, who appeared nothing loath to communicate his knowledge of affairs in that locality be true, it would cost a pretty penny to sit down to an ordinary meal in that same "hostelrie." Stripping his information of its colloquial character, and putting it in narrative shape, he, in effect, said:—"I have been detailed here nearly every Sunday, for many years, my position being in the Brooklyn courts, and I have seen Coney Island in its best and its worst phases. There was a time when it had a good character, but that was long ago, although I believe in proper hands it would have again. You see this part of the island belongs to the village of Gravesend, and it farms out this portion of it to the man who keeps this hotel. He won't improve it, and he has but one idea, and that is to make money, but he goes to work the wrong way. Now, just look at all those people, and tell me why it is that they are all lugging heavy baskets? Why, it is just because he charges so high for everything that nobody will buy from him, and they all bring their dinners with them. He tried to keep people from bringing their own bathing clothes with them just so that they would have to hire bathing clothes here at thirty cents each; but Inspector Folk soon took that flea out of his ear. There are ten of us officers stationed here every Sunday, and this season we have kept things pretty quiet, though I have seen things hot here when Jess Allen and his crowd were here. I have seen that barroom crowded with women and children taking their meals, and have seen that Allen crowd go in with their pistols and clear it out in less than a minute. All that is wanted here, sir, is proper management." And thus his tongue ran on.

The usual number of bathers, numbering at this point not over one hundred, were in the surf with their uncouth, awkward dresses on, making them look like frights, but all enjoying themselves. In reference to Coney Island one more word will suffice. Go early and return early, and you will avoid the rough crowd. Take with you everything you require for the outer and the inner man and you will not be fleeced. Take either of the three lines, steamboat or car, and now a long farewell, Coney.

The Fishing Banks.

Yesterday morning at eight o'clock the steamer Wyoming left Peck slip (pier 24 East river) for the fishing banks. She had previously touched at North Eighth street, Williamsburg, and Eighth street, East river. The passengers she received from these places, together with those from Peck slip and pier No. 4 North river (at which place she called before proceeding on her trip), gave her deck quite a presentable appearance, but by no means such as could reasonably have been expected had it not been for the rain of the night preceding, which doubtless deterred many from venturing on the water.

These Sunday excursions are peculiarly enjoyable, especially to the masses, who are unable to devote any of the six days of labor to the recreation they so much need, as indicated by the pallid countenance and want of animation consequent upon the close confinement of the workshops and the impure air of the city.

Schiebel's brass band was on board and discoursed sweet strains to the amateur fishermen, contributing greatly to the pleasure of the party and imparting a zest to the somewhat monotonous pastime in which they were engaged. Refreshments, bait, lines, &c., were on board, and it was only necessary to get on the steamer (with the indispensable commodity, the same hue as Erin's flag, to be sure,) without the disagreeable necessity of providing for one's self the minutiæ incidental to such occasions, which detracts so much from the anticipations of enjoyment to be armed cap-a-pie for piscatorial encounters.

Arrived at the fishing banks, hooks were adjusted more securely, bait distributed, lines hurled seaward, and thenceforth, till the time for returning, fish of all kinds, sizes, colors and shapes were jerked from their element to satisfy the thirst for sport and appetite for themselves which the voyageurs had imbibed with the salt sea air—and perhaps with a fluid which sometimes renders its devotees, involuntarily, a species of fish (though they be at the same time fishers)—for they certainly live when "half-seas over."

The Wyoming returned to the city at sundown. Thorough satisfaction seems to have been given to the excursionists, and they will doubtless avail themselves of the earliest opportunity to again participate in the sport of yesterday.

Rockaway and the Seaside.

Among the many places of resort for the countless thousands of the tired humanity of New York is the little quiet nook Rockaway, pleasantly ensconced on the Long Island shore, well known to all denizens of Gotham. Yesterday morning hundreds availed themselves of a pleasant sail to that point in the steamer H. M. Cool, which plies regularly to that point. At nine o'clock, sharp, the ponderous engines of the steamer began slowly to show signs of life, and in a few minutes the vessel, with its living freight of pleasure seekers, turned her prow seaward and started on her course like an antelope. It has been a notable fact that the numerous boats that ply on the different courses during the present season have been favored with the absence of that class of "bruisers" and sporting gentry that have for years made an excursion a peril instead of a pleasure. The strict vigilance of the special officers on board, or the more interesting field in which to ply their trade, such as Hoboken and other rural localities, has had a tendency to make their visits less frequent. The passengers of the Cool were composed chiefly of hard working mechanics, their wives and children, together with individuals of the lower and middle strata of society.

Fort Lafayette and the different fortifications of the harbor were passed in turn and afforded the excursionists ample topics on which to converse. Some were inclined to the opinion that the forts could be easily passed by an enemy's fleet, while others were of the opinion that the combined fleets of the world could not effect an entrance. Such weighty topics and the flirtations which are one of the prominent features of all excursions tended to pass away the time until the quarantine buildings loomed up in the distance, when all hands crowded to the leeward side of the steamer, eagerly scanning the gloomy pile of buildings on that lonesome artificial island.

Rockaway, the terminus of the excursion, was reached by eleven o'clock, and the joyous throng disembarked and wended their way to the numerous localities in the vicinity, until the time for the departure of the steamer. The Seaside Hotel, with its broad piazza, seemed to be the favorite resort for a number of the lady excursionists. The view from this point is truly magnificent, and on a pleasant day, when the sun is shining in all its splendor, vessels can be seen while ten or fifteen miles at sea. The far off Jersey shore and Staten Island, with its numerous headlands, were in plain view, and with the numerous sailing craft which glided through the water under a stiff breeze afforded a scene worthy of the pencil of an artist.

Towards noon a yacht belonging to Fire Island landed a number of young "bloods," who laid siege to several places where "fire water" is dispensed with a lavish hand, and as soon as they had a sufficient quantity on board to make them feel "happy," as they termed it, began insulting the females at the hotel, which at one time came near leading to a serious difficulty, but they were finally quieted and took their departure, amid the jeers of the excursionists, who had congregated at the landing, attracted by the disgraceful conduct of the crew.

At two o'clock the steamer again started on her homeward trip, and the party landed at the different piers along the North river, evidently well pleased with their excursion. The weather was not as pleasant as could be desired, but the air was, nevertheless, of that bracing character that enlivened one and all.

NEW JERSEY.

Jersey City.

ASSAULT ON A WAGON DRIVER.—A man named Charles Carroll was arrested last evening for assaulting William Frederick and breaking several articles in his wagon. He was fined by the Recorder.

ATTEMPT TO STAB AN OFFICER.—Yesterday afternoon officer Joyce was about to arrest a man named Edward Hayes for drunkenness when the latter became furious and drew a large knife with which he attempted to wound him. The policeman proved too able for him, and with the aid of another officer conveyed him to prison.

Hudson City.

A MOTHER IN TROUBLE.—An aged woman named Reilly appeared before Recorder Aldridge yesterday and procured a warrant for the arrest of one William O'Neil for an alleged indecent assault upon her daughter Josephine. The prisoner was committed without bail to await trial.

Hoboken.

ANOTHER CHILD DRUGGED TO DEATH.—A boy named Anthony Blumling, six months old, was visited by a physician yesterday, at the house No. 90 Fifth street, who prescribed medicine for the child's relief. Subsequently another doctor administered an additional dose to the boy, who died in about half an hour afterwards. An inquest will be held to-day by Coroner White.

A GIRL KILLED BY A NARCOTIC.—A little girl, aged four years, named Bridget Bradshaw, whose parents live at No. 10 Grand street, was taken ill yesterday morning, and the father at once proceeded to effect a remedy. He repaired to a drug store, where he purchased six opium pills, one of which he gave to the child. The girl fell into a slumber shortly afterwards, from which she never awoke. Coroner White viewed the body yesterday and issued a warrant for the arrest of the father.

MELANCHOLY DROWNING CASUALTY.—About seven o'clock on Saturday evening a young man named George Farrell, in company with his sister, was seated on the Erie Railroad bridge over the Hackensack, where they were amusing themselves by fishing, when he lost his balance and fell into the water. The screams of the sister soon caught the attention of a boatman, but his exertions to save Farrell were useless. It was not till yesterday that the body was recovered. Coroner White held an inquest and the jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning. The deceased resided at Rutherfurd Park and was unmarried.

Newark.

RAID ON ALLEGED GAMBLERS.—Complaint having been made some time ago by citizens that a party of young men were in the habit of desecrating the Sabbath by gambling with cards in a vacant lot on the lower part of Railroad avenue the police have since been on the alert, and yesterday afternoon Sergeant Benedict and two officers arrested four of them named R. Bolters, huckster; John McCabe, japanner; Edward McDonald, edge tool maker; Matthew Sennit, harness maker. They were removed to the station house and held for examination.

INFANTICIDE.—Yesterday afternoon some boys called at the station house and notified the officer in charge, Lieutenant Dwyer, that a dead child had been found lying on a portion of the old Lyde property, located on the Elizabeth road, just below St. Barnabas Hospital. Officer Leonard was promptly despatched thither, and found the child to be a newly born male. It was removed to the undertaker's and the county physician notified. After examining the body the latter official came to the conclusion that the child had been born alive. It probably was only a few hours old and died from exposure. No clue to the heartless parent.

A CHILD CHARGED WITH GRAND LARCENY BY ITS FATHER.—Late on Saturday night, between eleven and twelve o'clock, two boys named Patrick Murphy and Patrick Heavy, aged respectively thirteen years, were arrested on a warrant issued at the instance of Cormick Heavy, the last mentioned boy's father, who, in his affidavit before Justice Stapff, set forth that his boy and the other Patrick had stolen a pocketbook containing sixty-seven dollars, the property of the complainant. Young Heavy admits taking the purse, but says there was only twelve dollars in it. Both are held, and will probably be committed for trial.

SAD CASE OF DESTITUTION.—On Saturday night, while a young man named Joseph Fisher was walking along Market street, when opposite the office of the county physician he suddenly fell prostrate to the sidewalk. He was removed at once to the doctor's by some citizens, when it was ascertained that he was suffering from a severe attack of hemorrhage. He stated that he had been in hospital at Boston until his money gave out, and when he could no longer pay the hospital charge of $4 50 per week he was compelled to leave. Having some relatives in Cincinnati he thought to try and work his way there, but only succeeded in getting as far as this city when prostrated in the manner described. He was removed to the hospital in charge of the Sisters of the Poor, on the corner of Nesbit and High streets, where he will receive the best of attention without money and without price.

LONG ISLAND.

SINGULAR DEATH OF A CHILD.—On Saturday a little child named O'Neil died at Far Rockaway from the sulphur inhaled by chewing matches.

FIRE AT EAST HAMPTON.—On Sunday morning, at quite an early hour, the fish house of N. H. Howell & Co. at East Hampton was almost entirely consumed by fire, together with its contents, causing a loss of about $600. The fire is alleged to be of incendiary origin.

STATEN ISLAND.

ACCIDENT.—On Friday evening last about nine o'clock a son, aged about eighteen years, of Courtland Parker, of this city, temporarily stopping at Tottenville, stripped off to go in bathing on Rutan's dock and being ignorant of the depth of water dove off. There being at the time but a few inches of water his head struck some sharp stones, fracturing his skull. His brother, who was with him, immediately went to his assistance and had him conveyed to the house. He now lies in a very precarious state.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

FIRE IN TREMONT.—At half-past four o'clock yesterday morning the extensive woollen factory of Hoffman & Co., at Tremont, took fire and was completely destroyed. The fire caught in the engine house. No statement of the loss and insurance is given in the despatch from the Tremont police station.

ANOTHER MAN KILLED ON THE NEW HAVEN RAILROAD.—A man named James Goff was killed early yesterday morning, just this side of Melrose, on the track of the New Haven Railroad, by the night train from Boston. He attempted to cross the road as the train was approaching and was struck by the engine with such force as to send him some distance from the track. The train was put back, but the man was apparently dying and was left in the hands of the bystanders.

MILES OF RAILROADS IN DIFFERENT STATES.—The following table shows the number of miles of railroad in the States given:—Pennsylvania, 4,400; Illinois, 3,450; Ohio, 3,400; New York, 3,400; Indiana, 2,600; Iowa, 1,550; Georgia, 1,580; Massachusetts, 1,450; Missouri, 1,400; Virginia, 1,480; Tennessee, 1,440; Wisconsin, 1,250; Michigan, 1,260; North Carolina, 1,100; South Carolina, 1,000.

NORTH CAROLINA POLITICS.

WASHINGTON, August 15, 1869.

The great moral effect of the recent elections in Virginia on politics and parties in the South renders the views of prominent public men in this section at the present time interesting throughout the country. Your correspondent, therefore, availed himself of the opportunity afforded by a recent visit to Raleigh, the capital of the State of North Carolina, to call on Governor Holden for the purpose of ascertaining his sentiments on public affairs. He found the Governor very affable and communicative. He does not believe in a dogged and obstinate adherence to exploded or dead issues, but acts on the principle that a statesman must keep up with the progress of events, if he cannot guide and control them.

Your correspondent introduced the conversation by remarking:—I notice, Governor, that you have been particularly honored by the opposition paper since my arrival here, which represents that you were one of the most prominent instigators of the rebellion in the State, and supported the doctrine of secession, and that you only changed your opinions when the rebellion became a failure. I should like to be able to present your own account of the matter.

GOVERNOR—The information you seek is such as I shall have pleasure in communicating. Like other public men, my acts are open to criticism, and in the present temper of a portion of the Southern people I am continually the subject of misrepresentation by those who have not yet learned the necessity of yielding to circumstances which they cannot control. The assertion that I was an active advocate of the doctrine of the right of secession is entirely unfounded. As a native of this State I always took a warm interest in everything relating to State affairs. My position in national politics prior to the war was that of an old fashioned Jackson democrat. That was a party that always adhered to the principles of national unity, while it strenuously labored to define and maintain the rights of local government in the States, as guaranteed by the constitution. When secession became imminent, in the early part of 1861, I took strong grounds against it. North Carolina, as you are doubtless aware, was the last of the Southern States that seceded. It was only after all the others had passed ordinances of secession that I and my friends yielded to the movement, which now like a whirlwind swept everything before it. The secession party was not composed exclusively of democrats. Men of all shades of national politics joined in it. When resistance would have been certain destruction. When it became certain that the ordinance of secession would pass the Union men had no alternative left but to fall into the current.

CORRESPONDENT—Your case, then, was similar to that of A. H. Stephens and other prominent public men in the South, who, after opposing secession to their utmost, felt it to be their duty, when opposition became unavailing, to go with their States?

GOVERNOR—Exactly so, and I felt it to be my duty when the issue of the war was decided against us to lose no time in accepting the arbitrament of the sword and submit to the central government. My honest convictions were always opposed to the doctrines of secession, and if there was an apparent sacrifice of principle it was the result of the peculiar and prevailing doctrines of State rights forced on men with bayonets presented to their breasts.

CORRESPONDENT—How did you get over the "ironclad" oath?

GOVERNOR—My position on the question was so well understood by the Commanding General (Canby) and the authorities at Washington that I was not required to take it.

CORRESPONDENT—I should like to know what course you pursued during the war.

GOVERNOR—As I before remarked, when the torrent of secession swept everything before it I yielded to it and joined in measures for its support, but never believed in or desired its success. As a proof of this, in 1862 I earnestly urged Governor Vance to meet Governor Stanley at Kinston and treat for peace. I determined to seize the first occasion to obtain peace on the basis of a restored Union. Accordingly in 1863, after General Grant had captured Vicksburg, I took open grounds in the Standard newspaper for negotiations. In two months eighty peace meetings were held in the State. But in September of that year my printing office was sacked by Confederate troops from Richmond, and the peace movement was repressed by the military. I was in great personal peril from this period till General Sherman reached Raleigh, being constantly denounced as a Lincolnite and a traitor to the confederacy. Being an unconditional Union man, I gladly hailed the incoming of the Union troops. I endeavored as Provisional Governor to carry out the so-called plan of President Johnson on a legal basis. Failing in that, I took ground for the Howard amendment as soon as it was adopted. That failing to restore the Union, I advocated the reconstruction acts and took open ground for them two months before they were passed. In 1865 I was defeated for Governor by the disloyal element, and in 1868 was elected for four years by the loyal vote of the State by a majority of 20,000.

CORRESPONDENT—What effect, if any, have the late elections in Virginia had on the public sentiment of this State?

GOVERNOR—No particular effect, for the reason that the people of Virginia, by their recent vote, have simply placed themselves where the republicans of North Carolina have been from the first—that is, for allowing every male citizen to vote. This is what I understand by universal suffrage and general amnesty. I am glad that Virginia has so decided, but I regret the instrumentalities employed. Governor Wells and his party would be the best guardians of this and other great republican principles. Governor Walker, no doubt, means well and received the support of a considerable number of good citizens; but he is under obligations to many who do not love the government and who will not be cheerful and zealous in its support. It is fair to judge of the Walker tree by its fruits. It is for Congress to decide whether Virginia shall be admitted or not with the new government just chosen.

CORRESPONDENT—I am going to put what the lawyers would call a leading question. Are you in favor of having all political disabilities removed from all classes of persons engaged in the late rebellion?

GOVERNOR—I am in favor of restoring full political rights to every man who will ask them.

CORRESPONDENT—Then you do not favor a general act of oblivion?

GOVERNOR—I am willing and desirous that all should have their rights restored on application. A general act would not be appreciated by a great number, and the privileges conferred would be abused by all such. The act of asking implies submission and a desire to act up to the requirements of the constitution and the Union. Such an act of liberality on the part of the conquerer so soon after a great civil war has never been recorded in history. They have already been pardoned. What they now want is the right to sit in the Legislature and hold other offices. Let those who desire to do so ask for it, and I am in favor of giving such right.

CORRESPONDENT—Are any effectual efforts being made to establish a system of free schools in the States accessible to the children of all classes?

GOVERNOR—Earnest and active steps are being taken to establish free public schools. We have an excellent superintendent—the Rev. S. S. Ashley, formerly of Massachusetts. He is preparing the work with zeal and ability. The schools will be commenced at an early day. The university is reviving and will be sustained. The people of North Carolina have always been more devoted to the cause of education than any other State formerly slaveholding. This feeling continues, and with the aid of Northern friends, who are settling among us, we hope soon to have a good system of public instruction in the State. The children of the two races will have separate schools and separate universities, but the provision will be as liberal and thorough for the colored as for the whites.

CORRESPONDENT—I should like to know something about the financial condition of the State; the relative position, as charges on the public revenue of the various kinds of securities issued or authorized to be issued, and the effect of the late decision of the Supreme Court of the State on such securities.

GOVERNOR—The Supreme Court has decided that the debt of the State, contracted before the rebellion, is good. This amounts to about $18,100,000. It has also decided that the debt for unfinished works is equally good, and that there is no limit to taxation for these debts. The latter is about $16,240,000. The amount of appropriations that fell under the decision of the court is $5,100,000—that is, this debt is invalid and fails. The special tax bonds are at present better than the old, for the reason that a special tax is levied and is being collected, and must be applied to meet the interest on the new bonds, whereas the State will be obliged again to fund the interest on another half year of the bonds. I feel sure that ultimately the State will be able to pay every dollar she owes.

CORRESPONDENT—What is your opinion as to the prospects of this year's crops in this State?

GOVERNOR—Most favorable. From information obtained from all parts of the State I think they are fully equal to those of 1860, the best ever produced. The wheat crop is larger. Corn, since the copious rains of the present week also promises to be much larger than that of any previous year. If nothing happens to injure the cotton I think it may reach 200,000 bales—the quantity produced in 1860—which at present prices will bring more than twice as much money into the State as did the crop of that year.

Much more conversation ensued, in which his Excellency expressed it as his opinion that the State was rapidly recuperating from the effects of the war, and that with returning prosperity the political asperities would gradually diminish. My conversations with men of all shades of politics, from unrepentent rebels to extreme loyalists, lead me to think the Governor does not exaggerate the extent to which political, social and industrial reconstruction has already taken place.

POLITICS IN OHIO.

The Third Party or Temperance Movement—Declination of the Nominee for Governor.

At a convention of "prohibitionists" held at Mansfield, Ohio, July 14, Mr. J. E. Ingersoll was put in nomination as a candidate for Governor of the State. It has for some time been known that Mr. Ingersoll had declined the nomination, but for some reason his letter of declination has failed to appear in public. It is, however, just published, as follows:—

NEW YORK, July 29, 1869.

JAY ODELL, Secretary Prohibition State Central Committee:—

DEAR SIR—I have just received your letter of date the 20th inst., informing me that by the Prohibition Convention, held at Mansfield, Ohio, July 14, 1869, my name was placed upon the State ticket as candidate for Governor.

Permit me to return my thanks to the Convention who thus honored me with its confidence. I am in entire sympathy with the object which it seeks to promote, but with the views that I entertain of the present political condition of our State I deem it my duty to decline this nomination.

Respect for the friends of temperance composing the organization which you represent requires that I should give the reasons which have induced this decision.

After the straightest sect I was educated in the anti-slavery faith, and I have endeavored, so far as I have been possessed of any political influence, to use it so that it would aid in establishing the equality and brotherhood of man, irrespective of color or race.

The course pursued by the republican party of Ohio, prior to its last State convention, had led me to regard that party unwilling to take position in support of the doctrine of suffrage based on manhood, and I was therefore disposed at the time of the Alliance Temperance Convention to part company from that party to whose measures, although not always to its men, I had theretofore adhered, and aid in forming a State temperance party. But since the republican party, at its last convention at Columbus, declared in favor of this doctrine, as contained in the fifteenth amendment, I feel unwilling to take any such position as may withdraw any part of the force needed for securing the vote of Ohio in favor of this measure.

Believing that the maintenance of an independent temperance ticket at the coming election will hazard the success of this important measure, which I look to as the coup de grace of American slavery, I feel bound to give my vote and what influence I have for the republican ticket at this fall's election.

Hoping that the friends of temperance may concur with me in this decision I remain repectfully yours,

J. E. INGERSOLL.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Saxe, the poet, says that he ran twice as the democratic candidate for Governor of Vermont, and came within one of being elected each time. That was the candidate who ran against him.

The Louisville Courier-Journal—which never omits an opportunity to give a rap at the Beecher family—says it does not believe the story of its New York correspondent that "Mrs. Stowe did her great sensation on a wager of champagne and cigars;" and remarks that "she neither drinks nor smokes." So far as that is concerned she is far purer than any New York ward politician.

An exchange remarks that Anna Dickinson can make delicious bread, and adds:—Let her do it, then. Better that than reserve all her crustiness for her foes. Dough, dough!

The spirit of the press in Tennessee is decidedly opposed to the proposed new party movement in that State.

Dorsey B. Thomas is spoken of pretty generally for Speaker of the Tennessee State Senate, while others are urging the name of Edmund Cooper.

The Iowa State election occurs in about six weeks, and some republican papers are complaining that others do not come up squarely to the scratch in supporting the party candidates.

Republican papers in Illinois rebuke the lethargy in the party in regard to the coming Constitutional Convention, and aver that democrats are secretly moving to overreach them in shaping the fundamental laws of the State.

A people's party has been started in Chicago. It pretends to represent the vox populi—but the principal eye in it seems to be directed toward the loaves and fishes.

The Chicago Times revives this little bit of history, which should be taken in connection with the late Gettysburg failure:—

Some years ago a bill was before the United States Senate making appropriations for decorating the national Capitol. Senator Sumner moved a proviso that there should be no decorations designed to commemorate a victory by Americans over their countrymen. As this was while civil war was raging and the passions of the people were stirred to intensity, the motion was an eminently patriotic one, and met the approval of the Senate.

A democratic exchange says John A. Bingham, "better known as Gorgeous Bingham, has taken the stump in Ohio, and his admirers have great hopes that he will do something towards staying the desertions from the republican ranks in that State." Are you quite sure about which side these desertions are from?

A.—THE STORY OF THE YEAR,
IN THE FIRESIDE COMPANION.
THE MIDNIGHT MARRIAGE;
OR,
WHOSE WIFE WAS SHE?
BY MRS. SUMNER HAYDEN,
Author of "Little Goldie," &c.
Out To-morrow, August 31.

This story is the best ever penned by this talented and favorite author. The subject is a novel one, and treated in a manner that makes it intensely interesting and exciting. A beautiful young girl is married at midnight, and in circumstances that make it impossible for her to find out, in after life, whether she is really the wife of him who claims to be her husband or of him whom she thought she was marrying. The fascination that surrounds the whole subject is painfully interesting, and not the least remarkable circumstance connected with it is the fact that it is a
